This research focused on Brown and Levinson's theory about politeness namely positive politeness, negative politeness, bald on record and off record. The researcher only focused on two strategies namely positive and negative politeness based on the preliminary research that the researcher did. This researcher applied descriptive qualitative method in revealing the data. The researcher used observation sheet as the instrument to get the valid data. CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

This chapter consists of background study, research question, research objectives, research significance, and research scopes.

A. Background Study

In this modern era, using language in daily life must concern, though most of the group people knowing that using language, the speaker has a structure form each other in accordance with the background of each speaker (Clark 2006:366).

Based on the opinion of Clark, another opinion about the language appears from Saussure in Sukyadi (2013:3) in the French concept who explains that, there are three words that refer to the 'language' of parole, langage, and langue. The center attention of the researcher is the mean of Parole, because Parole is the expression of language that comes from the mind of every individual who will gradually become an influence for the social, which means the expression of a person when the language influences the way the people's judgment when they spoke to anyone additional valuation by presenting politeness in speech. The contrast to langage and langue, both come from outside the mind of each individual which means they rely on language only from the social interaction that they get without having to sort the negative and positive again from the group of speakers.

Therefore, it can be seen while in the field of social education, not all educational institutes to teach lessons on how to use the language or polite words an utterance, should in this case be learning is most important when taking up the compulsory fields. Moreover this can happen, because the school has been influenced by the opinion that states that a people's language is influence from the background of each individual. When at home, children no longer have time to pay attention to the important things parents teach them, because of changes in the influence of the environment that exist today than in the days that parents experience in their era. Parents always taught her daughters and son to speak a polite word to anyone, teacher, parents, older people, as well with her friends.

The advice is intends to let the spoken speech is her son not to cause effects that are not good for opponents of speech especially for her teacher. Speech one could result in a pleasant atmosphere and reverse speech could also bring disappointment. Lewis in Arifin (2013:17) says that the habit will drive someone to do something, which means that when any individual instill good habits on herself or rather polite in speech said it would be a good reason why they are in talks.

There are certain groups of speakers who make experience as a guide to their lives in everyday life. As is the case in a boarding school, as the researcher know that boarding school has more value in talking due to strengthen with the science of religion. As suggested by Buchori in Solahuddin (2008: 5) and Madjid in Arifin (2012: 8) about boarding school is an official educational that teaches about living in an Islamic way based on the way of life of the formely and prioritizing the way of life who is diligent in noble and virtuous character, one of which has been alluded to in the word of Allah SWT is having a noble character through the polite in speaking in the Verses on Al-Isra ': 23

﴿وَقَضَىٰ رَبُّكَ أَلَّا تَعْبُدُوا إِلَّا إِيَّاهُ وَبِالْوَالِدَيْنِ إِحْسَانًا ۖ إِمَّا يَبُلُغَنَّ عِنْدَكَ الْكِبَرَ أَحَدُهُمَا أَوْ كِلَاهُمَا فَلَا تَقُلْ لَهُمَا أُفٍّ وَلَا تَنْهَرْهُمَا وَقُلْ لَهُمَا قَوْلًا كَرِيمًا ٢٣﴾

Translation:

“23. And your Lord has commanded that you shall not serve (any) but Him, and goodness to your parents. If either or both of them reach old age with you, say not to them (so much as) "Ugh" nor chide them, and speak to them a generous word.”

Al-Mubarakfuri (2011: 350) says that this Verse came, Allah SWT gives the testament to His servant to serve the parents. If one of them is or both of them parents in your care, then do not say to both of them the word "Ugh", actually "Ugh" that includes the words that are at least rudeness. Furthermore, do not arise from you bad deeds to both of them because Allah SWT order to say and behave well. The point is a gentle, kind, full of Adab and respect.

Sometimes children who are overly sociable, have typical behaviors and sayings such as "Ugh" to their peers, friends around them and will gradually be brought into their personal life in the home like "Ugh" or greeting other disrespectful to both their parents. Good behavior and decent speech have been instructed by Allah SWT over and over in His speech because the devotion of both parents is the attitude of tawadhu' which indirectly implanted in our self. Based on the statement of Asy Syinqithi in Tuasikal (2009:1) says that one should be gentle and inferior, especially to older people, whose attitude is the words and deeds that would be a good habit for the speaker when communicating. Choosing to communicate courtesy in language when in boarding school is not a strange thing to observe, because often trainee talk to many people and the existence of different types of position with the principles of politeness speak according to knowledge of Islamic way of life.

Based on the hadith supporters of Al-Hilali (2008: 9) says that each level has its own courtesy, each level has a special Adab, which in communicating with each type of position is different. As the researcher observed students in boarding school of Ummul Mukminin, who have polite expression style using casual language in order to easily get good communication so that the context of polite language is never more a concern to students when communicating. In addition, impolite conversations often emerge when the students are close to each other or become good friends with each other, so the context of appropriate polite language suggested by Brown and Levinson (1987:88) in a politeness scale on why someone is politely prosecuted in speaking, the first because of social distance, position and strength. These three things are very tied to the reality that often occurs between students when communicating.

In this case, when students communicate with each other, the students prefer to use a language that is easy to understand to make them more familiar. Therefore, the students can communicate with each other well by avoiding the language that often create to misunderstanding, so impolite impression implies for the other person. This often happens by the students in daily life, who are one of the realities conversations that often occur inside and outside the dormitory or around the dorm. Furthermore, of one the conversation between students when using English is not in accordance with the face as wants (negative face and positive face). Furthermore, the other person is unable to give polite or impolite response to the speaker.

Holmes (2000:296) defines that being polite involves speaking to people appropriately in the light of their relationship to us. Politeness in general tend to happen, because it is supported by certain demands such as social distance, position and fear (threat), which must be obeyed by each student when communicating. In this case, the face as wants of the speaker is called FTA (Face Threatening Act) to describe the politeness by the students, which will describe the 'politeness' used by the students, that means the interlocutors will be attracted to the speaker while maintaining the kind of faces that have politeness during interaction such as negative face and positive face.

In this case, Brown and Levinson (1987:313) which proposed the model of politeness as FTA (Face Threatening Act) which makes the politeness of the speaker is double that are negative politeness and positive politeness. FTA is the most incident experienced from the speakers who rely on self-image observe candidate to interlocutors as the most targets in order to have good communication and to know the purpose of each other.

Therefore the researcher is interested in this research to know more which as a about polite expression used by the students boarding school of Ummul Mukminin used as a casual language with the aim to easily obtain good communication or interconnected between students. Based on that statement, the researcher also observed that the student's (English) polite in speaking only portrayed as a language style, because of the rules in the boarding school that are required to speak in addition to Indonesian language. Therefore, it becomes the center attention for the researcher because of the influence of FTA (Face Threatening Act) students to the other person who create the politeness of a double nature that are negative politeness and positive politeness. Moreover, the researcher tries to conduct the observation through the topic "The use of polite expression at boarding school of Ummul Mukminin among senior and junior students in daily life".

B. Research Questions

In relation to the statement above, the researcher formulated the research questions as follows:

- a. How are the strategies of politeness used by the students in daily conversation at boarding school of Ummul Mukminin?
- b. What are the most strategies of politeness do the students use in daily life at boarding school of Ummul Mukminin?

C. Research Objectives

Based on the statement above, the researcher concluded objectives of the research are below:

- a. To explained the strategies of politeness used by students in daily conversation at boarding school of Ummul Mukminin.
- b. To described the most strategies of politeness used by the students in daily life at boarding school of Ummul Mukminin.

D. Research Significances

The benefit of this research is the researcher hopes that it can provide more knowledge in understanding the use of the courtesy of speaking that often appear around us, through observation in the boarding school of Ummul Mukminin. In the English speaking with politeness, not only committed against older people, but also to everyone else. Then, it must be expressed, because indirectly polite attitude instill in speaking that means the people have shown mutual respect for each other. Through the use of the courtesy of speaking from students in PPUM, readers can be argued directly that the role of politeness in speaking very influences to everyday life in certain places to communicate, not only in the boarding school.

Next, another benefit is this study will be important in communicating with anyone and anywhere, with mutual appreciates in a speech. Based on this research, the purpose of the researcher to help further researcher who are interested in the relationships between social and related to politeness speaking in research-based linguistics and literature, especially students from the faculty of Adab and Humanities disciplines to better communicate through English or other languages.

E. Research Scopes

This research focused on polite expressions in daily life used by students boarding school of Ummul Mukminin Makassar. In doing this research, the researcher limited the explanation about the strategies of politeness used by students in daily conversation and the most strategies of politeness used by the students with theory of politeness. Furthermore, indicators of theory politeness from Brown and Levinson (1987: 313) who define that, to do the FTA (Face Threatening Act) negative face and positive face will make the strategies of politeness such as, positive politeness and negative politeness.

CHAPTER II

LITERATURE REVIEW

A. Previous Studies

Relating to the topic of the thesis, there are some previous studies found by the researcher. There are two previous studies that discuss about politeness. From two previous studies, all of the data were analyzed by using Brown and Levinson's theory.

Arini (2016) in her thesis, "Politeness Distinction: Terms of Address Used by Banjarese in Daily Life". She found that Pian used by 15 respondents in interacting with parents and Ulun to describe yourself, Abah and mama which are used by 11 respondents to say hello to their parents while the other respondents using 4 "bapak" and "mama", "abah" and "ibu", "papa" and "mamah", and "mama" and "papap". Moreover, to greet their friends, 15 respondents using I and ikam. While the honor of the people who stayed high as teachers and professors, or all of the respondents use, father, mother, and pian. All the data belong to the category of politeness by Anna (2008:2) includes referent of polite pronouns, titles, honorifics, nominal and verbal honorifics. The conclusion, there are three levels of politeness in interactions with parents in Banjar: the most polite; ulun and pian, impolite; ikam and aku, and most impolite; nyawa and unda.

Ningsih (2012) in her thesis, "An analysis of Politeness Strategies used by Harry Potter in J.K Rowling's novel "Harry Potter and Sorcerer's Stone". She found that 90 data which contain politeness strategies and about 16 data that had been analyzed by the writer. All the data belong to the four politeness strategies as being proposed by Brown and Levinson (1987:313), namely bald on record, positive politeness, negative politeness, and off record. The conclusion, bald on record strategy is used by Harry in the situation of urgency, positive politeness strategy uses it to people around him in order to satisfy their positive face, negative politeness strategy also used by Harry as he wants to satisfy the hearer's negative face, and the last result is off record strategy used by Harry because he wants to be indirect and gives the hearer clues. Harry used those to his friends, teachers, and character around him.

Having compared between two researchers, above they have similarity to this research, since this research topic also talked about politeness. The differences from the first previous, that she examined the different terms of politeness used by youth Banjar in their daily life, using a qualitative descriptive study conduct on 15 participants at random. Then, the second previous is the researcher described the politeness strategy used by Harry Potter in J. K Rowling's novel, using a qualitative descriptive study conducted on 90 data from the results of the comparison and 16 data already presented directly from the author in his novel.

In this study, the researcher conducted a study related to two previous researchers. The researcher differentiated by not only discussing on the context of politeness use, but also connected to the facial expressions while speaking and the language context used by the students based on theory of politeness. The researcher also used the research method of descriptive qualitative to analyze the polite expression used by students based on Brown and Levinson theory (1987: 313) model of politeness is FTA (Face Threatening Act) concept as negative politeness, positive politeness and off record, which are supported by expression from a speaker that is students boarding school of Ummul Mukminin. The purpose of this study, not only to express the kinds of politeness, but also put forward the things that cause the students to do not prioritize the politeness in communicating.

B. Conceptual Framework

1. Language of Communication

Whorf (1999:125) defines language is what the cast of a people's speech is where it comes from one thought, he also said that a language can affect a person cultural meaning that language plays a very important role in every human action. This statement is very concerned with the opinion of the Saussure in Sukyadi that expresses the concept of language in French was divided into 3 one of which Parole, parole is described as a language expression that is derived from the thinking of every individual. This can prove the researcher opinion, that the way human thinking affects the language that is exposed to others, because the language will be a tool to communicate to other people. Moilanen in Radhiah (2013:20) says that communication as a process by which our assign and convey meaning in an attempt to create shared understanding.

Then comes the opinions of Bernstein in Atkinson (2002:125) about the language speakers was divided into 2 language diversity speech that is elaborated code (formal situation) and restricted code (universal situation). Both are distinguished only from how people played both, elaborated here used in formal situations or in academic discussion. While the restricted use in universal situations such as in family or between friends. Bernstein then exposes the relations between both the code with the membership class, which is elaborated are of limited means that the language to be leveled to the caller was minimal because it is tied to the context of formal languages are not restricted and limited due to the lack of context that are bound to each other except between social distance, position, and fear.

The existence of such statements, Clark (2006:366) states that in using language speakers make the choices of many communicative types because each speaker must have an agreement between two speakers, whether it deals that are the real deal and that is bound to a particular context as it has been expressed before. Through cooperation or agreement, Grice (2001:47) in the concept of pragmatic about the cooperative principle States that a reasonable discourse can occur if both of the speakers of mutually cooperative principles comply with communication, in this case posited four maxim Grice cooperative principles that are communicating maxim of quantity, the maxim of quality, the maxim of relevance, and maxims of manner.

- 1) Maxim of Quantity: in the speech of every conversation, speakers are required to donate the needed information only, and do not make a contribution more informative than is required.

Example: Students are sick of a fever.

- 2) Maxim of Quality: maxim requires each conversation, speakers to contribute information. In other words good speakers or partners said did not say anything that was considered wrong, and every contribution to the conversation should be supported by adequate evidence.

Example: I have reviewed this student and she certainly has been suffering from a high fever.

- 3) Maxim of Relevance: maxim requires each participant contributes to conversations that are relevant to the issue of the talks.

Example:

a. Your pickup has come.

b. Wait a minute, I'm going to the toilet first.

- 4) Maxim of Manner: with this maxim, the participants expected speech to talk directly, no blur, no taxes and no extravagance and coherently. Example: I am not waiting for you, because I'm in a hurry.

From the four maxim descriptions, researcher concluded that communication is the main weapon for mutually bound when using language with observe some important points, because of the relationships that are mutually bound to each speaker should pay attention to another matter in addition to the concept of a cooperative agreement in principle by Grice. Leech (2001:198) explains that the speech of a person can identify by conducting a follow up, by the presence of the people's situation as it is easier to understand the intent of your opponent's interlocutor. Follow the said person can observe good whether or not someone is talking, in this polite expression became the main target of the speech act in question. Yule (2000:91) defines a polite expression as the means use to indicate an awareness of the other people's face.

Based on the above explanations, the researcher concluded that the language is the identity of a person when communication. Without the language of one identity will not be revealed for granted owing to language will rub off on its own when it has become the habit of everyday life (Brown in Saussure 1993:57). Relate to this research, senior students when communication to junior by way of speaking that is impolite and support from the face as wants its researcher conclude that the speakers are on environmental communication is not good, because the speech is to be study to determine the parts. Then, for language is a set of data that may arise in a society.

2. Politeness

According to Brown and Levinson (1987:61) in social interactions every day, people seem to behave like public self image one of politeness, polite in speaking will introduce face as a speakers identity, meaning that all the speakers are interested in interacting continuously. When someone says something that is a threat to other people expectations about their self image, such action is said to be a Face Threatening Act (FTA). Brown and Levinson also say that the FTA there is negative face and positive face.

- 1) Positive face: The positive and consistent image people have of themselves, and their desire for approval.

Example :

A: I would advise that person to play down his music if it is late at night like this.

B: Yes, mom, he bugs me sleep, let alone in our house there is a baby that is still small.

2) Negative face: is the basic claim to the territories, personal preserves and right to non-distraction, with regard to the explanation of the FTA.

Example :

A: Who is playing the music of it? She is very disturbing my sleep.

B: Sorry it is me Sarah, I guess you are not above your bedroom.

Lakoff in Eeelen (2001:2) defines that politeness is a system of interpersonal relations designed to facilitate interaction by human interaction by minimizing, potential conflict and confrontation inherent in all human interchange. In communication, politeness can be defined as the means to show awareness of another person's face. Face means public self-image of person. It refers to that emotional and social sense of self that every person has and expects everyone else to recognize.

Leech in Jamet and Jober (2013:126) deals with politeness as part of "interpersonal rhetoric". Building upon Grice, he claims that politeness, which is, with cooperation, necessary to ensure that communication will be successful, involves aviolation of Grice's conversational maxims of achieving maximally efficient communication. Leech introduces his politeness principle and argues that this principle is just important as the cooperative principle. While the purpose of cooperative principle is to regulate what their says that the communication can most efficiently reach a given illocutionary or discoursal goal, the politeness principle maintains social balance and friendly relations, which contributes to enhancing cooperative and thus provides a stable and suitable environment for effective discourse. Leech (2007:64) proposes the following maxims of his politeness principle:

1. Tact Maxim

- a. Minimize cost to other
- b. Maximize benefit to other

Example:

Like Lakoff and Leech, Brown and Levinson in Fialova (2010:14) in the most influential politeness theory, describe politeness in term of conflict avoidance. Their theory is based on the concept of “face”, which consists of two aspects: negative face and positive face.

In the explanation of "face" Brown and Levinson (1987:322) explained there are several strategies in doing FTAs are positive politeness, negative politeness, bald on record, and off record the following sections kinds strategies of politeness such as:

| Positive Politeness | Negative Politeness | Off Record | Bald on Record |
|---|---|---|--|
| <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Notice, attend to H (his/her interest, wants, needs, goods) ○ Exaggerate (interest, approval, sympathy with H) ○ Intensify interest to H ○ Use in-group identity markers ○ Seek agreement ○ Avoid disagreement | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Be direct/ conventionally indirect ○ Question, hedge ○ Be pessimistic ○ Minimize the size of imposition on H ○ Give difference ○ Apologize ○ Impersonalise S and H: avoid | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Give hints/clues ○ Give association clues ○ Presuppose ○ Understate ○ Over state ○ Use tautologies ○ Use contradictions ○ Be ironic ○ Use metaphors ○ Use contradictions | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Great urgency or desperation ○ Watch out! ○ Speaking as if great efficiency is necessary ○ Pass me the hammer ○ Little or no desire to maintain someone's face ○ Don't forget to clean the blinds! ○ Doing the FTA is in the interest of the hearer ○ Your headlights are on! |

|--|--|---|----------------------|
| <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Presuppose/raise/assert common ground ○ Joke ○ Assert or presuppose S's knowledge of and concern for H's wants ○ Offer, promise ○ Be optimistic ○ Include both S and H in the activity ○ Give (or ask for) reasons ○ Assume or assert reciprocity | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> pronouns 'I' and 'you' ○ State the FTA as a general rule ○ Nominalize ○ Go on record as incurring a debt, or as not indebting H | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Be ironic ○ Be ambiguous ○ Be vague ○ Over-generalise ○ Displace H ○ Be incomplete, use ellipsis | Task-oriented |

| | | | |
|---|--|--|--|
| <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Give gifts to H (goods, sympathy, understanding, cooperation) | | | |
|---|--|--|--|

(S= Speaker, H=Hearer and A=Action)

Brown and Levinson (1987:318) explained that the factors influencing the choice strategies:

"In this section that any rational speaker will tend to choose the same strategy of the genus in the same condition that is, make the same steps like others have done in a situation like this"

Based on that opinion, the strategies will appear in each conversation will make a profit and a loss for S's and H's. In this case a person's facial expression will make politeness double as negative politeness, positive politeness, bald on record, and off record. In the strategies section, the researchers conclude the notion of bald on record (language directly between H's and S's) and off record (language indirectly between H's and S's).

The researcher concludes that politeness is the ethics of speech of someone who can be judged from the face as wants, because when opposing speakers communicate with each other or talk had the courtesy of speaking style as well as positive and negative face causing a politeness that is double i.e. politeness, positive politeness negative. In this case the speaker negative face and negative politeness tends to be played by someone who is capable of giving threats like social distance, position, and fear. Whereas a positive face and positive politeness tends to be portrayed by speakers who have a base of higher truth in a topic of discussion in communicating (Brown in Mills 2003:6).

Extract 80: Talking about the gifts

S1: Sister, this is gift to you, take it!

S2: OMG (oh my God), when my birthday is pas a few days sister.

S1: (laugh) Dont be seen from the price nah, because this item is only purchased from the cooperation ji.

S2: Deh, no problem sister, thanks a lot.

This conversation was taken on November 19th 2017 (1st day) at 20.25 in the room information. The conversation was spoken by the speaker about gift to the hearer, so the speaker statement is not indebted to the hearer.

B. DISCUSSION

In this section, the researcher explained the data obtained that had been gotten from the findings above about politeness from Brown and Levinson's theory (1987:313). There are two results of data obtained: strategies of politeness used by students and the most strategies of politeness used by students in daily conversation in Ummul Mukminin boarding school Makassar.

1) The used of politeness strategies by the students in daily conversation

According to Brown and Levinson (1987:313) politeness is concerned about the face, both the speaker's face and the hearer's face. Means by caring on the face of the speaker and hearer is not to eliminate the relationship gap between the speakers. In this theory of Brown and Levinson (1987:313) say that there are 4 politeness strategies as a supporter of relationship between speakers that are, positive politeness, negative politeness, bald on record and off record.

In this research, from 4 strategies proposed by Brown and Levinson (1987), there are 2 strategies (positive and negative politeness) that become observational research. Besides, the others strategies (bald on record and off record) have quite difficult criteria to find in this research object, because they are the dominant politeness strategies that arises in certain environment and the closest level of relationship between speakers. Therefore, this research only focused on 2 strategies that are positive and negative politeness.

Furthermore, in this research there are 45 conversations found in polite expressions that students used based on 2 strategies (positive and negative politeness) that become research scope. Which where, the conversation consists of 52 as positive politeness data and 28 data as negative politeness, so totally data analyzed is 80 data polite expression.

The results of this research, very different from the previous studies as presented at the beginning of chapter two, namely Ningsih (2012), she analyzed about politeness strategies in the Harry Potter in J.K Rowling's novel "Harry Potter and Sorcerer's stone". In her research, she found 90 data obtained based on 4 strategies:

positive politeness, negative politeness, bald on record and off record (Brown and Levinson, 1987:313). She argues that, positive politeness strategy is used by Harry on the people around him in order to satisfy their positive face, negative politeness used by Harry as he wants to satisfy the hearer negative face, bald on record used by Harry on the situation of urgency and the last off record is used by Harry, because he wants to be indirect and gives the hearer clues.

Then, the other previous findings, Arini (2016) she analyzed the different terms of politeness used by Banjarese in daily life. In her research, she found 3 level of politeness based on Anna's theory about politeness (2008:2) that are, the most polite, impolite and most impolite. She argued that 3 levels of politeness consists of politeness terms such as, most polite: ulun and pian, impolite: ikam and aku, and most impolite: nyawa and unda.

2) The most strategies of politeness used by students in daily conversation

In this research, the data found based on politeness strategies, positive and negative politeness, the researcher argues that the most dominant strategies appear to be used by students in daily life. That the data is based on the most intimate level of relationship, when their wants to convey information and getting mutual benefits between speakers. Positive politeness strategies as presented based on 15 strategies that were, notice attend to H (his interest,wants,needs,goods), Exaggerate (interest, approval, sympathy with H), intensify interest to H, use in group identity markers, seek agreement, avoid agreement, presuppose/raise/assert/common ground, joke, assert or presuppose S's knowledge of and concern for H's wants, offer promise, be optimistic, included both S and H in the activity, give (or ask for) reasons, assume or assert reciprocity, and give gifts to H (goods, sympathy, understanding, cooperation).

Furthermore, the polite expression used by students is not based on the level of politeness as Anna in Arini (2016) suggests, that there were several levels of politeness, that are most polite, impolite and most impolite. Then, the negative politeness as presented based on 10 strategies, that were be direct/conventionally indirect, question/hedge, be pessimistic, minimize the size of imposition on H, give difference, apologize, impersonalize S and H: avoid pronouns 'I' and 'You', state the FTA as a general rule, nominals, and go on record as incurring a debt or as not indebted H. Polite expression derived from negative politeness strategy, inferred from the gap of relationship between students when communicating.

In this research, the researcher argued that the data found concern with the certain situations in some places are most often found in the activities of inter-student conversation that were, in the cafeteria, in bed room, in dormitory, in corridor, in classroom, in the hall, in the mosque, in the kitchen, in cooperation and in information room. Moreover, from all of the explanation above, the researcher stated that is positive politeness as the most strategies of polite expression used by students in daily conversation, because all of their more dominant communicated when they wants to convey something to getting mutual benefits. Then, this research also suggests that positive politeness become very influenced in every way the students talked, because the biggest influence from the hearer judging to ethics of speak the students based on in used the polite language.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter presents the conclusion of the study and the suggestion of the researcher would like to give. This chapter is divided into two sections. They are conclusions and suggestions. The detail of each section will be presented below.

A. CONCLUSION

After analyzing the data, the researcher answered two research questions concerning the used strategies of politeness by students and the most strategies of politeness using the students at boarding school of Ummul Mukminin Makassar in daily conversation. Related to the strategies of politeness, they are bald on record, off record, positive politeness and negative politeness. In this research, the researcher only took the data based on two strategies most commonly use when communicating in daily life, that are positive politeness and negative politeness. The conclusions of the two questions that have been resolved are:

1. The researcher concluded that the positive politeness and negative politeness are basically general and used in every speaker or hearer, as the researcher has concluded that students are more dominant using, because that strategy has benefit the students can use when their want to become more intimate speaker and hearer.

2. Furthermore, from the 45 data obtained from the researcher, she concludes that the most types of strategies politeness used by students in daily conversation, that is strategy which can give benefits between students when communicating is a close relationship of intimacy, can be seen indirectly from the use of formal or non formal language used while daily communicating.

It can be concluded that the most strategies used by students in daily conversation at boarding school of Ummul Mukminin is positive politeness strategy, because the students are more dominant to have conversations, when they wants to convey something that allows mutual benefit between speaker and hearer. In this case, politeness is a judgement in the form of the hearing language of the hearer to speaker who can indirectly be inferred as a people's attitude personally when communicating.

B. SUGGESTION

In this section, the researcher make it the suggestions directed to the reader, lectures, departments, students and further researchers.

In using the language while communicating, the speaker should not only pay attention to whom he or she communicates, but the speaker should attention to all aspects of politeness that must be considered when communicating, that are place, the topic of discussion and the language pattern used should be related the level of interest of the hearer when communicating in daily life.

Moreover, the researchers hopes that this research can motivate further researchers who are interested in the language of communication, especially polite expression in daily life. The topic of this politeness, can also provided a positive impact for the researcher, especially when communicating with a particular person, she are able to correct the language that is often used better based on data processed and discussed based on accurated theory.
