ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

بِسْمِ اللهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

Alhamdulillahi rabbil 'alamin, the researcher would like to express her confession and gratitude to the Most Perfection, Allah Swt for the guidance, blessing and mercy in completing this thesis. Shalawat and salam are always delivered to the Great Prophet Muhammad Saw, his family and followers till the end of the time.

The researcher realized that there were some problems faced by her in accomplishing this research. Those problems could not be solved without getting assistance, support, any helps, motivations, criticisms, encouragement and guidance from many people. Therefore, the researcher would like to express deepest gratitude to the following:

1. The researcher's beloved parents, H. Abdi Nurdin and Marni for all their prayers, supports and eternally affections as the biggest influence in her success and happy life.

2. The researcher's sweet heart, Maknun Mandrali Lopa for his appreciation to finish this research.

3. Prof. Dr. H. Musafir, M.Si. as the Rector of Alauddin State Islamic University Makassar, who has given her chance to study in English and Literature Department so that she could finish her study

This research discussed about Language Function in Intercultural Verbal Communication which aimed to find out the kinds of language function that Teachers and Foreign students used. The subject of this research was teachers and foreign students in Muhammadiyah University of Makassar who did intercultural verbal communication. The object of this research is language function in intercultural verbal communication. This research based on Jakobson's theory who figured out about language function. This research applied descriptive qualitative method in revealing data. The researcher used observation sheet as the instrument in order to get the valid data. The findings showed that teachers and foreign students used expressive function, directive function, referential function, poetic function, and metalinguistic function.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

This chapter consists of Background, Problem Statement, Objective of Research, Significance of Research and Scope of Research.

A. Background

As a social creature, human needs to build a relationship with others. Therefore, human needs communication in interacting with others and fulfilling their necessity. Communication is an activity that is done by two or more people using language for dynamic and transactional reason in order to share meaning and information in their daily life (Allwood: 1985: 15). Moreover, the communication globally happens in modern area. It makes people from different culture have a contact. The interaction between people from the different country with their differences in one place is called intercultural communication. According to Larry A. Samovar (2009: 294), intercultural communication occurs whenever a person from one culture sends a message to be processed by a person from a different culture. So, people must understand the cultural and linguistic knowledge (Deena and Meera, 1993: 39). It means that social or cultural experience is a person has to know the culture of the country where s/he lives. For example, the behavior and the norm of a country. Moreover, people should know one foreign language in doing intercultural communication such as English language. Indeed, in the Islamic perspective, Hadis No.795 states;

Kharija bin Zaid bin Thabit said that Zaid bin Thabit said, "The prophet Muhammad saw. ordered me to learn the writing of the Jews. I even wrote letters for the prophet Muhammad saw. (to the Jews) and also red their letters when they wrote to him." (Shohih Bukhori, No.7195)

The Hadis above means that every muslim/muslimat is permitted to learn and know foreign language even will be fardhu kifayah if the people learn foreign language for fulfilling social necessity, especially in intercultural communication. Besides that, when people use language or words to do intercultural communication, it is called verbal communication. Novinger in Nur (2014:170) says that verbal communication is communication by words symbols of meaning and communication to exchange message with one another that often evokes the idea of oral communication.

In verbal communication, language itself consists of some functions which propose to give information, deliver message, express feeling, persuade people, and share opinion (Trudgill, 1974: 99). According to Roman Jakobson in Holmes (2001:250) language function includes expressive, directive, referential, poetic, phatic, and metalinguistic. It means that people use language especially in intercultural communication to convey anything about what they feel and think.

In this study, the researcher investigates language function used in intercultural verbal communication between the teachers and the foreign students at Muhammadiyah university because some students from different culture interact and have to understand each other. Moreover, the teachers as the native speaker of Bahasa have to make the students understand about what they teach. So, either Teachers or Foreign students use English and Bahasa in their verbal communication. Therefore, it makes the researcher conduct a research under the title: Language Function Used in Intercultural Verbal Communication between Teachers and Foreign Students.

B. Problem Statement

In relation to the statement above, the writer formulated the research question as follow:

1. What kinds of Language function are used by teachers and foreign students in their intercultural verbal communication?

C. Objective of The Research

Based on the problem statements above, this research to aims to:

1. To find what kinds of language function used by teachers and foreign students in their intercultural verbal communication.

D. Significance of the research

Theoretically, the researcher may give information for the readers who want to increase their knowledge about language function in intercultural verbal communication between different state and culture, and it can be a reference for other researchers in doing a study about Intercultural communication. Practically, in the cross-cultural understanding (CCU) and sociolinguistics subject, Teachers and foreign students are expected to increase their foreign language when doing intercultural communication for exchanging message.

E. Scope of the research

The researcher only investigated Intercultural verbal communication between the teachers and the foreign students. However, the researcher limited her explanation that is proposed by Jakobson's theory (2001: 250) to analyze kinds of language function in act of intercultural verbal communication, they are; expressive, directive, poetic, phatic, referential and metalinguistic function.
CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

This chapter consists of previous finding and pertinent ideas.

A. Previous Finding

Before doing this research, there are some researches about the inter-cultural communication that have been done by other researchers as follow:

Ihsana El Khuluqo, Dadan Anugrah (2016) with their journal Students Intercultural Communication Competence (Thailand Pattani Students in Indonesian Campus State Islamic University of Sunan GunungJati Bandung) showed that Pattani students did not have enough culture cognition; see themselves as exclusive group; insufficient interaction with surrounding community; closed attitudes; verbal communication behavior; and less active in interpersonal relationship.

Rohani (2014) in her thesis inter-cultural communication strategies in Indonesian' and Japanese students' interaction investigated the use of oral communication strategies by student of two different nationalities: Indonesian and Japanese. This study was a case study with methods used included observation, stimulated recall, focus group discussion, and in-depth interview. Findings showed that there were differences in the use of strategies were affected by English proficiency and individual differences, especially cultural background, age, and gender.

Tajeddin (2014) with his title cross-cultural perceptions of impoliteness by Native English speakers and EFL learners: The case of Apology speech act investigated native English speakers and 177 EFL. Learners were administered a discourse completion task for the speech act of apology accompanied by responses violating politeness by various degree in Iran. Participants were asked to assess the degree of impoliteness embedded in each response and to write down their assessment comments. Content analysis of respondents' comments indicated that both groups mentioned similar impoliteness criteria. However, the analysis of frequency counts displayed significant differences between the two groups in their degree of preference for each impoliteness criterion.

Robibim (2011) with his thesis Inter-cultural communication between Indonesian and Japanese investigated that not only emphasizes how people of Indonesia and Japan differ in speech, but how they act each other and how they follow the rules that govern the behavior of covert community member. It has been known for thousands of anecdotes about intercultural misunderstanding due to communication between people from different cultures, one who successfully characterized the Japanese are Shinto and Buddhism teaching. Findings show that there was some characteristic of non-verbal communication between Indonesian (body motion communication) such as, eye contact, gestures, and facial expression.

Nurul Camalia (2014) in her thesis An Analysis of Intercultural Communication Strategies Used Between American and Chinese Showed in Karate Kid Movie investigated the kinds intercultural communication strategies that are used by the interlocutors both American and Chinese in the Karate Kid Movie 2010. Findings show that the strategies of successful intercultural communication are speak slowly and clearly, ask for clarification, frequently check for understanding, avoid idioms, be careful of jargon, define the basic of business, be specific, choose your medium of communication effectively, provide information via multiple channels, and be patient.

Baso Muammar (2015) with his title Inter-Cultural Non-verbal Communication Strategies in Indonesian and Thailand students' Interaction investigated the kinds of non-verbal communication strategies that is used among Indonesian and Thailand students when communicate and the ways of non-verbal communication to the students in communication. Findings show that there were 39 kinds of non-verbal communication which is included in the kinesics (Body Motion communication) of Novinger's theory. There were 16 kinds of emblems (Gestures), 6 kinds of eye contact, 7 kinds of Facial expression, 6 kinds of Haptics (touch), and 4 kinds of posture. The result of descriptive analysis the rate percentage of non-verbal communication strategies that have big roles in communication between Indonesian and Thailand students were 90% gesture and 10% eye contact.

The similarity of between researches and this research is the discussion about inter-cultural communication. The inter-cultural communication is the object of the researches but have different cases. While the difference of first research is it focuses on Students Competence in Intercultural Communication. The second research focuses on oral communication strategies in Indonesian and Japanese. The third research talks about cross-cultural perception of impoliteness by native English speakers and EFL learners. The fourth research talks not only about emphasize how Indonesian people and Japan differ in speech, but also how they act each other and how they follow the rules that govern the behavior of covert community members. The fifth research talks about An Analysis of Intercultural Communication Strategies Used between American and Chinese Showed in Karate Kid Movie. The sixth research talks about Inter-Cultural Non-verbal Communication Strategies in Indonesian and Thailand students' Interaction. In his research, he investigated the kinds of non-verbal communication strategies that was used among Indonesian and Thailand students when communicating and the ways of non-verbal communication to the students in communication. The writer is going to research Intercultural Communication between Teachers and Foreign Students.

B. Pertinent Ideas

1. Culture

The term "culture" is sometimes used to capture behavioral patterns, art, norms and practices of a particular community or organization. Culture generally organized way of life that includes values, norms, artefacts and institutions passed on from one generation to the next (Macionis 2001: 1), or as "the values, beliefs, behavior and material object that, together, form a way of life for a particular group of people" (Macionis 2001: 61). Henslin (1999:35) has a similar view: Culture, which include language values, beliefs, norms, behavior and material object, is passed on from generation to generation.

Therefore, central to the definition of culture is the element of the togetherness of a human society, which has an organized way of maintaining and perpetuating their language, values, norms, beliefs, artefacts and institutions. In maintaining and perpetuating their culture, human, society educate, interact, socialize and transmit their way of life.

Culture thus refers to human-made environment which includes all the material and non-material products of group life that are transmitted from one generation to the next. There is e general agreement among social scientists that culture consists of explicit and implicit patterns of behavior acquired by human beings. These maybe transmitted through symbols, constituting the distinctive achievements of human groups, including their embodiment as artifacts. The essential core of culture thus lies in those finer ideas which are transmitted within a group-both historically derived as well as selected with their attached value. More recently, culture denotes historically transmitted patterns of meanings embodies in symbols, by means of which people communicate, perpetuate and develop their knowledge about and express their attitudes toward life.

2. Communication

Communication is a complex as culture and can be defined in many different ways. According to Martin and Nakayama (1987: 94), "The defining characteristic of communication occurs whenever someone attributes meaning to another person's words or actions." On the other side, Communication may be understood as a symbolic process whereby reality is produced, maintained, repaired and transformed" (Carey, 1989: 23). According to Brown in Abrar (2015), "Communication is transfer of information from one person to another, whether or not it elicits confidence. But the information transferred must be understandable to the receiver."

Finally, based on the term of communication carries many different meanings, it can be concluded that communication is two ways process of reaching mutual understanding. In which participants, not only exchange (encode-decode) information, news, ideas, and feelings but also create and share meaning.

3. Verbal Communication

Novinger in Nur (2000:170) says that verbal communication is communication by words symbols of meaning and communication to exchange message with one another that often evokes the idea of oral communication. So when message or information is exchanged or communicate through words is called verbal communication. The words that are used in verbal communication are culturally determined (Gamble & Gamble 2002:118). Word usage varies from culture to culture. it means that basically, language and culture cannot be separated because every culture have a language to communicate with other people.

Samovar, Porter, and Mc Daniel (2009: 164) say, " human use language for conveying though, feeling, and pretension to others we learn about human through what they say and how they utterance, we learned about our self through the humans' ways to interact toward what we say and learn about humans' relationship through take and give in interaction of communication." Verbal communication takes place through face to face conversations, group discussions, interview, radio, television, calls, letters, reports, notes, email etc.

4. Intercultural Communication

Intercultural communication is the communication that takes place between cultures. Intercultural communication describes communication between at least two people who are different in significant ways culturally" (Lusting and Koester, 2010: 47). Barnett (1988:101), on the other hand, defines intercultural communication as the exchange of cultural information between groups of people with significantly different cultures. Intercultural communication centers on the interchange of information among social systems entrenched in a universal environment, which communication results in the reduction of uncertainty about the future behavior of the other system through an increase in understanding of the other social group (Barnett & Lee 2002:276).

Moreover, Edward and Hall cited in Kim (1999) say that intercultural communication is set of learned guides to behaviors which generally shared by particular people from different culture, different country, and different regions. Furthermore, Dodd in Aneas and Sandin (2009: 2) said that intercultural communication is a scientific field whose object of interest is the interaction between individuals and groups from different cultures, and which examines the influence of culture on who people are, how the act, feel, think, and evidently speak and listen.

So, it can be said that intercultural communication is a form of communication that aims to share information across different cultures and social groups. So, to do intercultural communication people must know the background culture each other before communicate and finally there will be no more misunderstanding.

5. Language Function

The function of language is communication or usually called by speech function, people use language to give and receive message between themselves. It is difficult to see adequately the function of language, because it is so deeply rooted in the whole of human behavior that it may be suspected that there is little inthe functional side of conscious behavior in which language doesn't play its part (sapir in Downes: 1998).

Jakobson in Holmes (2001) classifies language functions into six types. They are expressive, directive, poetic, phatic, referential, and metalinguistic function. Those six types of language functions will be explained as follows:

a) Expressive Function

Expressive Function means express the speaker's feeling. For instance, 'Oh no!', 'Woww, great', 'ugh', 'arrgh', and so on. Expressive focuses on addresser who addresses a message. The aim of expressive function is to convey the speaker's emotion or expression. The aim of a direct expression of the speaker's attitude toward what he is speaking about. It tends to produce an impression of certain emotion whether true of feigned. It means that the addresser's own towards the content of the message is emphasize.

b) Directive Function

Directive Function means attempt to get someone to do something. It means that language used purpose of causing or preventing) overt action. This function is most commonly commands and requests. For instace; "Shut up!", "help me!", "do this homework", "you should write what I explain.'

And so on. Directive function focuses on the addressee; it means that the speaker needs the reaction from the hearer or to make someone perform a particular action. The aim of directive function is to convey the speaker's command.

c) Referential Function

Referential function means provide information essentially referential function is the communication of information. For instance, "the teacher will come at 10.00 am o'clock." This function affirms or denies propositions, as in science or the statement of fact. These sentences have a truth value; that is, the sentences are either true or false (recognizing, of course, that we might know what that truth value is). Hence, they are important for logic. Referential function focuses on the context; it means that referent or subject matter of discourse, and what it refers to.

d) Poetic Function

Poetic Function means focus on aesthetic feature of language. It is in which the particular form chosen is the essence of the message. Messages convey more than just the content. They always contain a creative 'touch of our own. These additions have no purpose other than to make the messages 'nicer'. The word poetic doesn't refer to the ability to write poetry, but the ability to manipulate language in a creative way. The aim of poetic function is to convey the pleasure. For instance, "I'm so sorry because coming late."

Or "thank you so much for helping me."

e) Phatic Function

Phatic function means express solidarity and empathy with others. The phatic function helps to establish contact and refers to the channel of communication. It opens the channel or checking that is working, either for social reason. For instance, "Hello, do you hear me?", "any question again?" Phatic function is used also for sociability. For instance, "Hello, Guys!", "What's up?"

f) Metalinguistic Function

Metalinguistic Function means comment on the language itself. This function is the use of language to discuss or describe itself. It focuses attention upon the code itself, to clarify or negotiate it. This function is about language. Metalinguistic is also predominant in question like "Sorry, what did you say?" where the code is misunderstood and needs correction or clarification. The aim of metalinguistic is to convey the code analysis.

6. BIPA Student Scholarship

Student scholarship is the program for all the foreigner students from the countries which have a diplomatic relation with Indonesia to learn Bahasa, art, music, and handcraft. Participant can choose one of fourty university in Indonesia. This program is organized by Kemendikbud and cooperate with Kementrian Luar Negeri (Kemenlu).

The student scholarship program is begun since 1974 as the part of ASEAN initiative. So, this program for the students who is from the ASEAN country. In the 1974, The student scholarship is expanded with include the student from Australia, France, Canada, France, German, Hungarian, Japan, Mexico, Dutch, Norway, United America.

The student scholarship program is aimed to promote and increase the young people's interest from other countries toward Bahasa and Indonesia. Moreover, the student scholarship hopefully may form strong culture relation for construct the understanding of participant country. Data on the darmasiswa.kemdiknas.go.id show that foreign students' interest is more rise to follow the student scholarship program. The alumnus quantity on 2008 achieve 2.037 from 85 countries. Three upgrading of devotee keep happening. Data of BPKLN Kemendikbud when the opening of scholarship program on 2012 show that there are around 2.400 foreigner students from various country had checked in for became student scholarship participant program. However, there were only 750 foreigner students passed to follow the student scholarship of BIPA program for one or two semesters. Student scholarship participant who come from 77 countries will be spread to the 59 university in Indonesia. Until 2012, the total of foreign students who followed the student scholarship since 1974 aggregate 3.986 students who come from 97 countries.

The BIPA students is the students who have the first language (B1) and have a different culture background. Besides that, the purpose of the BIPA students is different also. Such as, there are BIPA students only want to learn practice speaking, reading, writing and there is not yet uniformity BIPA teaching curriculum development. Every institute develop their curriculum self. The BIPA books have a various either material or quality.

The BIPA book can be categorized into two categories: the BIPA book which uses Bahasa and uses students' B1 such as English. Both categories have a quality and weakness. The qualitu of the first category book, the students are motivated for study hard to understand Bahasa directly. whereas its weakness, if the teachers is not native Bahasa, it will be difficult for them to teach the students and the misunderstanding is possibility happened. The second categories will make the students to learn with translation method, but the students will not active to search the meaning of language in the dictionary because all of the material in the book have been translated into their first language. However, the teacher who is not native speaker, will be easier to understand that book. So, the teachers should used more than one book in the BIPA study.

a) Students Scholarship BIPA of Muhammadiyah University of Makassar

In Indonesia, there are only 55 universities as the destination of the BIPA student scholarship program includes Muhammadiyah university of Makassar which have organized this program since 2006. In this year academic 2017/2018, Muhammadiyah University of Makassar accepted the new students who come from China and Hungarian. They are accepted as the student in Muhammadiyah University of Makassar through the student scholarship program of Indonesia Republic which is the cooperation between Kantor Urusan Internasional (KUI) of Muhammadiyah University of Makassar and Biro Perencanaan Kerjasama Luar Negeri Kementerian Pendidikan dan Kebudayaan RI.

b) BIPA Foreign Students of Muhammadiyah University of Makassar

Foreign students are persons admitted by a country other than their own, usually under special permits or visas, for the specific purpose of following a particular course of study in an accredited institution of the receiving country. In the Muhammadiyah University of Makassar have received two foreign students who pass BIPA student scholarship. The first student come from China, Surya, is 25 years old. He ever learned Bahasa for two years but he cannot speak Bahasa well yet. So, through BIPA program he wants to learn more Bahasa. Besides that, Surya interested to learn Bahasa because for him, Bahasa is really beautiful and easier than China language.

The second student come from Hungarian, Susan Pelle, is 30 years old. She finished their study until diploma degree. And then she ever learned Bahasa and came in Indonesia since 2005, but Surya is clever to speak Bahasa than Susan. For susan , Bahasa is like a song when it is pronounced. One of the unique different culture between Hungaria and Indonesia is their language have a same pronunciation but have a meaning differently. For instance; the meaning of 'ember' in Indonesia is the small of basket, but the meaning of ember in bahasa Hungaria is 'a guy', the meaning of 'Hal' in Indonesia is page of book or the thing, but in Hungaria the meaning of 'Hal' is fish, the meaning of kaki in Indonesia is foot but in Hungaria the meaning of kaki is shit or feces, the meaning of 'bebas' in Indonesia is free but in Hungaria the meaning of 'bebas' is drunk, whereas the meaning of 'halal' in Indonesia is legal but in Hungaria the meaning of 'halal' is 'dead'.

The conceptual frame work shows about the teachers and foreign students do verbal communication, then in their verbal communication certainly contains kinds of language function. Moreover, the teachers and foreign students have a different culture, country and language. So, there is intercultural communication between the teachers and the foreign students.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

This chapter presents and explains research method, subject of the research, instrument of the research, procedure of collection data, and technique of data analysis that are used in this research.

A. Research Method

This research applied descriptive qualitative method because the main focus of this research is describing about language function used in intercultural verbal communication between the teachers and the foreign students. Based on Creswell (2014: 183), qualitative method is an inquiry process of understanding based on distinct methodological traditions of inquiry that explore a social or human problem. The researcher builds a complex, holistic picture, analyze words, reports detailed views of informants, and conducts the study in a natural setting.

B. Subject of the Research

In this research, the researcher investigated the language function in intercultural verbal communication. The subjects of this research were the teachers and the foreign students in Muhammadiyah University because they maintained the verbal communication during the teaching and learning Bahasa process, the teachers who are the native speaker of Indonesian language did verbal communication with two foreign students who is one from Hungarian and one from China. Besides that, the teachers and the foreign students used English and Bahasa in their interaction.

C. Instrument of the Research

In collecting data, the researcher used observation sheet to answer the research question. According Schmuck in Kawulich (2005:3), observation methods are useful to researchers in a variety of ways. They provide researchers with ways to check for verbal expression of feelings, determine who interacts with whom, grasp how participants communicate with each other, and check for how much time is spent on various activities.

D. Procedure of Collecting Data

In the collecting data, the researcher did research from 10th until 19th October 2017 during five meetings. The data collection is observation as following the procedure;

1. First, the researcher made an appointment with the teachers and the foreign students in order to do this research.

2. Second, the researcher attended teaching and learning process in the classroom for five meetings.

3. Third, the researcher observed intercultural verbal communication process in the classroom interaction for two hours in every meeting, and then the observation was conducted by using a video recorder.

4. Fourth, the researcher watched and re-observed the video record list of verbal communication between the teachers and the foreign students.

5. Fifth, the researcher transcribed the video about verbal communication. The next steps, the researcher classified what kinds of language function in intercultural verbal communication between the teachers and the foreign students

6. The last, the researched drew conclusion about the data what the researcher get about language function used in intercultural verbal communication between the teachers and the foreign students.

E. Technique of Data Analysis

After collecting the data, the next doing is analyzing the data based on theory. In this stage, the researcher used Jakobson's theory (2001: 250) to analyze the kinds of language function used by the teachers and the foreign students in their intercultural verbal communication.

CHAPTER IV

FINDING AND DISCUSSION

This chapter consists of findings and discussion. The findings part presents the result of the data analysis of language functions by the teachers and the foreign students in doing intercultural verbal communication at Muhammadiyah University (UNISMUH). Meanwhile the discussion part presents the detail description of the data findings.

A. Finding

In this part, the researcher presents the result of the data taken from the teachers and the foreign students in doing intercultural verbal communication. It is categorized and analyzed based on Roman Jakobson theory of language functions in Holmes (2001). This research aimed to find out the kinds of Language functions are used by the teachers and the foreign students in their intercultural verbal communication

After analyzing the data, the researcher found five kinds of language functions of six kinds of language function as shown in the table below.

Table of Kinds of Language Function in Intercultural Verbal Communication Teachers and Foreign Students.

No	Language Functions	Number of Language Functions Used
1	Expressive.	13
2	Directive.	23
3	Referential	15
4	Poetic.	4
5	Metalinguistic	50
	Total	105

The table above shows that there were five types of language function performed in intercultural verbal communication between the teachers and the foreign students, they were Expressive, directive, referential, poetic, and metalinguistic that would be explained below.

1. Expressive Function

Based on the table.1, it was shown that there were expressive functions in the following sentences and conversation.

Extract 1:

"Aiyyoo…"

The utterance above was expressed by the student from China, SR. He expressed complain, "Aiyyoooo…" because he asked to the teacher what the meaning of 'ikhlas' is, but the teacher only asked him to share that meaning in the dictionary.

Extract 2:

"It's very hard."

The utterance above was expressed by the student from China, SR. He expressed complain 'it's very hard,' because he was difficult to pronoun Bahasa word bangku. He pronoun always pronoun banggu.

Extract 3:

"It's really cake? Woww, great!"

The utterance was expressed by the student from China, SR when SS showed him kettle and cup picture but, actually they are cake tasted chocolate that made by SS.

Extract 4:

"Hoooaaammm…, I'm very sleepy."

The utterance was expressed by the student from Hungarian, SS. She expressed that she was really sleepy but she kept enthusiasm to learn Bahasa.

Extract 5:

"But, there is always something to make you cannot sleep as like your body is tired but your mind is still working so you say, "Owwh, Shit! I need sleep."

The utterance was expressed by the student from Hungarian. She expressed that how tired she was last night but her mind could not stop to think hard about anything.

2. Directive Function

Based on the table.1, it was shown that there were some directive functions utterance in intercultural communication between the teachers and the foreign students as shown in the following sentences.

Extract 6:

"I want receipt. Susan write receipt!"

The sentence was utterance by the teacher. When the teacher had taught the number subject in Bahasa where he as the buyer and the students as the seller, He asked SS to write a receipt Hungarian version.

Extract 7:

"Ahha, this is your task. Write now that! Susan, write the task!"

The sentence was utterance by the teacher, I. He asked the students to write and finished the task about vocabularies of furniture in Bahasa.

Extract 8:

"I want you describe someone! Up to you who she/he is but in the office area only. You can describe Mr. Wildan, Mr. Ismail, Mr. Idam, Ayu, Serli also. You have to describe one of them!"

The sentence was utterance by the teacher, MH. The students learn about part of body and physical feature in Bahasa. So, the teacher commanded the students to describe someone in the office KUI area.

Extract 9:
"You have to write! If you do not write this subject, you will forget it."

The sentence was utterance by the teacher, MH to ask the student that they have to write what MH explain about Bahasa subject.

Extract 10:
"Try to read!"

The sentence was utterance by the teacher, MH. She asked the student from china, SR to read the text in the book.

3. Referential Function

Based on the table.1, it was shown that there were some referential functions as shown in the following sentences.

Extract 11:

"Konghucu is not religion but they are philosopher. Konghucu is very good teacher for people in China."

The sentence was utterance by the teacher from China, SR. He informed that Konghucu is not religion but they are philosopher and good teacher for people in china.

Extract 12:

"Because scholarship students will do examination and the answer key there is in this new book."

Extract 13:

"This is the high-level book, C2. (Showing another new book)"

The sentence above (extract 12 and extract 13) were utterance by the teacher, I. He informed that the scholarship students would do examination, so the foreign students had to learn from the basic level until the high-level book.

Extract 14:

"There are many people use Purnama as their name because commonly they were born when happened full moon"

The sentence was utterance by the teacher, I. he informed that in Indonesia, commonly there are some people is named as Purnama because they were born when full moon was happening.

Extract 15

"You cannot give number phone and private information about yourself (with someone that you meet first time). But with your friends, you can ask everything."

The sentence was utterance by the student from Hungarian, SS. She informed that Hungarian people did not want give the number phone, and private information with someone whom they meet in the first time. Except with their close friends or someone that they had known well.

4. Poetic Function

Based on the table.1, it was shown that there were some poetic functions as shown in the following sentences.

Extract 16:
"Thank you."

Extract 17:
"Nice."

The sentences above were utterance by the student from China, SR. He said 'thank you' to SS for helping him count the money (see picture 2). And then, SR said 'nice' to admire SS have brown eye.

Extract 18:
"Iya, Maaf"

Extract 19:
"Iya, Makasih. Yah."

The sentences above were utterance by the student from Hungarian, SS. She said 'Iya, Maaf' (extract 9) as apologize utterance because she had said 'kurva' (bitch) in the office. And then, SS said 'Iya, makasih," as the pleasure utterance for the teacher that have taught well.

5. Metalinguistic Function

Based on the table.1, it was shown that there were some language functions in intercultural verbal communication between teachers and foreign students as shown in the following conversation.

Extract 20:
SS : "Kuitansi. What is kuitansi?
I : "Receipt. Ku-i-tan-si (spelling)

SS : "Like a bill?"
I   : "yes."

The conversation discussed about SS did not know what 'kuitansi' was, and the teacher (I) translate this word is receipt in English. SS was not sure her understanding about 'kuitansi.' So, to make it sure, she clarified the receipt is like a bill and the teacher (I) arrange it.

Extract 21:

SS: (showing the receipt to I that have been made in her book). The seller, me.
I: Penjual. Oke?
SS: Yes..yes. You buy, the buyer.
I: "buyer?"
SS: "Yes (nodding). You buy, the buyer."
I: "Is it address?"
SS: "This is address. My… My address."
I: "Store's address?"
SS: yes.
I: "What is this?"
SS: "Unismuh."
I: "oh, buyer's address?"
SS: "Yes..yes."
I: "What is this?"
SS: "What you buy."
I: "Item?"
SS: "Yes."

The conversation above talked about the receipt made by the student from Hungarian, SS. Her receipt was showed to the teacher, I. Then, SS explain what is the contents of her receipt.

Extract 22:

I   : "Ini hijau daun. Ini hijau tai kuda.

SR   : "What is tai kuda means?"

I   : " What is Kuda?"

SR   : "Horse."

I   : "Tai?"

SR   : "I don't know."

I   : "Kamu setiap hari bikin tai."

SR   : "Oh, ya" (nodding). Woww, it's shit of words."

The conversation above talked about colour in Bahasa. According to the conversation, SR knew the meaning of 'hijau' but he confused what 'tai kuda' is. When the teacher translated that words one by one, SR got the meaning of tai kuda. SR concluded that tai kuda is like shit words.

Extract 23:

SR   : "What is bulan sabit?"

I   : "In Indonesian language, sabit is tool of harvested. In Indonesia and farmers, they use tool like this."

SS   : "Sarlo in bahasa Hungarian. But sickle in English."

The conversation above clarified about the representation of 'bulan sabit." And the teacher (I) try to explain that. When the student from Hungarian (SS) understood what the teacher means, she said that sabit is 'sarlo' in Hungarian language and 'sickle' in English.

Extract 24

SS : "Ember"

I : "What else?

SR : "What is ember?"

SS : "Is the small of basket."

SR : "oh, ember."

SS : "Because in bahasa Hungarian ember is orang."

The conversation above talked about the clarification of 'ember' because SR still confused. So, SS explain the meaning of 'ember' into English and then she clarified again that 'ember in Hungarian language is 'orang' (a man)

Extract 25

I : "What is kurva?"

SS : "Kurva is in bahasa Hungarian is slang word and it means bitch."

I : "Oh, pelacur?"

SS : "Iya, kupu-kupu malam."

The conversation above talked about what 'kurva' means. Then, the student from Hungarian (SS) explain the meaning of 'kurva' in Bahasa and English.

B. Discussion

Based on the findings above, the researcher would like to give further description and explanation about the language function used in intercultural verbal communication between the teachers and the foreign students.

Based on Roman Jakobson theory in Holmes (2001), there are six kinds of language function, they are expressive refers to the speaker's feeling, directive is commonly commands and requests, referential is conveying information based on the context, poetic is conveying the pleasure, phatic expresses solidarity and empathy with others, and metalinguistic refers to the code analysis of language use. However, the researcher only finds that the students and the foreign students used five kinds of language function in their intercultural verbal communication as following the explanation.

1. Expressive Function

Expressive Function means express the speaker's feeling. Expressive focuses on addresser who addresses a message. The aim of expressive function is to convey the speaker's emotion or expression. The aim of a direct expression of the speaker's attitude toward what he is speaking about. It tends to produce an impression of certain emotion whether true of feigned. It means that the addresser's own towards the content of the message is emphasize.

The researcher finds that there are 13 data which is categorized as expressive function such as shown in the extract 1 and extract 2 contain the complaining expression, extract 3 contains the amazement expression, extract 4 contains the sleepy expression, and extract 5 contains annoyance expression.

2. Directive Function

Directive Function means attempt to get someone to do something. It means that language used purpose of causing or preventing) overt action. This function is most commonly commands and requests. Directive function focuses on the addressee; it means that the speaker needs the reaction from the hearer or to make someone perform a particular action. The aim of directive function is to convey the speaker's command.

The researcher finds that there are 23 data which are categorized as directive function as shown the extract 6 and extract 7 the speaker (the teacher) command the hearer (the student) to write receipt and task, extract 8 the speaker (the teacher) command the hearer (the student) to describe someone , extract 9 contains the suggestion but it is categorized as the directive function because the speaker (the teacher) need an action from the hearer (the students) to make something that is writing, and extract 10 the speaker (the teacher) asked the hearer (student) to read.

3. Referential Function

Referential function means provide information essentially referential function is the communication of information. This function affirms or denies propositions, as in science or the statement of fact. These sentences have a truth value; that is, the sentences are either true or false (recognizing, of course, that we might know what that truth value is). Hence, they are important for logic. Referential function focuses on the context; it means that referent or subject matter of discourse, and what it refers to.

The researcher finds 15 data which are categorized as referential function as shown the extract 11 contains an information about Konghucu is not religion but a philosopher and a good teacher in China, extract 12 and extract 13 contains an information about the new books and the scholarship students will do examination, extract 14 contains an information about some people in Indonesia use name 'Purnama' because they were born when the full moon was happening, and extract 15 contains an information about how the Hungarian people meet with the some person in the first time **.

4. Poetic Function

Poetic Function means focus on aesthetic feature of language. It is in which the particular form chosen is the essence of the message. Messages convey more than just the content. They always contain a creative 'touch of our own. These additions have no purpose other than to make the messages 'nicer'. The word poetic doesn't refer to the ability to write poetry, but the ability to manipulate language in a creative way. The aim of poetic function is to convey the pleasure.

The researcher finds that there are only four data which are categorized as poetic function such as shown the extract 16, extract 17, extract 18, and extract 19. They are categorized as poetic function because contained conveying the pleasure.

5.   Metalinguistic function

Metalinguistic Function means comment on the language itself. This function is the use of language to discuss or describe itself. It focuses attention upon the code itself, to clarify or negotiate it. This function is about language. Metalinguistic is also predominant in question like "Sorry, what did you say?" where the code is misunderstood and needs correction or clarification. The aim of metalinguistic is to convey the code analysis.

The researcher finds that there are 50 data which is categorized as metalinguistic function such as shown the extract 20 contains about the clarification about the meaning of word 'kuitansi' in English, extract 21 contains the code analysis which is code 'you buy' refers to the 'buyer', code my address refers to 'store's adress', code Unismuh refers to 'buyer's address, and 'what you buy' refers to 'item', extract 22 contains the clarification about the meaning of 'hijau tai kuda' in English , extract 23 contains the clarification about the meaning of word' bulan sabit' in English, extract 24 contains the clarification about the meaning of word 'ember', and extract 25 contains the clarification about the meaning of word 'kurva' in English and Bahasa.

The researcher does not find the phatic function in verbal communication between the teacher and the foreign students because the researcher come in the research location when the teaching and the learning process have been going on. Besides that, metalinguistic function is the dominantly used by the teachers and the foreign students because of two reasons; First, the teachers and the foreign students study about language BAHASA, so they are more talking about the language. Second, they have different country, culture, language, and they are not a native English. So, certainly the teachers and the foreign students need more the clarification if there are words of language that they do not understand.

Moreover, In the metalinguistic function also, verbal communication between the teacher and the foreign students contains many the code analysis of language which are appeared that they have a different culture in language. As shown in the extract 21 which is talking about colour in Bahasa. Through the conversation in the extract 21, it could be seen that they have some different kinds of color in their language. For instance; in Indonesia there is color 'hijau tai kuda'. 'Hijau daun', and 'hijau tua', but in English, there is only 'green'. Whereas in the extract 23, it could be seen that 'ember' have a different meaning in Hungarian language. In Indonesia 'ember' is known as a bucket but in Hungarian is 'a man' in English and 'orang' if this word is translated into Bahasa. It means that, through the language function used by the teachers and the foreign students in their verbal communication contains intercultural communication also because they share their culture and the meaning of their language each other.

Then, from the six previous findings, the researcher compared that it has similarity and difference. The similarity with Ihsana, Rohani, Tajeddin, Robibim, Camalia, and Muammar's research is about intercultural communication while the difference is this research focused on analyzing Language function used by the teachers and the foreign students as their intercultural verbal communication. It is different from the previous researchers, such as Ihsana, Rohani, Tajeddin, Robibim, Camalia, and Muammar. Ihsana focused on Students Competence in Intercultural Communication and found that Pattani students did not have enough culture cognition; see themselves as exclusive group; insufficient interaction with surrounding community; closed attitudes; verbal communication behavior; and less active in interpersonal relationship. Rohani focused on oral communication strategies in Indonesian and Japanese. She found that there were differences in the use of strategies were affected by English proficiency and individual differences, especially cultural background, age, and gender. Tajeddin talked about cross-cultural perception of impoliteness by native English speakers and EFL learners, he found that both groups mentioned similar impoliteness criteria. Robibim talked about not only emphasize how people of Indonesia and Japan differ in speech, but how they act each other and how they follow the rules that govern the behavior of covert community members, he found that there was some characteristic of non-verbal communication between Indonesian (body motion communication) such as, eye contact, gestures, and facial expression. Camalia focused on analyzing of Intercultural Communication Strategies Used between American and Chinese Showed in Karate Kid Movie, she found that the strategies of successful intercultural communication are speak slowly and clearly, ask for clarification, frequently check for understanding, avoid idioms, be careful of jargon, define the basic of business, be specific, choose your medium of communication effectively, provide information via multiple channels, and be patient. Whereas Muammar talked about Inter-Cultural Non-verbal Communication Strategies in Indonesian and Thailand students' Interaction, he found that the result of descriptive analysis the rate percentage of non-verbal communication strategies that have big roles in communication between Indonesian and Thailand students were 90% gesture and 10% eye contact.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

After analyzing the research findings and the discussion in the preceding chapter, conclusion and suggestion are taken. The conclusion is drawn based on the formulated research question, while suggestion is intended to give information to the next researchers who are interested in doing further researches in this area.

A. Conclusion

This study is conducted to find language function used in Intercultural communication between teachers and foreign students. The conclusion of this research can be formulated based on research question. The researcher used Jakobson theory in analyzing the data. The researcher finds the data which are appropriated with the characteristic of language function in the intercultural verbal communication between the teachers and the foreign students. It can be divided into five categories they are; expressive function is used to convey speaker's feeling and emotion, directive function is usually used to convey a command and request, the poetic function is usually used to convey the pleasure, and metalinguistic function is usually used to discuss about the code analysis of language. Then, the most dominant language function used by the teachers and the foreign students in their intercultural verbal communication is metalinguistic function. metalinguistic function is the dominantly used by the teachers and the foreign students because they study about BAHASA. Moreover, they have a different country, culture, language, and they are not a native English. So, certainly the teachers and the foreign students need more the clarification if there are words of language that they do not understand. In the metalinguistic function also, verbal communication between the teacher and the foreign students contains many the code analysis of language which are appeared the have a different culture in language.

B. Suggestion

The result of this research does not cover all of the kinds of language functions. However, this is still far from the complete one, but by this research at least it can be known the language functions used in intercultural verbal communication. Hopefully, criticism and suggestion will rise from the reader to gain the better researcher. Here the researcher will give suggestion to the students, to understand the types of language function, especially in intercultural communication between teachers and foreign students. Furthermore, the researcher suggests to use another theory of language function and different research subject or object.

The place of observation	:	Muhammadiyah University (UNISMUH) at. KUI office	Date of observation	:	7th-19th October 2017
Time of observation	:	10 am until 12.00 pm.	Transcriber	:	Warti Wahyuni Abdi. N

Note of research field

Description of Subject	The researcher met the subjects, teachers and foreign students in the KUI office. Then, the researcher made appointment with the subjects to do observation research when they were teaching and learning. First and second meeting, the researcher observed the foreign students was taught by Ismail (I). He is tall, has a good posture, oriental face, has a mustache and beard, and they always wore shirt. The next day until the fifth meeting, the students were taught by Muflihah (MH). She has dimple in cheek and wore hijab. Whereas Susan (SS), the one student from Hungarian, has a brown eye, brown short hair, white skin, and wore glass. She was friendly, tomboy, smoker, and she only use informal clothes when had a class but keep polite. The last subject is Surya (SR), the one students from China. He has a slanting eye, white skin, tin, not too tall and black short hair. He was friendly, not always speak too much, effeminate, but he was smart than Susan in Bahasa learning, and he always wore clothes neat.
Description of observation place	The researcher did observation research in KUI office (Kantor Urusan International). The condition room is not bad because have an Air Conditioner, wi-fi, and there was camera that could be used by the teacher for record her observation research. The class situation was enjoying, not too formal, either teachers, students, and researcher can do anything but it was not disturbed a learning process.
