ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

Alhamdulillah, all praises belong to Allah for this mercies and blessing so that I can finish my thesis entitled The Differences between Male and Female in BPEC at Fort Rotterdam in Using Speech Expression as a requirement for the degree of Sarjana Sastra. Sholawat and Salam are delivered to the Prophet Muhammad SAW who has guided his follower to the new civilization of Islam.

The researcher realized that there were some problems faced by her in accomplishing this research. Those problems could not be solved without getting assistance, support, helps, motivations, criticisms, encouragement and guidance from many people. Therefore, the researcher would like to express her deepest gratitude to the following:

1. The researcher's beloved family Abd. Rauf and Hindong for all their prayers, supports and eternally affections as the biggest influence in her success and happy life.
2. Prof. Dr. H. Musafir Pabbahari, M.Si. as the Rector of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar, who has given his chance to study in English and Literature Department so that he could finish his study.
3. Dr. H. Barsihannor, M. Ag as the Dean of Adab dan Humanities Faculty, H.Muhammad Nur Akbar M.Pd., M.Ed., Ph.D. as the Head of English and Literature Department and Syahrani Junaid, S.S., M.Pd. as the Secretary of English and Literature Department for their support, help and encouragement.

4. Sardian Maharani Asnur, S.Pd., M.Pd as her first supervisor and Rabiatul Adawiah S.Hum., M.Hum as the second supervisor who have made so much time, guided, advised, and given her corrections and suggestions during completing her thesis.
5. Dr. Umar Thamrin, S.Ag., M.Hum., M.A and Serliah Nur, S.Pd., M.Hum., M.Ed as her examiners for their advices, criticism and suggestion.
6. The lecturers of Adab and Humanities Faculty, for their knowledge and enlightenment, also to the staffs of Adab and Humanities Faculty for their help and administrative support.
7. Her beloved friends Icachaerunnisa, Zulfikri, Fatima, Indiramimo Sapudica, Mely, especially for my best sister Ijhy who always listen to whatever she says, give a hand, advice the best deal, forbid unimportant thing and stand by her. Unforgettably her friends in English and Literature Department 2013, especially AG 3-4 whom she shares experience and knowledge during her study and writing. They make their wonderful contributions.

In the deepest heart, the researcher realizes that this thesis is imperfect and it still needs suggestions and criticisms. Despite of its imperfection, she hopes that this thesis will be useful for the students, the lecturers and the readers in general who need it. May Allah Swt always bless us in every single thing we do.

This reserach investigated the major feature of speech features used by men and women in BPEC at fort Rotterdam which aimed to find out the types of speech features to discribe the speech feature used by men and women in BPEC at fort Rotterdam. This research applied qualitative descriptive in reveling the data. This research based on Holmes's theory about the types of speech features of social factor. The research found that men and women used all types of speech features. The types of speech features that men and women used are Tag Question, Standart Grammar, Modality and Hesitation.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background of the Research

Allah SWT creates man and woman with different gender where it means also having different role, character in their social life including different in speech. This is the topic which want be analyzed by the researcher. This research tries to connect with the Surah below which Allah said:

يَا أَيُّهَا النَّاسُ إِنَّا خَلَقْنَاكُمْ مِنْ ذَكَرٍ وَأُنْثَىٰ وَجَعَلْنَاكُمْ شُعُوبًا وَقَبَائِلَ لِتَعَارَفُوا إِنَّ أَكْثَرَ
عَلَيْمٍ خَبِيرٍ مَعَكُمْ عِنْدَ اللَّهِ أَتَقَاكُمْ إِنَّ اللَّهَ

In the same manner Allah says in Holy Qur'an Surah Al-Hujurat verse 13. For you human. Actually, I create you from a man and a woman and create you tribes and nations you may know each other. Actually the loftiest between you in Allah soul is the most pious person between you. Actually Allah is the omniscient.

In the same manner Allah in Surah Al- Hujarat explains about how has their God created them by some differences, different state, different gender and people have to know each other. In understanding all of that, they need language to communicate each other in verbal or non verbal communication and to know what does the partner means.

The research about language and gender emphasizes focus on reciting about the effect of gender in the using of language. The research about the varieties of man and woman speech has revealed the differences character between men and women in using language. One of them is the different of ability in communication, such the general features in using language. In sociolinguistic, the discussion about the different speech between men and women is still interesting to discuss although, the works that make some kinds of theory about the condition have sprang.

Many terms of man and woman speech have found in language and gender. Grimm (2008:8) states that the both of terms of woman and man have characters in speech. Actually, man and woman do not all use the different word. The different is just in using reference of linguistics. The relation of language and gender which usually hear right now is woman and man speech used as a symbol generally about the behavior of man and woman speech. Coates (1986:4) states that, in different social context an individual will speak in different ways. Moreover, Linguists claimed that female are more linguistically polite than male and both of male and female emphasize different speech functions. Holmes (1992:33). It is found that male and female often use different linguistic forms and address terms in speaking English even in the same speech community. The use of the standard might be seen as yet another reflection of women's powerless in the public sphere.

There are many factors that can influence the different style of communication like what Coates (1993) and friends say that the factors which can influence the differences such as social factors, situation of context, physiological factors, psychological factors, and type of discourse.

Woman tends to have unique features in their language compared to man. Recently, many sociolinguistics found that man and woman have different ways of speech. They have different features although they speak same language. Women as a social group have their own language characteristic whether in spoken or written language because women. It can be in form of the vocabulary, grammar, pronunciation, etc. Labotka (2009) said that women are systematically taught to speak with specific language features, and those language features are associated with a lack of power. Language shows social condition of being man and woman rather than their gender identity.

Men and women have different in studying of second language so that they have also different level and skill in speech. This matter can be showed by certain speech features. This research tries to connect some concepts such as studying of second language Brown (1994), Gardner (1993) and also Gender and Language Holmes (1992). According to Gardner(1993) Foreign language learning is a field that is closely related to human psychology. It has been highly affected by psychology and many studies have been performed to find out the relationship between language learning and affective variables. The common point of all these studies is that they reveal the remarkable influence of affective factors on language learning process. The affective variables which are associated with the emotions and feelings of human beings involve certain personality traits or qualities such as self-esteem, empathy and introversion (Brown, 1994).

BPEC can be covered by all concepts above because BPEC is a place to study of second language. All people who join in this community from non English community where they have different age, class of education, and also different culture. The differences can cause different level of speech and most factor that influence the different skill in speech is related to different time to join in this community. Some people who earlier join will speak better than people who have just joined. Although majorities of them are student of university and others are graduation from some university but it cannot guaranty that they have good English because not all of them are student of literature English or English education but they are mostly from other majors. In BPEC they can improve their skill in studying and using second language because in BPEC has three different sections in studying they are discussion, writing and debate.

This research aims investigating how language used differently between men and women in BPEC at Fort Rotterdam and related to the types of speech features by Holmes theory (1992). The one of ways to see the differences between man and woman speech is to join in the community which support the researcher to do the research based on what she has mentioned above. The researcher thinks that BPEC at Fort Rotterdam is a great medium to do the research because it is really suitable with the participants of the research where all people come there to improve their ability in studying second language by sharing their each others. According to Eckret and McConnell-ginet (1992) a community of practice "is an aggregate of people who come together around mutual engagement in an endeavor. Ways of doing things, ways of talking beliefs, values, power relations - in short practices - emerge in the course of this mutual endeavor. There, the writer also will find some men and women who come from different culture, class of education, and different age.

The researcher is interested to analyze the differences in studying second language and differences in using speech features because the researcher believes that men and women are different in using speech features when they are speaking as a reflection of their different ways in second language learning.

B. Questions of the Research

This research is provided to answer the following questions:

1. What are the types of speech feature used by men and women at BPEC?
2. How do men and women use speech features in speaking at BPEC?

C. Objectives of the Research

In accordance with the problem of study, the objectives of this study are intended to achieve:

1. To illustrate what are the types of speech feature used by men and women in BPEC?
2. To describe how men and women different in studying second language in BPEC

D. Significance of the Research

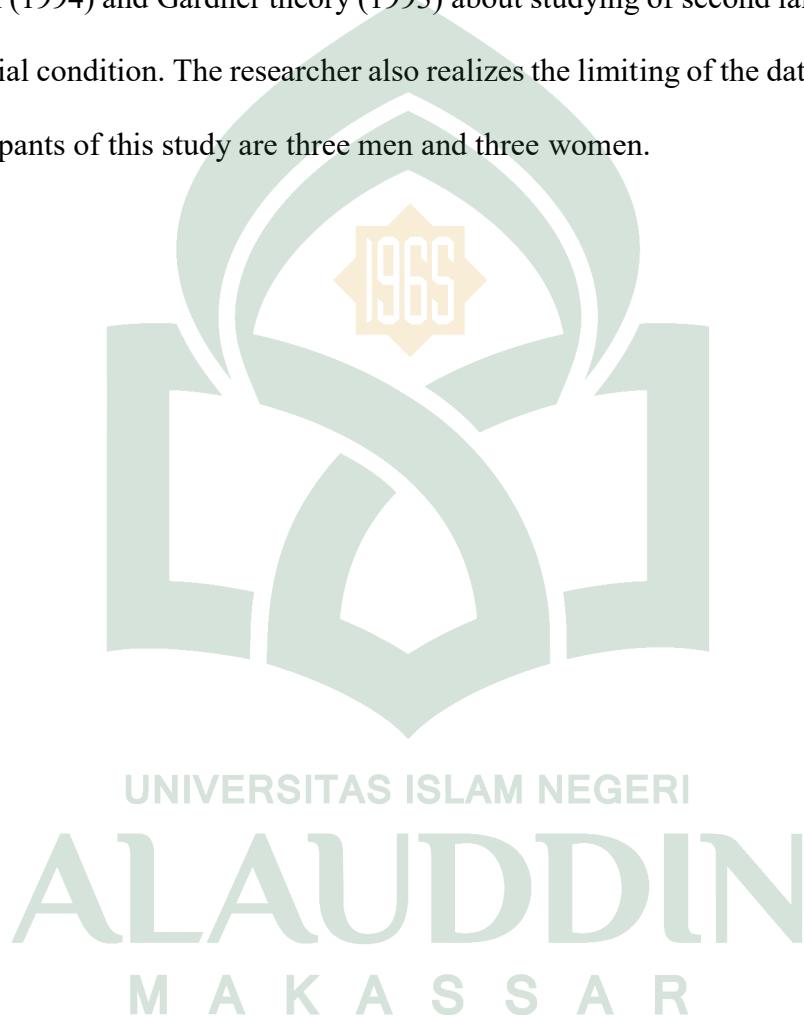

The research expects that it can be more knowledge in understanding speech features and studying second language through observation in BPEC. They can use this study as the example how men and women different use speech features in the community and how men and women differ in studying second language.

Next she also expects that it can be reference for the next research who wants to analyze the differences between men and women in speech.

E. Scope of the Research

The scope of this study focuses on Sociolinguistics study since the study is about the phenomena that often found in the society, especially in studying of second language as seen through in BPEC at Fort Rotterdam, and see their differences in using speech features. The researcher will use Holmes (1995) theory about the types speech features they are: Tag Question, Standard Grammar, Modalities and also supported by Rose (1974) theory about hesitation and also by Brown (1994) and Gardner theory (1993) about studying of second language based on social condition. The researcher also realizes the limiting of the data because the participants of this study are three men and three women.

CHAPTER II

LITERATURE REVIEW

A. Previous Finding

Wiprayanti (2013), in her research about women's language which used by male and female in film, music and lyric which used theory by Coates (1986) and analyzed the film by descriptive quantitative. In her analyzed she found that there are nine of speech features which used the first female character and women but, the kinds of women's speech most used by men not women. It caused by some factors such social status, subordinate groups, prestige and stigma, social network and the acquisition of sex differential language.

Santi (2013), in her research about Comparison of Sexist Language used in the Twilight Saga Eclipse Movie. She used Lakoff theory about the features of speech (1975). She found that the character used all features except, precise color in the conversation. Other side, the features of men speech used theory from Holmes (1992) that found that the men used standard and curse word. While, in analysis of features linguistic of men and women⁷ Coates theory (1986) found that men and women used verbosity, tag question, questions, command and directive, swear word or taboo language. Finally in the analysis found that women are more polite than men. Features of men speech used by women are not standard language, while feature of woman speech used by men is lexical hedges, intensifier, super polite form and hypercorrect grammar.

The two researches above mention that it is a fact that men and women have different features in speech. Based on those theses above, it can be concluded that the similarity among two previous researches and this research is about the examining features of man and woman speech. The differences are related to the using theories. Wiprayanti used; Coates (1986), Santi used; Lakoff (1975), Holmes (1992) and Coates (1986), meanwhile the researcher in her research used Holmes (1992), Brown (1994) and Gardner (1993) in studying language based on gender.

B. Language and Gender

According to Cambridge dictionaries, gender can be defined as the physical and or social condition of being male/ female. Gender is a system in which there are only two possibilities, a person must be a man or women. Cameron (2003) said that gender used in this study refers to the social condition of being man or woman. It is cultural traits and behavior consider appropriate for men and women by a particular society. This behave is constructed by the social values they have. The general usage of the term gender began in the late 1960s and 1970s. This term is used to help the Sociolinguists in distinguishing the many aspect of life that were more easily understood to be social rather than biological origin Speer (2005) cited in Mukminin (2010). Gender is one of the major topics in Sociolinguistics that discusses about the connection between structures, vocabularies and ways of using particular language and the social roles of the men and women who speak these languages Eckert (2003). It is often tried to be presented through language. Eckert (2003) said that biological differences between man and women can determine gender which can cause the difference in their capabilities and disposition. For example, men are considered have higher testosterone, it is causes that they are said to be more aggressive than women. In addition, dominance of man's left brain also leads them to be more rational than women. Men and women in the same community interact with one another regularly and in some context intimately, but their linguistics behavior is different in measurable manners. Speech of women and man differs. In some cases the difference are quite small and not generally noticed. They may use different gestures and facial expressions. The man and woman did not speak different language; they speak different varieties of the same language.

White (2003) claimed that man and woman differ in their linguistic behavior. Man often thought as dominant speakers, while woman is placed in a subordinate role during the conversation process. Woman generally has lower status than man. As Lakoff (1975) cited Labotka (2009) said that sometimes woman language shows their powerlessness and weakness. Women have to use a certain language in order to be accepted by their society. Women tend to use certain language in order to show their femininity rather than masculinity. They sometimes use certain features of speech as their language choices. It means that when there are two ways to pronounce a certain sound, one of the man closer to prestige or standard pronunciations, there will be statically tendency for women to show higher frequency in using prestige pronounce than man. It is because women are more status conscious than men. Holmes (1992) also said that society expect women to speak more correctly and standard than men, especially when they are serving as models for children's speech. People, who are considered as inferior group such as women, usually tend to be polite. By using more standard speech forms, women are looking after their own need to be valued in society.

In conclusion, it is difficult to say that the diversity in using a language by men and women is just caused by their sexual difference. The fact shows that the factor of social and culture plays more important role and determines how men and women should speak. Through language people can show gender as their social identity.

The concept of linguistic feature refers to men and women's linguistic features in doing interaction. Any language forms used by men and women contrast to different degrees in all speech communities, such as the use of negation, the raising intonation, dramatic and undramatic forms. It is claimed that women are more linguistically polite than men. According to Wolfram (1967:76) added that women's language presented sensitive characteristic of language that are given high ratings than men. According to Labov (1990:205) women are consistently more often use language that forms closer prestigious forms, rather than prevailing among men. In fact, according to Labov in a state of steady sociolinguistic stratification, men use more of on standard forms, compared to women. Stereotypes such as women talk more politely and women use more questions has been firmly believed by the public. It cannot override these stereotypes, since unlike the former case; these stereotypes have actually been supported through extensive linguistic research. Women's language has the following features. First, female speakers interrupt less than males in mixed-sex conversations. Second, female speakers use more indirect speech than males. Third, female speakers use more conversational support such as minimal responses than males. Fourth, female speakers use features which indicate tentativeness, such as hedges, tag questions, and other expressions that make them sound hesitant or uncertain

1. Woman's Speech

Woman's speech indicates the characteristic of women's behavior. Because someone's language shows their role in the society, woman should have certain speech features to be shown in their society. Mazidah (2013) said that women experience linguistic discrimination in the way they are taught to use language, and in the way general language treats them. Both of them are related with the function or the role of women in their society. So women have to choose their best language when they interact with other people. Women have to talk like a lady; if they refuse it they are ridiculed and subjected to criticism as unfeminine.

According to Holmes, woman's linguistic behavior can be seen mostly when women used more standard forms than men. In many speech communities, when woman uses more of a linguistic form than man, it is generally the standard form which overtly prestigious form that women favor Holmes (1995) cited in Mazidah (2013). Holmes adds that women used more standard form because of four reasons, they are appeals to social class and its related status, refers to women's role in society, relates to woman's status as a subordinate group, and relates with the function of speech expressing masculinity.

She gives four explanations:

- a. The social class: Holmes suggests that “women are more-status conscious than men” (Holmes, J, 1992, p.164) and that is because women have an inner belief that the way they speak reflects their social class in society and, thus, tend to speak more properly than men. So, women “use more standard speech forms as a way of claiming such status”(Holmes, 1992, p.165). She then shares her study in New York and Norwich where women reported that they use these forms of standard speech because they lack status in society. She claims, but with proof, that “those in paid employment used more standard forms than those working in home”(Holmes, 1992, p.165). However, it is found in an Irish working-class community that women working outside the community “used a much higher percentage of linguistic features associated with high status groups than the older women who are working at home”.(Holmes, 1992, p.165).
- b. The role of women in society: Holmes, with a great talent, starts this subsection with the well-known miss-conception that ‘a woman’s place is in the home’. She also returns that to the fact that society always expects women to act ‘better than men’ She adds, “misbehavior from boys is tolerated where girls are more quickly corrected” (Holmes, 1992, p.165)
- c. The status of women as a subordinate group: Holmes says that “women as a subordinate group, it is argued, must avoid offending men- and so they must speak carefully and politely”(Holmes, 1992, p.166)

- d. The function of speech in expressing gender identity: Holmes concluded that “men prefer vernacular forms because they carry macho connotations of masculinity and toughness.” Holmes (1992, p.166). It is not accepted that women speak in a masculine way. For example, men always tend to use the gerund sound as /in/ as in /sitin/ while girls tend to pronounce the /g/ sound more likely as in /sitin/.

Standard forms are commonly associated with more formal and less personal interaction so the society expects women to use them because women are serving as models for children's speech. Women are also designated the role of modeling correct behavior in the community. Women's language forms are associated with female values and femininity. Here some of the key finding about how women and men use language differently. For Mulacetal (2001) note that men tend to use language reflects more dominant and certain position.

2. Man's Speech

Masculine speech communities define the goals of talk as exerting control, preserving independence, and enhancing status. First, men often use talk to establish and defend their personal status and their ideas, by asserting themselves and or by challenging others. When they wish to comfort or support another, they typically do so by respecting the other's independence and avoiding communication. They regard as condescending Tannen (I990). These tendencies will be clearer as he reviews specific features of masculine talk.

To establish their own status and value, men often speak to exhibit knowledge, skill, or ability. Equally typical is the tendency to avoid disclosing personal information that might make a man appear weak or vulnerable Derlega Chaiken (1976), Lewis & McCarthy (1988), Saurer Eisler (1990). On the relationship level of communication, giving advice does two things.

- a. First, it focuses on instrumental activity-what another should do or be and does not acknowledge feelings.
- b. Second, it expresses superiority and maintaining control. It says "I know what you should do" or "I would know how to handle that." The message may be perceived as implying the speaker is superior to the other person. Between men, advice giving seems understood as a give-and-take, but it may be interpreted as unfeeling and condescending by women whose rules for communicating differ.

The next feature of man's communication is conversational dominance. Despite jokes about women's talkativeness, research indicates that in most contexts, men do not only hold their own but dominate the conversation. Further, men engage in other verbal behaviors that sustain conversational dominance. Not only do men seem to interrupt more than women, but they do so for different reasons. This interpretation is shared by a number of scholars who note that women use interruptions to show support, encourage elaboration, and affirm others Aleguire, (1978), Aries (1987), Mulac et al (1988). Men tend to use swearing and taboo language Jespersen (1992) claim that men swear more than women and use taboo more than women. Compared with women, men communicate more abstractly. They frequently speak in general terms that are removed from concrete experiences and distanced from personal feelings Schaef (1981) Treichler & Kramarae (1983). The abstract style typical of men's speech reflects the public and impersonal contexts in which they often operate and the less personal emphasis in their speech communities.

Man's speech tends not to be highly responsive, especially not on the relationship level of communication Beck (1988); Wood, (1993). Men, more than women, give what are called "minimal response cues" Parlee (1979), which are verbalizations such as "yeah" or "umhmm." In interaction with women, who have learned to demonstrate interest more vigorously, minimal response cues generally inhibit conversation because they are perceived as indicating lack of involvement Fishman (1978); Stewart et al (1990).

3. The Studying of Language in Speaking

The sparse research on the impact of gender in L2 acquisition shows a marked contrast with the massive literature on gender effects in first language acquisition (L1) research In a large meta-analytic study with more than 4 million students, Cole (1997) and Willingham and Cole (1997) concluded that female students retained their language advantage over a period of 30 years Female students fared better in writing and language use (i.e. grammatical conventions, expression, spelling), while small but consistent effect sizes were found for reading and verbal reasoning. According to Ullman (2005) but see for counterevidence, and for a partial confirmation, women, more than men, store verbal information in declarative memory, whereas men more than women tend to use grammatical or procedural memory to produce language and these processes are found to be accommodated by estrogen. This distinction in the prevalence of different memory systems in men and women seems to be relevant for second language learning by adult learners as the availability of the procedural memory decreases more than declarative memory after puberty. As a result, adult female second language learners would be in a more advantageous position than adult male learners, although it is not clear in which language domains a female advantage would occur in particular. Based on the foregoing, it might be hypothesized that, on average, women will perform better than men on speaking and writing proficiencies, because productive skills require active access to all verbal and verbal-related resources available.

Brown (1994: 168), in his great work 'Principles of Language Learning and Teaching' adds: "Attitudes, like all aspects of the development of cognition and affect in human beings, develop early in childhood and are the result of parents' and peers' attitudes, contact with people who are different in any number of ways, and interacting affective factors in the human experience". Here it seems clear that there are many stimulants lead to positive or negative attitude of an individual. The same result was reached in another study: Language learning is very much interplay of personalities – one shouldn't tend to forget that pupils too are human, Sönmez (1994: 64), shares the same idea with Brown; "attitude is a product of all life experiences". Therefore attitude may not come out during school life. But it is the duty of school to help students develop positive attitude towards foreign language. Graham (1990) indicates that females had a significantly more positive attitude.

Baranov (1986) The secondary school students, in the Soviet Union adduces minimal difference between male and female. Csepo & Nikolov (2002), (with 6-8-10 grade-student) reveals a close relationship between students' attitudes towards foreign language and parent education.

4. Motivation in Studying Second Language

Foreign language learning is a field that is closely related to human psychology. It has been highly affected by psychology and many studies have been performed to find out the relationship between language learning and affective variables (Gardner & MacIntyre, 1993; Chastain, 1975; Schumann, 1999; Horwitz, Horwitz and Cope, 1986; Young, 1990; Ely, 1986; Samimy & Tabuse, 1992; Zhanibek, 2001). The affective variables which are associated with the emotions and feelings of human beings involve certain personality traits or qualities such as self-esteem, empathy and introversion (Brown, 1994). Recent literature views the theory of anxiety in relation to language learn and defines the language anxiety as the feeling of tension and apprehension specifically associated with second language context including speaking, listening and learning MacIntyre & Gardner (1993). In literature, several studies Gardner & Lambert, (1972); Mendi, (2009); Csizer & Clement, (2001); Balemir, (2009); Huang, (2004) put forward that gender plays a significant role on foreign language speaking anxiety and learner motivation. According to Brown (1994) female demonstrated a higher level of foreign language learning motivation than male, meanwhile male has less motivation than women.

5. Women are more Anxiety than Men in Speech

The effect that different genders have on each other is quite large, and it affects how a person acts, thinks, and performs throughout his daily life. Because that affects that male and females have on each other, the anxiety that a person has while giving a speech should raise to lack of confidence or will hesitant because of who is the audience that she is performing in front of. Anxiety disorders are the most common class of mental disorders, affecting nearly adult in U.S. Keslerr et al. (2005) One of the most widely documented findings in psychiatric epidemiology is that women significantly higher levels of anxiety than men included being criticized or embarrassed and speaking in public or talking to people with authority while men are more relax than women when they are talking.

C. Holmes's Theory

Janet Holmes (1992) and Tannen (1990) says that “women are more linguistically polite than men” Holmes (1992, p.157). However, Holmes focuses more on how men and women of the same speech community speak differently. She offers various examples of different speech communities as evidence that men and women within one speech community speak differently. She starts with how women and men in the same speech community not speaking a different dialect but a totally different language. Holmes (1992) then explains that women regardless of their class or age, tend to use “tag question than men, more standard forms than men, women also modality their speech more often than men.

1. Tag Question

A short question at the end of a declarative statement is often used by women to soften the sting of potential disagreement or invite to open friendly dialogue. It is also applied when the speaker is starting a claim, but lacks of confidence in truth of claim. It decreases the strength of assertions. Several studies confirmed that English speakers assume a connection between tag question and female linguistic usage. Tannent (1995: 104). Employing tag question in conversation is aimed at:

- a. Giving the addressee freedom, not forcing him or her to go along with the speaker.
- b. Making small talks, trying to elicit conversation from the addressee.
- c. Asking one's opinion in polite way in discussing personal feeling.

Avoiding to assert herself in strong way there by to avoid coming in conflict with the addressee. Examples of tag questions are as follows:

1. She doesn't really want to book the villa, does she?
2. You don't remember my name, do you?

Other studies e.g. Dubois & Crouch, (1975) show that there is no clear gender difference in the use of tag-questions Bonvillian (2007:334). Furthermore, Holmes (1984), who divided the tag questions into different categories, stated that men more often use tags for speaker oriented goals, to obtain or confirm information about themselves, whereas women more often use tags for addressee-oriented goals, particularly as strategies to engage addressees in talk Bonvillian (2007:335). However, the research by Bonvillian (2007) shows that though women and men do not differ greatly in total usage, women tend to use more tags Coates (1993:120). Other researchers claim that the use of tag-questions varies depending on the “powerless” or “powerful” roles of the speakers and although they do not discuss gender differences, the results from their study show that powerful men are more likely than powerful women to use modal tags, and powerful women are more likely than powerful men to use affective tags Bonvillian (2007:335). Moreover, some research on the use of tag-questions show that people tend to believe that women use more of them than men do Coates (1993:119).

2. Standard Grammar

Women use more standard forms than men- men use more ‘stigmatized forms’ e.g. double negative etc I ain’t got none etc and tend to have stronger regional accents. Reduced forms or phrases refer to the feature in English where by two or more words are spoken as one. These forms are generated when unstressed function words are contracted, deleted, assimilated or reduced to combine with other function words or content words of a sentence. Common reduced forms in English are gonna for going to, wanna for want to, outta for out of, gotta for got to and lotta for lot of. These forms are extremely widespread in spoken English, but are rare in written language. It used more frequently by men compared to women.

3. Modality

Modality is a grammatical-semantic category which characterizes modus operandi or the speaker's attitude towards the action, his evaluation of the attitude towards objective reality. Modality concerns the factual status of information; it signals the relative actuality, validity or believability of the content of an expression. Modality includes the ways in which language is used to encode meanings such as degrees of certainty and commitment or alternatively vagueness and lack of commitment, personal beliefs versus generally accepted or taken for granted knowledge. Modality can be expressed by different linguistic means. But in every case there is some leading form that expresses the main attitude. These forms fall into four categories: phonetic (intonation), grammatical (mood), lexicon grammatical (modal verbs), lexical (modal adverbs and phrases) but the most obligation expressed by modal verbs can be strong and weak. Must is chiefly used to express strong obligation. Should, ought to and had better can be used to express weak obligation. The study of modal verbs of obligation in quotations reveals some peculiarities in terms of gender differences. Thus, women are inclined to use modal verbs expressing weak obligation, whereas men are more likely to use modal verbs expressing strong obligation.

4. Hesitation

Hesitation is one of type of speech errors that have received most of the experimental attention Fodor (1974). Hesitation is a flatterer is speech stammering. Hesitation is paused of varying lengths that occur when the speakers are losing their words during speaking.

D. History of BPEC

Benteng Panyua English Club (BPEC) is one of the English Conversation Clubs in Makassar. It was established on April 7th, 1986. It is a social institution which always conducts its weekly meeting at Fort Rotterdam, one of Makassar's most popular tourism objects. BPEC itself has been recorded in the Guidance Book of Tourists. They are famous with tourists. BPEC welcomes participants from all levels of society. They include students from elementary school, secondary school, senior high school, college, employees, etc. It has been eighteen years since BPEC first began and club activities really help the people, especially English learners, to build up their speaking ability. Many of them have successfully found good positions in many companies in South Sulawesi and outside South Sulawesi.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHOD

This chapter presents the procedures used in investigating the aims of the study. It consists of research method, data sources, research instrument, data collection procedure, and data analysis procedure.

A. Research Method

This research applied qualitative descriptive method. According to Sugiono (2010) qualitative method is the research which based on post positivism philosophy used to analyze of object condition naturally and the result of the research is more emphasize about the meaning more than generalization. Fraenkel and Wallen (1993:23) as cited by Arsalan, Descriptive method is a method used to explain, analyze, and classify something through various techniques, survey, interview, and questionnaire and test.

B. Participants of the Research

The researcher chose BPEC at Fort Rotterdam, which was built in Makassar as a sample of this research, where some people who join in the community from non-English community. The researcher took data from six participants. They are three men and three women who used different features in speech.

C. Instrument of the Research

The researcher used observation sheet and camera video as the research instrument, in order to find out the different features between men and women in speech. This research is main information about how men and women express in doing communication each others. The research took three meetings in BPEC at Fort Rotterdam.

D. Procedure of Collecting Data

To gain the data, the researcher applied some procedures, they were:

1. The researcher joined for three weeks in BPEC and discussed three topics they are Underage criminal, Online game and traditional game and also The equal of men and women.
2. The researcher took video in every meeting because she saw it again if there were part things missing.
3. The research filled or selected the paper sheet
4. The researcher identified the words of the men and women's speech and different expression between men and women speech using the observation skill

E. Technique of Data Analysis

In analyzing the data, the researcher was categorized by selecting conversations between women and men and taking note of conversations. The women and men's utterances were analyzed to find its elements that refer to the language features using then, they were analyzed further to find out the features of language used by women and men in BPEC. After that, grouping the data, the speech features used by women and men were counted. Then the total number of features spoken by men and women were found, compared and analyzed to find out the phenomena that happened in BPEC at Fort Rotterdam.

CHAPTER IV

FINDING AND DISCUSSION

In this chapter, the analysis of the data is explained in the line which is formulated for research questions. It consists of two sections namely findings and discussions.

A. Findings

In this section the researcher explains the analysis of the difference between men and women in BPEC at fort Rotterdam in Using Speech Expression. There are five types of speech feature that the researcher found based on Holmes's theory and supported by Fador Rose theory. They are Tag Question, Standard Grammar, Modality and supported by Rose theory about Hesitation. These are types that they used in discussion. Actually BPEC has three sections in studying English namely discussion, debate and also writing but the researcher took the video only in debate section. There they usually discuss a different topic every week. The researcher had visited BPEC for three times where had discussed three topics, they are Underage criminal, Online game and traditional game and The equal of men and women. In this video the researcher found 46 data from the analysis.

In the following analysis, the data are given the symbol as coding to each man and woman in BPEC. It contains two characters male and female character. The female character is three women, they are Aya, Octav, and Diba and male character is three men, they are Fudin, Jafar and Adam. First table is related to the first research question then, the second table is related to the second research question. In order to categorize the data of second table the researcher gives code such as Rising intonation as RI, Hesitation as HT, Tag Question as TQ, Standard Grammar as SG, Modality as MD.

Datum 9			√		The speakers ask the audience about her suggestion by using modal to emphasize the obligation.
Datum 10			√		The speakers ask the audience about the rehabilitation by using modal to emphasize the obligation.
Datum 11	√				The speaker didn't agree that the children have to go to jail, because they are still labile, she used question tag to get confirmation.
Datum 12			√		The speakers ask the audience about her suggestion by using modal to emphasize the obligation.
Datum 13				√	The speaker tries to give example to the audience about underage criminal by hesitation because she is lost her idea.
Datum 14			√		The speaker tries to give opinion that she disagree about the rule, she utters by modality to emphasize her expectation
Datum 15			√		The speaker says that she must give special punishment; she uses modality to emphasize her ability.
Datum 16		√			She tries to give suggestion by using non standard

I think that is just adds our country budget,					because she thinks that she only talk with her friends.
Datum 17 You say rehabilitation in our country is not effective. could you guaranty it?			√		The speaker claim last statement from last speaker, and ask that could you guaranty it. He utterance by modality to ask about ability
Datum 18 You just you just think short a way guys. Don't you?	√				The women say that if we jail the children it means that we think short way, she says by tag question to get confirmation.
Datum 19 No parents want to see their children do a bed thing . Don't they? .	√				She says to audience ask her agreement by tag question that, No parents want to see their children do a bed thing. Don't they? .
Datum 20 I agree men and women can be equal			√		She agrees with the last speaker who said that man and men can be equal. She utters by modality to show the ability.

B. Discussion

In this part the researcher explained all the data that have been found in BPEC especially in debate section by using some theories about the types of speech features, they are Rising Intonation, Hesitation, Tag Question, Standard Grammar and Modality.

Base on some theories that the researcher had mentioned above explaining that in studying English specially in speaking there are differences between men and women. The differences of them influenced by some factors such as gender, motivation and skill which can cause the differences in using speech expression:

a. Types of Speech Feature

1. Tag Question

The one type of speech features is Tag Question. According to Holmes (1992) tag question is mostly used by women than men. It is applied when the speaker is starting a claim, but lacks of confidence in truth of claim. It decreases the strength of assertions. Tannent (1995) Tag question also used to get confirmation by softening the sentence. So it can be categorized as a polite statement.

Base on those theories above the researcher found that men and women differ in using tag question where women use more than men, it shows in some Datum where women use four times in debate meanwhile men used only once in debate.

Man uttered by tag question once in Datum 4, meanwhile women uttered four times in Datum 7, Datum 11, Datum 18 and Datum 19. The example of Tag Question from men is: “Because the jail contains bed things. Doesn’t it?” Here men show that he asked agreement from his audience about his utterance. He said that the children shouldn’t be taken into the jail, because it is bed place for them. The next example datum from a woman

“You say that there is a boy or a man already did a criminal. Isn’t it? The women use Tag question in her utterance to get confirmation from the listener that her statement is right. The differences in using Tag question between men and women relate to hesitation in speech.

2. Standard Grammar

That is the type of speech feature which used women dominant than men. Women use forms associated with the prestige standard more frequently than men. Women will choose the best language by correct grammar to show their politeness. Trudgill (1972).

Base on the research above the research found that women use standard more than men, where the researcher found standard form by women only two times, meanwhile men used the nonstandard eight times. The differences in using sstandard language between men and women related to context, the standard sometimes used in speaking not in writing, but as we know that women always use or show the best language in communication.

The differences can be seen in Datum 1, Datum 6, Datum 7, Datum 8, datum 11, Datum 12, Datum 13 and Datum 15”. They are used by men eight times in debate. Meanwhile women used twice in Datum 1 and Datum 16 used by women in debate. Example: Woman “I just wanna say nothing to choose right now “the using of wanna is categorized as nonstandard grammar and the standard form of that is “want to” she used the non standard form reflex when she share her opinion. The using of standard form is usually used in formal condition. The example from men: “because he just allow us to play it in certain days” it categorized non standard form because it should be “allows” it shows that he reflects in speaking without attention Mto the standard grammar

This is the one of type of speech features. Where used mostly women than men. Modality is a grammatical-semantic category which characterizes modus or the speaker’s attitude towards the action, his evaluation of the attitude towards objective reality. Women mostly use it to show their politeness in asking thing, ability and also obligation.

Based on the explanation above the researcher found that there are differences between men and women in using it. The result shows that women use it mostly than men. Women used eleven times in debate meanwhile men used eight times. It can be seen by Datum 2, Datum 3, Datum 10, Datum 16, Datum 17, Datum 18 and Datum 19 from men meanwhile women can be seen from Datum 3, Datum 4, Datum 5, Datum 6, Datum 9, Datum 10, Datum 12, Datum 14, Datum 15, Datum 17 and Datum 21. Example: “I agree that men and women can be equal” uttered by women. The utterance shows about the modality which use “can” as a modal to show ability. She explains that men and women can be equal, because man can do everything that man do. Meanwhile other example from man “Will you enter to the jail or you will do the rehabilitation first? The utterance shows as a modality in asking which use “will” men ask to the audience about underage criminal politely.

4. Hesitation

This is the one of type of speech features, hesitation is flattering in speech Fador (1974) where it used women more than men when they pause and lose their idea. Although Tannent(1990) says that women are better in speech than men, but is not meaning in all condition, it is different in studying second language. According to Fador Rose(1992) women are less confidence than men so it can cause hesitation in speech, meanwhile men speech slowly and calmly than women. Base on the theory above the researcher found that men and women are same in using hesitation. It means that hesitation is not a sign of language base on gender.

In this type the researcher found six data, where men used three times in Datum 5, datum 9, and datum 14 meanwhile women also used in Datum 2, Datum 8, and Datum 20. Example: “There is one criminal three times under age criminal I mean” the utterance produced by man where it shows that he used hesitation by repeating word when he uttered his idea and it is other example from woman is in Datum 13 “That is called life, that is called life Yahh” in her utterance also show the hesitation by repeating word when she shared her idea..

b. Process in Learning Language

The sparse research on the impact of gender in L2 acquisition shows a marked contrast with the massive literature on gender effects in first language acquisition (L1). According Willingham and Cole (1997) Female students fared better in writing and language use (i.e. Grammatical conventions, expression, spelling), while small but consistent effect sizes were found for reading and verbal reasoning. According to Ullman (2005) but see for counterevidence, and for a partial confirmation, women, more than men, store verbal information in declarative memory, whereas men more than women tend to use grammatical or procedural memory to produce language and these processes are found to be accommodated by estrogen.

Base on the explanation above the researcher tries to compare what the research found in this research base on context. Some theories says that women are better and men in speech (Grim 1992), Women talk more than men Homles(1992). Women are more polite then men, (Lakoff 1975) and also they have better skill and motivation in learning language. The researcher found some differences between two theories above. Where the researcher found that men and women are equal in learning language, it can be seen by the using of hesitation. Theory above explains that women have more skill and men in speaking, meanwhile the researcher in her research found they have same skill such as in hesitation. Women speak hesitation same like men. The researcher found the same data that women use three times and men also use three times. It shows that they have not different in skill. Meanwhile other theory said women talk more than men. It can show from the using of question tag, where the researcher found that women use more than men. Where women use four times, meanwhile men use once. The researcher found the same thing that women are more polite than men, they use more standard grammar than men where women use two times while men use eight times,. The researcher found that women are more polite than men. It can be seen by differences in using modality. Modality uses to show our politeness, obligation and ability in speech. The researcher found women use modality more than men, where women use eleven times while men use seven times.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter covers two things, they are conclusion and suggestion. The conclusion is based on research finding on chapter IV and the suggestion leads the farthest research hers on the same field.

A. Conclusion

Based on the findings and discussion, the researcher concludes the result of the research as follow:

The finding shows that the men and women use five types of speech features in doing conversation. They are Rising Intonation, Hesitation, Tag Question, Standard Grammar and Modality. They use the types of speech features to show their different intonation, asking politely, their hesitation, respond and confirm something, invite someone to share opinion, strengthen the meaning, describe emotional state, express strong emotion and giving opportunity. Men and women in BPEC used speech features according to several reason that caused by some social factors and detention since people speak differently in different social context and social function of language. They used the speech features because some factors that related with the participant, topic and function when they utter something.

In conclusion, four types of speech features used in this study. They are Tag Question, Standard Grammar, Modality and Hesitation. They used differently by participants of BPEC, where women use tag question four times and men use once. In using Standard grammar women use twice meanwhile men use eight times and using modality mostly use by women where women use eleven times while men use eight times but, they had been equal in using hesitation where men used three times and women used three times.

The skill speaking in studying English as second language is same between men and women in BPEC. It can be seen by the way they used hesitation. They use it when they feel anxiety in speaking.

B. Suggestion

The researcher suggest to any reader who want research about children emotion to understand your research's subject strongly, especially the theories, in order you can finish the research right and quickly.

This study gives the example of speech features that is used in the BPEC Meeting club. Thus, the researcher suggests the further researcher to analyze speech features in movie conversation. It will be more challenging.

First Meeting: The Underage Criminal

- M1 We are going to rise this children or this criminal under age into the jail itself. You are going to separate them from their environment, from their parents too, event from their beloved one. What will happen if you already get them in the jail?. First they will get a lot of process which very becoming a bad thing because this jail contains a lot of fairmont there, while these children are not being prepared well to face those kind of things and second, what is the impact that will happen if you jail this children?. These children will most likely lose their education. why education so important for the children to face at the first place because it will save their education to better education and it will most likely make this children to become a better society and become a good person itself. So meaning, if you just blame these children just because they do already criminal action, what we have to face. Are these children already capable enough in thinking those kinds of criminal action or not? Where we believe our side that children have no still enough national conclusion that this is a prove action and this is not prove action. The only one they should jail the person who have already capacity to thing the consequence of action that they already do for the first, so these children are still labile, this children have no nothing adult and they believe, they should be realized and they should be given a lot of education.

- M2 MR. Fudin can you pay attention to me?. There are a lot of things for you, the first is if you put the criminal in the jail because the jail contains bad things. Doesn't it? And the second one is they will lose their education and they still cannot think well which one is better for them , I will tell keys what happen in passuruang. There is one criminal, under age criminal I mean, under age criminal, they did begal to the women three times three times and the policeman cannot put them to the jail because they still underage but if we analyzed this key, If we think carefully wisely they do this criminal three times means that we cannot category it as a java... sistem because base on reza one of the psychology in our country say that this case we cannot categoryy it cavil system because they do it three times so if someone do it do it regularly absolutely we cannot categorize it still cavil system.

- M3. thank you mr jidan . Ok mr fudin are you get it?
- M1. yes of course
- M3. Thank you miss Adiba, what do you think mr ?
- M4. Ok thank you for the chance you already say before there is an action and criminal happen in java. There are three times like begal. Ok the first thing that I think like this a probably in the game there is a player inside the game itself not only the children do by themselves of course they follow someone to did some like criminal and for the children of course as the criminal we have to punish but you have to see for another side this person is still under age, we have to do like the rehabilitation first and then we should give them a good education itself, by giving a good an educational, they will have a good attitude or best action and but you giving punishment directly to the person or the criminal I think it will not make the situation became a better or but it will give the bad influence the children itself for their life. I think we have to really give understand well about the criminal.
- M1 : Oke thank so much for your explanation, do you get the point? she thinks that they do the criminal action because they know that they are still underage, so they will not go to the jail. So that do it again, again, again always repeat.

- M5 Thank so much for the time, I wanna share my opinion about underage criminal, where we can see that there are many factors that can influence the thing to happen, we must realize that we have different life each other there is rich and also the is poor. Economical must be one factor that influence them to do that.
- FM 1.Ok thanks for the chance that you have given to me I just want to ask you, you say that there is a boy or a man already did a criminal didn't they?, underage boys ready did a crime three times but my question is did the government goverment of punishment already did the rehabilitation for the children because the first that you have to do when the children do such as a criminal or something bad in their society in environment you cannot take the children underage boys to the jail directly but you have to do the rehabilitation first, it's the first rule because why we must do the rehabilitation first because the first my friend already said that the children are still labile ok? and they do not have full responsibility for their life but the responsibility already back to their parents so they need education more , yes ok I think that's all for me , you have to do rehabilitee first. thank u so much!
- FM2 OKE. Thanks for the chance that you have given to me, I argue with our sister say that our constitution that if our children do the crime, they must get the rehabilitation first to them and then we can see now that this rule is not running well in this country. I will I will give you example most of beagles in Makassar are underage, I can guaranty that they do the criminal because they know they cannot go to the jail first and the second is why do they do this thing? They do that because they cannot go to the jail. For me we must broke the rule, we must give special punishment or give like treatment aaaaaaa like jail special for them.

- F3 : Thank for the chance, you say that aaaa you will make special jail for them. I think that is just adds our country budget, there are still many things that we can do, I just want to ask you, if you underage and you did a crime and then the policemen will take you to the jail, will you enter to the jail or you will do the rehabilitation first and last time I hear that you say rehabilitation in our country is not effective. Could you guaranty it? There are a lot of drag addicted already pass the rehabilitation and then there are a lot of things to do for the underage criminal such as defer because they still solve the problem without entering to the jail, they can face the problem by talking family to family, like that . okay. There are a lot of things to do, you just you just think short a way guys. Sorry you said that you blame parents? Because they cannot educate their children well? No parents want to see their children do a bad thing. Don't they?. A lot of parents want to see their children educate one. Thanks

- FM 4 thanks for the time that you have given to me, so Why I disagree that underage criminal have to go to the jail because underage criminal basically they are brave person, although our environment educates them aaaa educate them do not be a good person because maybe they do not have any attention from their family so, we know how to teach them to be a good person, they could be very useful, because basically they are brave so, I think if the children get education well it can be useful because who know what happed in the future? They could be useful person if you teach them well. I thing that all thank you very much

- FM 5 : In solving the problem, we have to , we have to take best and wise decision. We have see the impact for them, when we take them to the jail, can it make condition better or it is jus worse than before, for example : aaaaaaa when we take them to the jail, we will break their school, when we break their school what will happen to them after go out from the jail. I'm sure that they will have worse thing than before. Because they will lazy to come to school because they are shy. But we give them rehabilitation, it onlyl in short time without break their school.

Second Meeting : Traditional game and Online game.

- M1. The question again. Humm because I believe that, one of the way to make the children more active is playing game itself so, how do you compare which one can improve their activeness traditional game or online game?

- M5 .traditional of course , traditional game influence the down motorist itself, always move right, because they can improve their motorist itself but, what we should understand here that playing traditional game tent to cause injured Doesn't it? Yah I got the trouble when I played the game at the time with my friends and fork is so interesting and I did not find such kind of the game right now, when I come back to my hometown I try to flashback, to replay those games but the kids say that what kinds of this game is? we do not like this kind of the game because we can play a game in gadget because most of them have already a mobile phone, so if I try to attract them to play traditional game, they ask influence ahhhhh bikin capek because always move, what they want to do is playing game by their fingers right?, now days kids condition, what happened on the sociology and the mentality. I am sure they will become a weak people when they grow up, because they have already had bad mentality. Actually I have experience in my school, when I ask to my student to move they say that "sir why we always move" we just need to sit here for two hours. If I speech and ask them to move go around in the class they must say aaaahhhkk
- M1 so, do you think that is the impact of playing game?
- M5 of course yahh it is one of impact of online game because they enjoy their time, they enjoy their moment to play game without run without jump and other they only focus on their mobile phone, beside traditional game automatic we always force us to always move, we should run, jump, hide and etc meanwhile the online game, we just need to sit and play with our fingers, lie down in our bad, but traditional game cannot. We need to go out and find the large place. Don't we? and you cannot play game alone, we should invite friends and make a team but online game we can play it by ourselves.

- M2 of course like I have ludo and I just need sit to play it. It is different with traditional game, where we have to always move, you will be tired.
- M1 so do you thinks that if they become tired, it is not good for them?
- M2 Yahh, it is not bad for them but it just waste their time, they should play game by online game because they must not be tired
- M1 Ok for you my bro, right now it is very poor the see that our traditional game can only play in the certain days such as in 17 Augustus moments. A lot of people try to play traditional game, when it is already over. If it is not that day, yahhhh they people will back to play online game even they already play the game itself, while in the past we almost every time play the traditional game. Do you think that the government right now not really good because the government just seems carrying of the traditional game far from us, because he just allow us to play it in certain days.
- M3 actually I don't wanna blame the government because we play the traditional game in certain days. But for me that's right that modern game exits the traditional game right now, it is really hard to defend because most of children are interested in playing online game but for me when I see the reality, it means that everyone should be influenced in the game itself, yah influenced in the future. if you are only play the electrical game, how to be influence in the future. Meanwhile playing traditional game we can understand all of the environments. It is a good way how to be a leader in the future and comparing with the electrical game you only sit in your home, you just know how to be individualism, you do not know how to be a leader because you not habits yourself to play in team. The traditional game is a good one because from that we can understand our culture.

- M1 : Oke well it is good explanation, how about you my bro, what do you support traditional game or online game?
- M4 I support both of them.
- M1 it's really good idea, but when you are given two chooses, which one do you want to play? Online game or traditional game
- M4 I will play online game because it is very intertwining and it is not physical activity and movement, we just need to stay at home to play it. We may see in the city now, we seldom see children play the traditional game, but we do not know how in the village, may be they still play it, but in city now days we know all most of children only play online game.
- M1 : Oke my conclusion will be just about the respond, so if you think that culture disappear, It is not because the online itself, but because of the great feeling, if you have no feeling to keep you culture your culture will disappear anymore. Actually it is also about the choose, there is no problem they will choose what they want. We may think that online game and traditional game all give best impact. It defends of individual itself

- F5 : how about you miss ? What is your opinion about the online game and traditional game?
- F4 Thank you so much for the time that you have given to me. well we used to play a traditional game like you say when we are kids, if you say you are not happy when you were kids, it is talk wrong because we have played it because we have played it before but now days electrical games come and let leave behind era why do you still choose traditional games and then you know what? it is not suitable to play the game ,you will find your time waste it and we know that impossible to play such asik-asik, santo etc because we have to find a large place, where we have to play it, it is different by online game where we can play it everywhere. If you follow the era, I can call you kids shaman now. We can play traditional game when we delay our earophlane in airport or waiting for something. It can lose our boringness.
- F5 : He said that we can play the online game everywhere and different with traditional game where we just can play it in certain place. Oke how about you miss?
- F3 : I can't say any more because they have explained all , I just wanna say nothing to choose right now is to play traditional game because we live in modern era, when I was young I never play I never play traditional game but this time I play online game because we can play it easily
- F5 ok. How about you octav?
- F1 I have some opinion about fork game fork game, where it can impact our physiology for example if we play fork game we can we can have many friends, we can laugh together we can share everything also not only about the game.

- F5: oke. octav said that we can have many friends if we play traditional game than online game and also actually we can get short bottom because we play it dominant sit right? Oke conclusion now
- F5 : Ok other conclusion?
- F3 : Thank you for the time, tell about the game there are many positive and negative impact. Playing the traditional game can make children to be health and playing online game can add their knowledge about English specially in vocabulary, the negative impact of them is related to the using of the game such playing traditional game tent to make injure but teach us many things such how to work in a team, how to be leader and we will have many friend. We can know to communicate well and online game can make them to be lazy person.
- F1 Addition , assalamualaikum wr.wb actually playing online game can make boys cleverer, like my nephew. He is very clever, he knows everything than me, so I want to ask one of you.
- F2 thank that you have give me time, I say here I like online game than traditional game because for me, we can learn from the online game about the vocabulary , you can also learn how to manage your time in playing electrical game
- F3 oke assalamualaikum wr.wr good afternoon everyone. ok well we can get idea we are living in modern era and speaking of the electrical game is booming in our country when you ask me which one we should choose traditional game or online game? I will choose traditional game, why? Because I am sure that everyone who sit here ever play traditional game right? And I see your different because aaaaa playing the traditional games giveS best impact such as we enjoy time together playing in a group different with online game where we just play it alone it teaches us how to work in a team. Ok Mr Wandu says that a playing online game we can learn anything like English and I do not believe it, It is not because of the game but It force you to learn because if u do not know what is the meaning and u cannot play it well, you may see when we play traditional games. We can run fast while when you play online games you just can sit down without any movement.

The third meeting : The Equal of Man and Woman

- M3 : hummm I have not opinion right now, I wanna hear your statement from all of you before, thanks, I'm still waiting for your statement guys after that I will give my opinion
- M1: Oke miss you have to promise after I give my statement you must give yours also. Oke why do we mention this gender quality because right know we can see so many causes that women are limited because we know that women are weak person, but right know we can see that women are progressive, women right now can do everything such men not all women but most of them are progressive. We have to agree that if they are week. They will not able to work and take a job, happy job like every one who can have equal position, when we allow them to express their felling what job they want, we believe that they can participate as well, as we know also they can make our country to be develop. All we know every office, every place they must need women not only men.
- M3: Ok thank you, I stay here again because we are believe that feminism is very dangerous, why I say that? because men and women have different capability different physical so there is no way that women will be equal with women because there is particular job only proper to do by a man which is not really proper to do by a women for example if you see a woman work they doing hard work everyday so you as a man should take a responsibility and there is also a reason why this one is a bad idea if the woman as a leader of the office because they most use their feeling in make a decision. It is different between men where men most use their logic in make a decision or solve the problem and also why the women cannot be equal because they have a different obligation. Women have more obligation in the family because woman is a wife, they will not focus on their duty.

- M4: So I stand here, hmmm because aaa as we know that god create the angel in the world is women, it is mean here that women have to aaa support the boy or husband and the boy is one create of god who should work right? It is a point they cannot be equal.
- M5: Women are higher than man, we can see in surah annisa that women have a special term women create by tulang rusuk. Man can be strong if there is woman in behind him, man cannot go alone without a support from woman. Can't they? look at Soekarno he cannot became supper power president if he did not have great woman stand behind him. So they have to complete each other, when they are complete each other it is mean that they can be equal.
- M4: Best on our perspective I disagree about the equal because it contracts with the culture as we know that our culture always show the differences class of men and women and also different obligation. Men have higher position than women generally although we know in alquran that women position higher than men because women born as in this world it shows differences position but complete each other.
- F2 : Ok Mr. Pudir said that it can discriminate them if you forbid them to express their expect like If they want work in place where they want.

Meanwhile you just allow them to stay at home but we have to give a chance to equal like a man, so what do think?

- F3 : Oke, actually I want to ask you, what side you say that there is a discrimination if we do not allow them to work?. I do not see.
