This thesis is a research about Emotional Abuse in Danielle Steel's novel Big Girl. The objectives of the research are (1) to find out the categories of Emotional Abuse faced by Victoria In Danielle Steel's novel "Big Girl". (2) to find out the effects of Emotional Abuse found by Victoria from her parents.

In this research the writer used Charles Wenar's theory about emotional abuse. It aimed to find out the categories of emotional abuse which happened in the main character, then the writer analyzed and explained the effects based on the categories. The method used in this research is qualitative method. The data resource of this research was the novel "Big Girl" which was published in 2010. In collecting the data, the writer used note taking as the instrument to get the data.

In this research, the writer found four categories of emotional abuse. They are rejecting, isolating, degrading and denying emotional responsiveness. There are eleven data about rejecting, there are two data about isolating, there are fifteen data about degrading and there are six data about denying emotional responsiveness.

Then the writer also found the effects of emotional abuse based on the four categories above. Rejecting made the victim felt like another person in her family. The victim thought that she was unwanted. Isolating made the victim hard to engage with her peers. Degrading made the victim feel less confident. The victim sensed that she has no value. And the last, denying emotional responsiveness made the victim felt if her parents never care to her or being ignored.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background

Literature springs from our in born love of telling a story, of arranging words in pleasing patterns, of expressing in words some special aspects of our human experience (Moody in Ade, 2008: 18). It represents someone's idea through view to social environment by using a beautiful language. Literature attends as result of contemplation of author existing phenomenon. Literature as a masterpiece has the understanding of more circumstantial, not only as the illusive story from the author, but also a form from the author creativity in digging and managing ideas in mind.

Besides the definition above, Guerlin and friends (1979: 21) in their book "A Handbook of Critical Approaches to Literature" say that literature is primarily art, it must be affirmed also that art does not exist in a vacuum. It is a creation by someone at some time in history, and it is intended to speak to other human beings about some idea or issue that has human relevance. They explain that literature is an art that exist by human creation. Literature is created to deliver someone's thoughts.

Literature also exists in time and space, history and society. So, a literary work must speak to concern that readers recognize it as relevant to their own life. Attar (1988: 9) said that literary is a form and result of creative art work which its object is man and life using language as a medium. Another citation which supports that statement is stated by Esten (1990: 9) Literature is an expression of artistic and imaginative fact as manifestation of human life (and society) using language as a medium and has positive effect to the human life (humanity).

Both citations define the relation between literary work and society. A literary work is always made based on the historical moment in which it was written. Much of them uses mental experience of human beings and contains deep feeling and moral values of human being related to purity, wide viewpoints, and beautiful forms. Because of this reason a lot of readers interested in reading a literary work.

In general literary work is divided into three types, such as drama, poetry and prose. Drama is primarily written to be performed or acted on stage. Therefore, the playwright usually writes his plays character by character, scene by scene and act by act to forestall the confusion and to ensure correctness during performance. The second is poetry. It is written in verse. It was not written in prose or continuous form, but line by line. The last is prose. Prose refers to the literary or written form of the language. Prose could be fiction or non-fiction. Fictions are imagined or invented stories. Thus, the events presented did not occur in real life, although they may be real to life because all literary work should depict life of various types. They include fables, allegory, parable, romance, myth, folktale, short story and novel. Non-fiction prose is more or less true-to-life stories. They include biography, autobiography, travels and adventures and the essay (Ade, 2008 : 22-23 ).

The literary work which the writer will analyze here is novel. Novel refers to a picture of a real life and manner in narrative form. Wallek and Warren (1987 : 23) define, “Novel is a large diffused picture comprehending the characters of life, disposed in different groups of a uniform plan. This plan cannot be executed with principle personage to attract the attention, unit the incident, unwind the clue of the labyrinth, and at last close them by virtue his own importance.”

The important ingredients in novel are plot, character, setting, tone, theme, conflict, and point of view. Specially for conflict, there are some kinds of conflict that usually happen in the novel. It may internal or external conflict. General conflict that always found in the novel is about love, friendship and so on. Then how if the conflict is about violence? Someone abuses her/his friends, girlfriend and helper and how if a parents abuses her/his child? Physical and emotional abuse are two things that become problem in daily life. That is why, the writer will give informations about the emotional abuse that occur in the novel and it can help the readers understand well.

Danielle Steel's novel "Big Girl" starts out with a couple, Jim and Christine, who get married at an early age. From the beginning their morals are dubious. They really want to have a baby boy. They try but end up having a girl, both parents are disappointed in their baby girl from the moment she was born. since she was born until grew up, she got emotional abuse from her parents specially from her father.

Based on the background above, the writer enthusiastically focuses her research on "Emotional Abuse in Danielle Steel's novel Big Girl", because the writer finds emotional abuse as a problem in this novel and also the writer wants to give the important informations to the readers about emotional abuse completely. The writer chooses Big Girl because it is an interesting novel which makes the readers fascinate to understand the story of the novel, besides this novel telling about the bad relationship between parents and child and also the language of the novel is easily to understand.

B. Problem Statements

Emotional Abuse includes an important aspect that people needs to understand. In Danielle steel's novel big girl, there are some categories of emotional abuse that happen in this novel. Based on the background above, the researcher formulates the research questions as follows:

1. What are Emotional Abuse categories faced by Victoria from her parents in Danielle Steel's novel "Big girl?"
2. What are the effects of emotional abuse found by Victoria from her parents?

C. Objectives of Research

Based on the research questions above, the writer proposes the objective of the research, as the following below:

1. To find out the categories of emotional abuse faced by Victoria from her parents In Danielle Steel's novel "Big Girl".
2. To find out the effects of Emotional Abuse found by Victoria from her parents.

D. Significance of Research

The significances of the research as follows:

1. This research is expected to give valuable information about emotional abuse, especially in categories and the effects.
2. This research is expected to give a great contribution for the next researcher as the reference who wants to analyze which have relevance with this research.

E. Scope of Research

Based on the previous explanation above, the research is going to limit the emotional abuse analysis in Danielle Steel's novel "Big Girl". In this research the writer focused on the categories and the effect of emotional abuse that includes in the novel. There are 7 categories of emotional abuse based on Wenar's theory such as rejecting, terrorizing, isolating, degrading, corrupting, exploiting and denying emotional responsiveness.

CHAPTER II

THEORITICAL BACKGROUND

In this chapter, the writer tries to present the related theory with the research in order to support the analysis. This chapter consists of explanation about previous study, emotional abuse, psychological approach, biography of Danielle Steel and synopsis the novel.

A. Previous Findings

The writer finds some previous findings which related and relevant with this research, as follows:

Ruby (2006) in his thesis, Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder As The Result of Physical and Emotional Violence, On The Gambir Character In Pintu Terlarang, A Novel by Sekar Ayu Asmara explores psychological symptoms called Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD), experienced by the Gambir character in Pintu Terlarang, a novel by Sekar Ayu Asmara. This research aim to, first, explore the structure and describe the plot, characters and characterization. Secondly, it aims to describe the psychological condition of the Gambir character, who suffers PTSD, through the symptoms that occur the character.

Iwaniec (2005) in his research review : Risk and Resilience In Cases of Emotional Abuse has identified numerous child and family factors that may increase the risk of emotional abuse occurring and has also identified numerous ways in which an experience of emotional abuse can enhance vulnerability to negative outcomes. However, relatively little is known about the factors that determine the extent to which an experience of emotional abuse predicts later psychosocial functioning. Factors that may determine risk and resilience in children who experience emotional abuse are discussed. These include predisposing factors such as early care giving experiences; precipitating factors such as the frequency, intensity and duration of the abuse; factors intrinsic to the child such as working models of the self and others, internal or external attributions, behavioral and coping strategies, self-esteem, and disposition; and external factors such as school and availability of supportive relationships. The need to pay attention to the particular vulnerabilities and protective factors pertaining to each emotionally abused child in order to most effectively enhance resilience is highlighted.

Martin (2004) in his thesis, The Analysis of Emotional Abuse in a memoir by Richard B. Pelzer 'A Brother's Journey: Surviving a Childhood of Abuse' explains briefly about the author's life that becomes object from his research. The writer also describe the point problem from his research to give a deeply analysis about the aspects of emotional abuse in memoir by Richard B. Pelzer. Scope of this research is limited in emotional abuse's aspects and aim to give explanation to the reader about emotional abuse grounded on category and the form itself.

The similarity of those previous findings above with this research is on the limitation problem. They limit only on emotional abuse. Then there are differences of those findings with this research. Ruby analyzed the Gambir character who suffer Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder as the result of physical and emotional violence. Iwaniec analyzed how much the risk of emotional abuse to child. Martin analyzed the emotional abuse happens to the author of A Brother's Journey: Surviving a Childhood of Abuse, while this research will analyze the categories of emotional abuse and why the character Victoria faced emotional abuse from her parents and the impacts to her and to the environment around.

B. Emotional Abuse

1. Definition of Emotional Abuse

Gordon and Leach states that emotional abuse is a form of relationship violence characterized by a pattern of behaviors that result in an injury to an innocent party. It occurs within families, corporations, health care, religious and quasi-religious settings (Bob Gardon & Kelley Leach, 2010 : 24-26).

Davies (2013 : 1) defines that Emotional abuse is commonly defined as systematic attacks on a child's emotional well-being and sense of self-worth. It is based on power and control and often accompanies other forms of abuse. Emotional abuse is the most challenging form of child maltreatment to identify and stop. Since it is difficult to detect, assess and substantiate, many cases go unreported. Yet, emotional abuse leaves deep, hidden scars in children that can impede their intellectual, social and emotional development. Educators need to be informed about emotional abuse and steps need to be taken if abuse is suspected.

On the other hand, as Charles Wenar concludes through his book Developmental Psychopathology that emotional abuse is a part of abusive behavior which uneasy to recognize because this abuse does not leave any visible scar on the victim, but many expert believe that emotional abuse is as dangerous as any other abuse because it damages the victim's self-esteem (Wenar, 1994: 395)

Based on some definitions about emotional abuse above, the writer can conclude that emotional abuse is an act that hurt someone feeling and occur in social environment.

2. Categories of Emotional Abuse

In order to get an improving analysis, in this research the writer will use the theory of Charles Wenar (1994: 395), a professor emeritus psychology at the Ohio State University. He categorizes emotional abuse between parents to their child into seven categories as follow:

a. Rejecting

Parents who lack the ability to bond will often display rejecting behavior toward a child. They tell a child in variety of ways that he or she is unwanted. They may also tell a child to leave. The child may become the family scapegoat, being blamed for all the family problems.

b. Terrorizing

Parents may single out one child to criticize and punish. They may ridicule him or her for displaying normal emotions and have expectations far beyond his or her normal abilities. The child may be threatened with death, mutilation or abandonment.

c. Isolating

A parent who abuses a child through isolation may not allow the child to engage in appropriate activities with his or her peers; may keep a baby in his or her room, not exposed to stimulation; or may prevent teenagers from participating in extracurricular activities. Parents may require the child to stay in his or her room from the time school lets out until the next morning.

d. Degrading

Parents who abuses a child through degrading may treat a child and try to assure them that he or she has no value or unimportant. They do the behavior such as insulting, ridiculing, and imitating to diminish the identity, dignity, and the child's-self worth. Examples: yelling, swearing, publicly humiliating or labeling a child as stupid, mimicking a child's disability, etc.

e. Corrupting

Parents who abuse children through corrupting, usually encourage the children to do such negative things. They permit children to use drugs or alcohol; to watch cruel behavior toward animals; to watch pornographic material and adult sex acts; or to witness or participate in criminal activities such as stealing, assault, prostitution, gambling, etc.

f. Exploiting

Exploiting is to treat a person or situation as an opportunity to gain an advantage for them. Parents who abuse a child by exploiting them may tell him or her to work or do something which can give an advantage to the parents.

g. Denying Emotional Responsiveness

Parents who abuse a child by using this method, usually treat a child as an object or as a job to be done, they interact only when necessary, ignoring a person mental health, and failing to provide care and love for a child in a sensitive and responsive manner.

Another citation which supports the categories above is stated by Oliver in Petro (2002: 1), who divided emotional abuse into seven types as follow:

a. Rejecting

Parents or caregivers who display rejecting behavior toward a child will often [purposefully or unconsciously] let a child know, in a variety of ways, that he or she is unwanted. Putting down a child's worth or belittling their needs are some ways this type of emotional abuse may manifest. Other examples can include telling a child to leave, or worse, to get out of your face, calling him names or telling the child that he is worthless, making a child the family scapegoat or blaming him for family/sibling problems. Refusing to talk to or hold a young child as he grows can also be considered abusive behavior.

- 1) Harsh criticism, belittling, labeling
- 2) Name-calling
- 3) Yelling, screaming or swearing at children
- 4) Humiliation or demeaning jokes
- 5) Teasing about child's mental capabilities or physical appearance
- 6) Refusing love, attention and touch
- 7) Physical or emotional abandonment
- 8) Shunning the child from the family altogether
- 9) Locking kids out of the home to discipline or punish
- 10) Kicking teens out of the home

b. Ignoring

Adults who have had few of their emotional needs met are often unable to respond to the needs of their children. They may not show attachment to the child or provide positive nurturing. They may show no interest in the child, or withhold affection or even fail to recognize the child's presence. Many times the parent is physically there but emotionally unavailable. Failing to respond to or consistently interact with your child constitutes emotional and psychological abuse.

- 1) Inconsistent or no response to a child's invitations to connect
- 2) Failure to attend to an infant's physical, social or emotional needs
- 3) Refusing to acknowledge a child's interests, activities, schooling, peers, etc.
- 4) Abandonment or refusing to acknowledge child as your own
- 5) Denying medical or health care, and safe, clean environments
- 6) Inability or failure to engage a child emotionally or protect a child from harm

c. Terrorizing

Parents who use threats, yelling and cursing are doing serious psychological damage to their children. Singling out one child to criticize and punish or ridiculing her for displaying normal emotions is abusive. Threatening a child with harsh words, physical harm, abandonment or in extreme cases death is unacceptable. Even in jest, causing a child to be terrified by the use of threats and/or intimidating behavior is some of the worst emotional abuse. This includes witnessing, hearing or knowing that violence is taking place in the home.

- 1) Excessive teasing, screaming, cursing, raging at a child
- 2) Threatening or intimidating behaviors - scaring a child or others in front of a child
- 3) Unpredictable, unreasonable or extreme reactions

- 4) Verbal threats to harm the child, self or others
- 5) Hostility among family members
- 6) Inconsistent or unreasonable demands placed on a child
- 7) Ridiculing or humiliating a child in front of others
- 8) Threatening to reveal personal or embarrassing information

d. Isolating

A parent who abuses a child through isolation may not allow the child to engage in appropriate activities with his or her peers; may keep a baby in his or her room, unexposed to stimulation or may prevent teenagers from participating in extracurricular activities. Requiring a child to stay in his or her room from the time school lets out until the next morning, restricting eating, or forcing a child to isolation or seclusion by keeping her away from family and friends can be destructive and considered emotional abuse depending on the circumstances and severity.

- 1) Leaving a child alone or unattended for long periods of time
- 2) Not permitting a child to interact with other children or maintain friendships
- 3) Keeping a child from appropriate social and emotional stimulation
- 4) Requiring a child stay indoors/in their room or away from peers
- 5) Keeping a child from playing with friends and activities s/he enjoys
- 6) Not permitting a child to participate in social activities, parties or group/family events
- 7) Excessive or extreme punishment for typical childhood behaviors
- 8) Encouraging a child to reject friends or social contact/invitations

e. Corrupting

Parents who corrupt may permit children to use drugs or alcohol, watch cruel behavior toward animals, watch or look at inappropriate sexual content or to witness or participate in criminal activities such as stealing, assault, prostitution, gambling, etc. Encouraging an underage child to do things that are illegal or harmful is abusive and should be reported.

- 1) Encouraging or rewarding unethical or illegal behavior (drugs, stealing, cheating, lying, bullying)
- 2) Promoting or rewarding promiscuity
- 3) Giving a child or using in the presence of a child: drugs, alcohol and other illegal substances
- 4) Allowing or encouraging children to engage in behavior that is harmful to the self or others.

f. Exploiting

Exploitation can be considered manipulation or forced activity without regard for a child's need for development. For instance, repeatedly asking an eight-year-old to be responsible for the family's dinner is inappropriate. Giving a child responsibilities that are greater than a child of that age can handle or using a child for profit is abusive.

- 1) Having expectations beyond the developmental stage of the child
- 2) Forcing a child to participate in unwanted activities without just cause
- 3) Requiring a child to care for a parent or siblings without regard for the child's age or ability

- 4) Using blame, shame, judgment or guilt to condemn child for behavior of others (parents/peers/siblings)
- 5) Unreasonable expectations to perform chores or household duties
- 6) Exposing a child to sexually abusive or inappropriate content

Oliver Tuthill theory is the supporting theory for this research. Both of those theories are almost same, just different in the name of every subdivision but actually have the same point. This supporting theory will make the writer easy in analyzing the data because has been clear explanation.

3. Effect of Emotional Abuse

Emotional abuse is like brain washing in that it systematically wears away at the victim's self-confidence, sense of self-worth, trust in their own perceptions, and self-concept. Whether it is done by constant berating and belittling, by intimidation, or under the guise of "guidance," "teaching," or "advice," the results are similar. Eventually, the recipient of the abuse loses all sense of self and remnants of personal value. Emotional abuse cut to the very core of a person, creating scars that may be far deeper and more lasting than physical ones (Engel (1992) in Sue, 2013:1).

People who suffer emotional abuse, also known as psychological maltreatment, are forever altered in their ability to create stable emotional, psychological, and/or social development. The effects of emotional abuse may include insecurity, poor self-esteem, destructive behavior, withdrawal, poor development of basic skills, alcohol or drug abuse, suicide, difficulty forming relationships, and instability in holding a job (Children.org, 2005).

The victim of emotional abuse will get an emotional disorder, being very aware of the environment that turn them into fear, and have a little self confidence or self respect for their self. For example: a family with parents and their children. One of the children was take a different treatment from his parents. The treatment was put him into a bad position unlike his other brother. He was the only one who will take the punishment whenever mistakes happen. The parents often told him that he was unwanted child and he does not suppose to be born. The statement from his parents will hurt him emotionally. The next result is he will be a low-esteem person, hard to socialize because he felt that no one in this world will accept him (Hamby in Fenny, 2005: 10).

C. Biography

Danielle Steel was born on August 14th, 1947. She is an American novelist, currently the bestselling author alive and the fourth bestselling author of all time, with over 800 million copies sold.

Based in California for most of her career, Steel has produced several books a year, often juggling up to five projects at once. All her novels have been bestsellers, including those issued in hardback. Her formula is fairly consistent, often involving rich families facing a crisis, threatened by dark elements such as jail, fraud, blackmail and suicide.

Steel has also published children's fiction and poetry, as well as raising funds for the treatment of mental illness. Her books have been translated into 28 languages, with 22 adapted for television, including two that have received Golden Globe nominations.

D. Synopsis

Big girl take place in LA the most populous city in the U.S. state of California and the second most populous in the United States, after New York City. The story is narrated by Victoria Regina Dawson, a chubby little girl with blond hair, blue eyes, and ordinary looks. She is born to parents who have perfect physical. She is named by her parents Victoria since her birth because she is like Queen Victoria, a queen of Great Britain. Initially, she is happy because she is like a queen until she finds out the fact that a queen Victoria has a fat body and an ugly face.

After she is six years old, she gets a new sister named Grace. Her father Dawson disappointed again because his baby is a girl not a boy, but he is happy because his baby is beautiful like her parents. Victoria and Grace are different. Grace is more beautiful than she is, but she loves her sister much. Since child Victoria treats her sister.

Now she is an adult and she is also fatter and cleverer than before. Her mother scares if no one like her. While her parents and sister can eat anything and not gain an ounce, Victoria must watch everything she eats, as well as endure her father's belittling comments about her body and see her academic achievements go unacknowledged. Ice cream and oversized helpings of all the wrong foods give her comfort, but only briefly. The one thing she knows is that she has to get away from home, and after college in Chicago, she moves to New York city.

Landing her dream job as a high school teacher, Victoria loves working with her students and wages war on her weight at the gym. Despite tension with her parents, Victoria remains close to her sister. And though they couldn't be more different in looks, they love each other unconditionally. But regardless of her accomplishments, Victoria's parents know just what to say to bring her down. She will always be her father's “big girl,” and her mother's constant disapproval is equally unkind.

When Grace announces her engagement to a man who is an exact replica of their narcissistic father, Victoria worries about her sister's future happiness, and with no man of her own, she feels like a failure once again. As the wedding draws near, a chance encounter, an act of stunning betrayal, and a family confrontation lead to a turning point.

Behind Victoria is a lifetime of hurt and neglect she has tried to forget, and even ice cream can no longer dull the pain. Ahead is a challenge and a risk: to accept herself as she is, celebrate it, and claim the victories she has fought so hard for and deserves. Big girl or not, she is terrific and discovers that herself.

CHAPTER III

METHODOLOGY OF THE RESEARCH

A. Research Method

The method that used in this research is qualitative descriptive method. It is a method that used to analyze interpreting the data in the form of words of picture rather than number (Bogdan and Biklen in Sugiono, 2010: 21).

B. Source of Data

In this research, the writer used source of data from Danielle Steel's novel "Big Girl". There are twenty six chapters that consist of 442 pages. The writer took some sentences from the novel to analyze the categories and the effects of emotional abuse.

C. Instrument of the Research

In this research, the writer used note taking as the instrument to collect data. Ray (2005: 13) defines note taking is a method in assembling data required by using note cards to write down the data findings from source of data. By using this instrument, the writer made some notes from source of data to classify sentences that related to the object of the research.

D. Procedures of Data Collection

In collecting data, the writer followed the procedures as follows:

1. The writer read Big Girl novel by Danielle Steel.

2. The writer took note cards to write down the data from The Big Girl novel which has relation to the emotional abuse.
3. After all the data had been written down on the note cards, the writer will arrange it based on the color of the cards. There are 7 colors of the cards the writer used for the categories of emotional abuse such as (1) Red : rejecting, (2) White: terrorizing, (3) Green: isolating, (4) Yellow: degrading, (5) Chocolate: corrupting, (6) Pink: exploiting (7) Orange: denying emotional responsiveness.
4. Then, the writer classified and identified the categories and the effects of emotional abuse in Danielle Steel's novel "Big Girl".

E. Technique of Data Analysis

In analyzing data, the writer classified all the data and described them based on Wenar's theory about the categories of emotional abuse. According to him (1994: 395) emotional abuse is divided into 7 categories such as rejecting, terrorizing, isolating, degrading, corrupting, exploiting and denying emotional responsiveness. The writer just took The writer used this theory to analyze emotional abuse in the novel. It carried the researcher to find the category of emotional abuse.

CHAPTER IV

FINDING AND DISCUSSION

This chapter consists of findings and discussions part to show the result of this research. The writer would like to present what have been found from the Danielle Steel's novel "Big Girl". The writer carry out all the quotes that symbolized emotional abuse found in the novel.

A. Findings

In this research, the writer presented the data analysis based on the seven categories of emotional abuse in Danielle Steel's novel "Big Girl". According to Charles Wenar (1994: 395) emotional abuse divides into seven categories. They are rejecting, terrorizing, isolating, degrading, corrupting, exploiting and denying emotional responsiveness. . After analyzing the data, the writer just found four categories of emotional abuse in novel. They are rejecting, isolating, degrading and denying emotional responsiveness. The writer put all the quotes in a table and classifying them based on the categories above. To understand the data collection, the writer presented explanation that Ch is chapter, Pg is page, Par is paragraph and Dt is data.

1. Categories of Emotional Abuse

a. Rejecting

- 1) And when he saw the baby the nurse presented to him at the nursery window, for a minute, or longer, he thought the baby he was seeing, had been switched. The baby had a perfectly round face with chubby cheeks that bore no resemblance to either of them, with a halo of white blond hair. And more shocking than her features or coloring, it was a girl. This was not the baby they had expected, .... (Steel, Ch-1/Pg-12-13/Par-8/Dt-1).

- 2) Like Jim, she found it hard to believe that this chubby white blond baby was theirs. (Steel, Ch-1/Pg-15/Par-10/Dt-2).
- 3) “You’re going to regret that appetite one day, young lady,” her father always warned her. “You don’t want to be overweight by the time you go to college.” (Steel, Ch-3/Pg-34/Par-6/Dt-3).
- 4) “You’ll need more than that,” Christine had said. It worried her sometimes that Victoria was so smart. “Men don’t always like smart girls,” she said, looking worried. “You have to look attractive too.” She had been nagging her about her weight in the past year, (Steel, Ch-3/Pg-38/Par-12/Dt-4).
- 5) She wanted Victoria to be thin too, not just smart. (Steel, Ch-3/Pg-38/Par-12/Dt-5).
- 6) He referred far more often to her body than he did to her excellent grades. He expected that of her, but always made it clear that he was disappointed by her looks, as though she had failed somehow, and it was a reflection on him. (Steel, Ch-3/Pg-40/Par-13/Dt-6)
- 7) Her mother thought she should cut her hair and start an exercise program in the fall. She wanted her to do gymnastics or ballet, without realizing how uncomfortable Victoria was about appearing in front of other girls in a leotard. Victoria would have died first. (Steel, Ch-3/Pg-40/Par-14/Dt-7).
- 8) And then he turned to Victoria with a fierce look in his eye. “How could you leave her alone like that?” Victoria was crying, shaken by what had happened, with her wet shirt glued to her body over her bathing suit. (Steel, Ch-3/Pg-41/Par-17/Dt-8).
- 9) Her father had made fun of her all her life, and her mother had been disappointed that she wasn’t prettier, complained that she was too smart, and told her men didn’t like smart women. (Steel, Ch-4/Pg-63/Par-2/Dt-9).

10) “Wow! The ice cream must be good in New York,” he commented, grinning broadly, and her mother looked pained, not at his comment but at Victoria’s appearance. (Steel, Ch-10/Pg-167/Par-12/Dt-10).

11) She wasn’t pretty enough to find a man, according to her father, and much too fat to attract one. And according to her mother, she was too intelligent to keep one. Either way, she had no one. (Steel, Ch-15/Pg-254/Par-5/Dt-11).

b. Isolating

12) Her parents very seldom let her have friends over, so her social life was limited. ... And she never liked any of Victoria’s friends when she met them. She always found fault with them for one reason or another, so Victoria stopped asking to invite them. (Steel, Ch-3/Pg-34/Par-7/Dt-12)

13) Gracie’s graduation was a gala celebration, Whereas Victoria’s graduation, even from college, had been dealt with quietly, their parents allowed Gracie to invite a hundred kids to a barbecue in the backyard, (Steel, Ch-15/Pg-251/Par-1/Dt-13).

c. Degrading

14) He gave a hollow laugh, which was another bad and familiar sign. “It’s amazing how genes skip generations, isn’t it? Victoria looks exactly like my grandmother, she always has, and nothing like us. (Steel, Ch-25/Pg-426-427/Par-31/Dt-14).

15) “Yes, it’s a girl,” he finally mustered as a tear squeezed out the corner of Christine’s eye. “She looks like Queen Victoria.” And then he teased Christine a little. “I don’t know who the father is, but she looks like she has blue eyes, and she’s blond.” .... (Steel, Ch-1/Pg-13-14/Par-10/Dt-15).

16) Jim always commented that she’d been named for Queen Victoria, whom she looked like, and then laughed heartily. (Steel, Ch-1/Pg-17/Par-13/Dt-16).

- 17) her father teased Victoria and said he hoped it wouldn't look like her. He never failed to remind her that she looked like his grandmother .... (Steel, Ch-2/Pg 21/Par-2/Dt-17)
- 18) "I guess you were our little tester cake," he said, ruffling her hair affectionately. "This time we got the recipe just right," he commented happily, (Steel, Ch-2/Pg-25/Par-9/Dt-18)
- 19) Jim poured champagne for the adults, and smiled at Victoria. There was always something faintly ironic about the way he looked at her, as though they shared a joke, or as though she was the joke. (Steel, Ch-2/Pg-28/Par-13/Dt-19)
- 20) Her father always made an issue that she was too heavy for him to pick her up, while he tossed Grace in the air like a feather. (Steel, Ch-3/Pg-33/Par-4/Dt-20).
- 21) "You look more like your great-grandmother every day" was all her father said, but it made the point. (Steel, Ch-3/Pg-52/Par-29/Dt-21).
- 22) "Great speech," he complimented her. "It'll make all the weirdos in your class feel good," (Steel, Ch-3/Pg-58/Par-38/Dt-22).
- 23) her father introduced her to a business associate as his tester cake. (Steel, Ch-4/Pg-61/Par-1/Dt-23).
- 24) Her father had commented, when she took her gown off after graduation to return it, that she looked bigger than ever. (Steel, Ch-7/Pg-113/Par-8/Dt-24).
- 25) Jim offered to barbecue some steaks in the backyard, and he turned toward the backseat and winked at his older daughter. "I don't need to ask you, I know you're hungry. (Steel, Ch-7/Pg-117/Par-15/Dt-25).
- 26) "Are you sick?" her father said with a straight face. "I've never seen you turn down a potato." (Steel, Ch-7/Pg-118/Par-17/Dt-26).

27) “Leave it to your sister to find the richest kid on campus,” their father said proudly, (Steel, Ch-15/Pg-271/Par-31/Dt-27).

28) “Let them have it, dear, they’re all younger than you are. They’ll all get married one day. You don’t even know if you ever will.” (Steel, Ch-26/Pg-437/Par-10/Dt-28).

d. Denying Emotional Responsiveness

29) “You’ll never make decent money as a teacher. You should major in communications, and work in advertising or PR. (Steel, Ch-4/Pg-63/Par-11/Dt-29).

30) “I was afraid you’d do something like that,” her father said with a disapproving tone. He actually sounded disappointed in her, as though she’d been arrested for taking her clothes off in a supermarket and was in jail. As in why did you go and do a dumb thing like that? “You’re never going to make a penny as a teacher, Victoria. You need to get a real job, in advertising or PR, or something in the communications field. (Steel, Ch-7/Pg-107/Par-2/Dt-30).

31) “Really? How much are they paying you?” he asked bluntly. (Steel, Ch-7/Pg-107/Par-2/Dt-31).

32) “You don’t want to be poor for the rest of your life, do you?” he said with a look of contempt. “You can’t afford to be a teacher, and I’m not going to subsidize you forever,” he commented bluntly. (Steel, Ch-7/Pg-113/Par-10/Dt-32).

33) “Anyone can teach, Victoria. All you do is babysit those rich kids anyway.” (Steel, Ch-12/Pg-197/Par-5/Dt-33).

34) Don’t expect something like this if you ever get married,” he warned her. “If you find some guy to marry, you’d better elope. (Steel, Ch-19/Pg-320-321/Par-6/Dt-34).

B. Discussion

In this part, the writer presents the data analysis that had been found in Danielle Steel's novel "Big Girl". The writer is as the reader of the novel identified the categories of emotional abuse based on Wenar's theory. Then, the writer determined the effect of emotional abuse based on hamby's theory.

Quotation analysis based on wenar's theory in Danielle Steel's novel "Big Girl";

1. Categories of Emotional Abuse

a. Rejecting

In the datum 1 until datum 11 includes rejecting. Rejecting according to Wenar is parents who lack the ability to bond will often display rejecting behavior toward a child. They refuse a child presence, blame or scapegoat and tell the child that he or she is unwanted.

The quote in the datum 1, can be categorized as rejecting. In this case Victoria's father is shock after seeing his first daughter. The baby had a perfectly round face with chubby cheeks that bore no resemblance to either of them, with a halo of white blond hair. And more shocking than her features or coloring, it was a girl. He never hope will get a daughter but in contrary.

In the datum 2, it is also rejecting behavior toward a child. Victoria's father is still hard to believe that his baby is not like them. The baby has a blond hair, long legs, and fat. The baby is not looked like them. So it makes them hard to receive that the baby is theirs.

In datum 3, it is rejecting. In this case Victoria's father does not like if someday his daughter will be overweight. He wanted his daughter be like them, because in their family only his daughter who has a big body.

In the datum 4 and datum 5, it is rejecting because Victoria's mother always commented on her physical. According to her mother, physical is more important to attract someone than smart. She should look attractive too. Furthermore, her mother wanted Victoria to be thin.

In the datum 6, it is rejecting. Victoria's father expected his daughter is good looking like the two of them (Jim and Christine), but in fact she does not look like them. He was disappointed by her looks.

In the datum 7, it includes rejecting. Once more her mother criticizes Victoria. She wanted her to have a perfect look by cutting her hair and start an diet exercise program. This show if Victoria's mother disappointed with her daughter's body.

In the datum 8, it includes rejecting. In this case Victoria is being blame by her father because Grace (her younger sister) almost sink when they are in the beach for vacation. Her father scared a lot, because Grace is his lovely daughter. From this moment, Victoria becomes a scapegoat.

In the datum 9, it is rejecting. In this case, Victoria always becomes a joke for her father. On the other hand, her mother disappointed because she is not pretty and too smart for a girl. Both of her parents show once more how they cannot accept Victoria's presence.

In the datum 10, it is rejecting because Jim as Victoria's father indirectly shows that he does not like if Victoria becoming fat. He commented on her daughter. He said that what Victoria ate is the causes of her obesity. This show if Jim always disappointed to his daughter's look.

In the datum 11, it is rejecting. The quote shows that Victoria's parents always comment on her physic. They just look their daughter physically not her intelligence. They think that beautiful is better than smart. This indicated if Jim and Christine do not like Victoria's body.

b. Isolating

In the datum 12 until datum 13 include isolating. Isolating according Wenar is a parents who may not allow the child to engage in appropriate activities with his or her peers. There is a limitation to the child.

Datum 12 shows Victoria's parents do not allow her friends come to her house. Her mother also does not interest with her friends. So Victoria stop invites her friends coming to her house. His mother, Christine, makes limitation to her daughter to engage with her peers.

Next is datum 13. In this case, there is differentiating between Victoria and Grace. In Gracie's graduation her mother makes a gala celebration, whereas Victoria's graduation just a simple celebration. Her father allow Gracie to invite a hundred kids to a barbecue in the backyard while Victoria not. This shows that there is limitation for Victoria.

c. Degrading

Datum 14 until datum 32 included degrading. Degrading according Wenar is parents who abuses a child with assure them that she or he has no value or unimportant. They do behavior such as insulting, ridiculing, and imitating to diminish the identity, dignity, and the child's self worth.

The quote in datum 14, her father said that she will always look his grandmother not like them (Jim and Christine). They have a perfect body while Victoria not. She is just like her grandmother who had a bad face, blond hair and fat body. This shows that Jim actually does not like Victoria existence as his daughter and insult her indirectly.

Datum 15 shows that Victoria also is like Queen Victoria from her father eyes. He said like Queen Victoria not because she is beautiful but he looks his daughter is so bad. It is why he said she is like Queen Victoria.

Same with datum 15, in datum 16 also shows her father view with her body. He is yelling her daughter for the name of Victoria. He calls her Daughter Victoria and laughed heartily.

Next datum 17, when Victoria will get a new sister, her father said to her that he hope the second daughter would not like her who also like his grandmother. He does not want to have a bad child like her.

Next is datum 18. In this case, her father gets a new daughter. She is beautiful. She is like her mother. So her father said to Victoria that she is their tester cake and have got the recipe to gets the right one.

In datum 19, Jim, Victoria's father always makes Victoria to become his joking. If he looks Victoria, he always wants to joke her and then laugh as he want. She never gets caring or loving from her parents specially her father, just yelling and laughingstock.

Datum 20 still shows when his father insulted her body. He said that her body too heavy to pick up while Grace just like a feather in the air. He never stop to insult his daughter body.

In datum 21, her father always controls Victoria's body. If he see biggest than before, he will said that every day you are like your grandmother. Just it he can do for her first daughter.

Datum 22, Jim give good comment but the end he still ridicule her first daughter. Victoria does not understand why her father always makes her like that. She does not know, her father stupid or wicked.

Same with datum 18, datum 23 also shows Victoria's father as a bad father. He introduces Victoria with his friends that she is his taster cake. Why he calls taster cake because she is fat and bad, unlike his second daughter Grace, she is beautiful like her mother.

In datum 24, there is always time to insult her first daughter. When the graduation, he had commented his first daughter that after she taken off her gown, she will look bigger than ever. He never gives good comment to his child, just bad comment.

In datum 25 and datum 26, her father still insults his first daughter. Indirectly he asks to his child, Victoria, that she is greedy. He just says with the smooth language but the point is harsh.

In datum 27, he still humiliates her first daughter. In this case, Victoria too bad and cannot find the richest man like Grace got. Just Grace can do it because she is beautiful and she is not. He is proud with Grace and not for Victoria.

The last is datum 28. It is also degrading. When Grace wants to throw the bouquet, her mother comes near beside Victoria. She said that, she will impossible to gets the bouquet. And she will be a spinster.

d. Denying Emotional Responsiveness

Datum 29 until datum 34 includes denying emotional responsiveness. Denying emotional responsiveness according Wenar is parents who usually treat a child as an object or as a job to be done. They interact only when necessary and ignoring all about the child.

Datum 29, datum 30, datum 31, datum 32 and datum 33 have a same case. Her father, Jim, disagree if Victoria becomes a teacher. He thinks that she will get money if just teaching. She will be poor and does not get anything. Although Victoria has given his good reason, he still does not want if Victoria becomes a teacher. He never hears her reason. He think Victoria never take a right way, always wrong. He always ignores what Victoria said. He always refuses her child's interest and never supports her.

The last, datum 34, Victoria's father shows his uncared to Victoria. When her beautiful daughter married, he makes a big celebration and said to the Victoria that she will not get a party like this. He just allows his first daughter to elope. He never cares about his first daughter feeling. He ignores her existence and never thinks that she is in around them.

2. The Effects of Emotional Abuse

a. Rejecting

From all the data and discussion above, we can see how rejecting behavior is shown by parents (Jim and Christine) to their child (Victoria). They show rejecting with different ways. As the result of these rejecting, the victim of rejecting (Victoria) got an effect to her psychological. The effect of these rejecting we can see from the quote below:

She felt like one of those picture cards they held up at school that showed an apple, an orange, a banana, and a pair of galoshes, while the teacher asked which one was different. In her family, Victoria was always the galoshes. It was a strange feeling she'd had all her life, of being different, and not fitting in. At least if one of her parents had looked like her, she would have felt as though she belonged. But as it was, she didn't, she was the one person out of sync, and no one had ever called her a beauty, as they did Gracie. (Steel, Ch-3/Pg-34/Par-5/).

They had no concept of how out of place and unwelcome they had made her feel for so long. Gracie was like their only child, and she felt like the family stray dog. (Steel, Ch3/Pg56/Pr35).

She talked about how different she had felt all her life, how out of step, and how hard she had tried to conform. (Steel, Ch3/Pg56/Pr36).
unacceptable to them, and a crime they could never quite forgive her, and didn't even try. Instead they made fun of her and diminished and dismissed her. They always made her feel unwanted and not really good enough for them. (Steel, Ch7/Pg123/Pr25).

All the quotes above show how Victoria's feeling as the victim of her parents rejecting. She thinks that she is not the part of her perfect family. She feels different all her life. Even she senses that she is the family stray dog. These are caused by how her parents feel that they never have daughter like Victoria.

b. Isolating

From all the data and discussion above, we can see how isolating behavior is shown by parents (Jim and Christine) to their child (Victoria). They show isolating with different ways. As the result of these isolating, the victim of isolating (Victoria) got an effect to her psychological. The effect of these isolating we can see from the quote below:

As a result, no one invited Victoria over after school, since she never reciprocated .... The drama of her early school years was being the only child in fourth grade who didn't get a valentine. She had come home in tears. (Steel, Ch3/Pg-34/Par-7).

All the quotes above show how Victoria's feeling as the victim of her parents isolating. Because of her parents isolating, Victoria during her life only has a few friends. No one wants to be friends of her. The social life of Victoria was also limited by her parents. Besides, she is hard to engage with her peers.

c. Degrading

From all the data and discussion above, we can see how degrading behavior is shown by parents (Jim and Christine) to their child

(Victoria). They show degrading with different ways. As the result of these degrading, the victim of degrading (Victoria) got an effect to his or herself. The effect of these degrading we can see from the quote below:

For one tiny instant, Victoria wished that someone else had been the tester cake, and they had felt about her the way they obviously did about Grace. She wished that she was a victory and not a failure of the recipe or the oven temperature. (Steel, Ch2/Pg27/Pr12)

Her father's comments about her looks always made her sad. And her mother pretended not to hear, never reassured her, and never came to her defense. Victoria knew instinctively that her mother was disappointed by her looks too. (Steel, Ch3/Pg39/Pr13)

All the quotes above show how Victoria's feeling as the victim of her parents degrading. Because of her parents degrading, Victoria feels less confident. Victoria never looks herself as a beautiful person. The only view she sees from herself is that she looks like her grandmother who has no resemblance to her parents. Besides, she is also sad if she heard her father's comment about herself.

d. Denying Emotional Abuse

From all the data and discussion above, we can see how denying emotional responsiveness behavior is shown by parents (Jim and Christine) to their child. They show denying emotional responsiveness with different ways. As the result of this denying emotional responsiveness, the victim of denying emotional responsiveness

(Victoria) got an effect to his or herself. The effect of denying emotional responsiveness we can see from the quote below:

She was leaving home, and might never live with them again.

(Steel, Ch4/Pg62/Pr1)

The quote above show how is Victoria's feeling when she becomes the victims of this kinds of emotional abuse. Al last, Victoria chooses to leave her home. She will continue her school outside of town. This is caused by her parents who never care to her. They only pay attention to their second daughter so she decided to desert her life with her parents.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter provides conclusion and suggestion. After finding the categories of emotional abuse and the effect of emotional abuse that used in “Big Girl” novel by Danielle Steel, the writer gives some conclusions and suggestions to the readers.

A. Conclusion

After analyzing the data, the writer concludes the result of the research, they are:

1. In “Big Girl” novel by Danielle Steel the writer found many categories of emotional abuse. Emotional abuse is an act that hurt someone feeling and occurring in social environment. But in this case the emotional abuse occurs in the family environment. Based on Wenar’s theory, there are seven categories of emotional abuse but after the writer analyzed “Big Girl” novel by Danielle Steel, she just found four categories in the novel, they are rejecting, isolating, degrading and denying emotional responsiveness. There are eleven data about rejecting, there are two data about isolating, there are fifteen data about degrading and there are six data about denying emotional responsiveness.
2. In fact, emotional abuse gives a big effect to the main character. Generally, emotional abuse will damage the psychological side of the victim. Specifically, the forth categories emotional abuse found in the novel brought different effect to the victim of these. Rejecting will make the victim felt like another person in her family. The victim will think that she is unwanted. Isolating will make the victim hard to engage with her peers. Degrading will make the victim feel less confident. The victim will sense that she or no value. And the last, denying emotional responsiveness will make the victim felt if her parents never care to her or being ignored.

B. Suggestion

1. The reader should be able to find another aspect of emotional abuse besides the category and the effect by reading any sources relevance to emotional abuse.
2. The lecturers especially for English literature lecturers department could make emotional abuse become one of the subjects in this department. Why? Because emotional abuse not just happen between parents and their child but it could happen with the other categories. So it needs deep understanding.
3. The writer expects to the next researcher to analyze the other aspect of abuse, not only emotional abuse but maybe the other aspect such as sexual or physical abuse.
