ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

Alhamdulillah Rabbil 'Alamin, the researcher would like to express gratitude to the Almighty Allah SWT. for His blessing and mercy so the researcher could complete this thesis. Peace and salutation are always addressed to the beloved and chosen messenger Muhammad Saw. The researcher realized that this thesis could not be completed without getting assistance, guidance, understanding, and encouragement from many people. The researcher would like to express her deepest gratitude to the following:

1. The researcher's beloved parents, A.Mukaddam Dewa and A.Ratnawati for their affections, patiences, supports and prayers for her safety and success and also to her beloved brothers and sisters, A. Abd. Rahman Al-Hallaj, A. Waisul Karani, S.Kom. , A. Muh. Samman, A.Nurul Nuqta, A. Ainul Putri Nilam Kusuma, A. Mulla Sadra, and A. Jauhar Manikam.
2. Prof. Dr. H. Musafir Pababbari, M.Ag., as the Rector of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar, who has given her chance to study in English and Literature Department so that she could finish her study.
3. Dr. H. Barsihannor, M.Ag., as the Dean of Adab and Humanities Faculty, Kustiwan Syarief, S.Ag., M.A., Ph.D as the Head of English and Literature Department and Syahruni Junaid, S.S., M.Pd. as the Secretary of English and Literature Department of Adab and Humanities for their support and encouragement.

4. Dr. Jumharia Djamereng, M.Hum. as her first supervisor and Dr. Serliah Nur, S.Pd., M.Hum., M.Ed. as her second supervisor who have guided and advised her during completing her thesis.
5. Dr. Hj. Nuri Emmiyati, M.Pd.as her first examiner and Faidah Yusuf, S.S., M.Pd.as her second examiner for their critics, corrections and suggetions.
6. All the lecturers of Adab and Humanities Faculty, for their knowledge, enlightenment, and advices during the academic years and also to all staff of Adab and Humanities Faculty, for their help and administrative support.
7. Helmi Syukur, S.Pd.I., M.Pd. as her moderator for his support and help.
8. Her beloved friends A.Sainung, Nurul Mustakim Anhar, Yasmin Ilham, Muhammad Guntur, Agya Linda Ratnasari, Nurfadillah, Nurul Izmy and Lilis Karlina for supporting, caring, helping, laughing, and being the place for sharing.
9. All of her friends, seniors and juniors in English and Literature Department especially in AG 3 & 4 batch 2014 for the friendship, laugh and togetherness.
10. Her beloved Bua Squad's members, Ilmah, Aten, Rere, Jusma, Illang, Bojes, Mukhlis and Aco for their support and advice in completing this thesis.
11. All of her friends, seniors and juniors in HPPMI Maros Komisariat UINAM, ECUINSA, LAPMI Ukkiri, HMI Komisariat Adab dan Humaniora andKoperasi Mahasiswa UINAM for their advices and guidances.

The researcher realizes that this thesis is still imperfect and needs suggestion and criticism. Despite of its imperfection, the researcher hopes that this thesis can be useful for the students, the lecturers and all the readers. May Allah SWT bless us.

Title : Syntactical Errors in Writing Produced by the Third Semester Students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar
Supervisor I : Jumharia Djamereng
Supervisor II : Serliah Nur

This research was about syntactical errors in writing which was produced by the third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar. This research based on the surface strategy taxonomy theory by Dulay, Burt and Krashen. This research applied descriptive qualitative method. The instrument of this research was the researcher herself and the students' final writing examination sheets as data source. The findings revealed that the students committed 328 omission errors, 149 addition errors, 223 malformation errors and 11 disordering errors. Based on the result, omission errors were the most dominant errors that occurred in their writing. The researcher concluded that the students tended to produce syntactical errors when they wrote a text.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background

Nowadays, all things are demanded to be international standard. The quality of education, the appearance of vendible, even the language must fulfill international standard. In this case, the use of English as the official international language becomes a demand. This demand provides some effects such as it encourages people to use English and because of the lack of English knowledge, they make some mistakes and errors.

English learner cannot avoid making mistake and error. It is because English is foreign language that has different structure from the learner's mother tongue. In line with what is said by Brown (2007: 263), he explains that there are two factors that cause errors. They are interlingual and intralingual transfer. Interlingual transfer is an error resulted from language transfer because of the learner's first language. The second factor is intralingual transfer that occurs when the learner learns the target language wrongly or partially.

One branch of linguistics, syntax that is the rule to form sentences, is a branch that usually has errors in its application, especially the use of English syntax in written form. It is very important to learn about syntax. When we are trying to express our feelings or ideas through sentence, misunderstanding will occur if we do not apply the syntax of the language that we use. With applying the syntax of the language properly, it will give better communication and understanding.

There is previous study related to this topic. The research is from Rahmaniar (2013). She found that there were 18 (21,68%) omission errors, 27 (32,53%) addition errors, 36 (43,37%) misformation errors, and 2 (2,4%) misordering errors in the speakers utterances. It showed that the most frequent errors were misformations (43,37%).

There are also verses in the holy Qur'an related to this topic. It is in surah al-Ahzab verse 70-71 that is:

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوا اتَّقُوا اللَّهَ وَقُولُوا قَوْلًا سَدِيدًا ۗ يُصْلِحْ لَكُمْ أَعْمَالَكُمْ وَيَغْفِرْ لَكُمْ ذُنُوبَكُمْ ۗ وَاللَّهُ وَرَسُولُهُ قَدَّ
فَازَ قَوْرًا عَظِيمًا ٧١

Translation:

“O you who believe! Be careful of (your duty to) Allah and speak the right word. He will put your needs into a right state for you, and forgive you your faults; and whoever obeys Allah and His Messenger, he indeed achieves a mighty success.”(Al-Ahzab verse 70-71).

Based on Hamka (1988:109) Allah SWT says: “O you who believe! Be careful of (your duty to) Allah and speak the right word. This verse means that Allah gives a warning to people who acknowledge themselves as believers, to let their faith be nurtured well so it thrives and develops. They are also asked to say the right words, not complicated words that can refer to other meanings. By choosing the right words, no words will arise that can cause misunderstandings and hurt other people's hearts.

“He will put your needs into a right state for you” means by choosing orderly, honest, and precise words when they want to talk, it will have a great effect on work or actions and chosen charity in their life. “and forgive you your faults” means the mistakes we have made will be forgiven by Allah. “and whoever obeys Allah and His Messenger,” means all people who carry out orders and stay away from the prohibitions of Allah and his Messenger, “he indeed achieves a mighty success”.

Based on the researcher’s observation and interview, many English learners especially English and Literature students still made mistake and error in arranging sentence that could cause misunderstanding. It became a significant problem since they had entered Structure, Writing even Morphology and Syntax classes. Considering that problem , the researcher was interested in conducting a research about “Syntactical Errors in Writing Produced by the Third Semester Students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar” so it could be a consideration for lecturer in the future to reduce those mistakes and errors.

B. Research Questions

The researcher formulated research questions as follows:

1. What are the syntactical errors in writing produced by the third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar?

2. What are the most dominant syntactical errors in writing produced by the third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar?

C. Research Objective

Based on the research questions above, the researcher proposed the objective of the research as follows:

1. To analyze syntactical errors in writing produced by the third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar.

2. To explain the most dominant syntactical errors in writing produced by the third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar.

D. Research Significance

The significances of the research are:

1. Theoretically, the result of this research is expected to provide information to the lecturer in teaching syntax. This research also can be a reference for the next researcher especially English and Literature Department student who wants to analyze about syntactical error.

2. Practically, this research can help the reader to arrange a good writing in English.

E. Research Scope

In this research, the researcher only focused on analyzing syntactical errors in writing produced by the third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar based on the surface strategy taxonomy theory of Dulay, Burt and Krashen. Dulay, Burt and Krashen (1982:150-163) classifies error into four categories, they are omission, addition, misformation and misordering.

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

A. Previous Studies

Many researchers studied about error analysis. It showed that error analysis was an interesting object to study. In this opportunity, the writer would review the research of Rahmaniar (2013), Rachmat Faisyal (2015) and Nurmuliani Rusli (2018) as the researcher's previous studies. The first research from Rahmaniar (2013) entitled "Grammatical Errors Produced by the Speakers of English Corner Program on TVRI Makassar" aimed to find out grammatical errors and frequency of errors types produced by the speakers of English Corner program on TVRI Makassar. This research applied descriptive method and used the surface strategy taxonomy based on theory of Dulay. The result of the research showed that there were 18 omission out of 83 errors or 21,68% errors in the speaker utterances, there were 27 addition out of 83 errors or 32,53% errors in the speaker utterances, there were 36 misformation out of 83 errors of 43,37% errors in the speakers utterances and there were 2 misordering out of 83 errors 2,4% errors in the speakers utterances. It showed that the most frequent errors were misformation (43,37%).

The second previous study is from Rachmat Faisyal (2015) entitled "Morphological and Syntactic Errors Found in English Composition Written by the Students of Daarut Taqwa Islamic Boarding School Klaten". This research aimed to know classification and the source of errors. He used the source of error theory proposed by Selinker. In this research, he found that the students created more errors in syntax rather than in morphology. The errors came from different sources. Those sources were overgeneralization, strategies of second language learning, and language transfer. The finding showed that the biggest source of errors was overgeneralization, the second was strategies in second language learning and the third was language transfer.

The last previous study is from Nurmuliani Rusli (2018) entitled “An Error Analysis in Pronunciation of English Fricative Voiced Produced by The Sixth Semester Students of English and Literature Department at Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar”. Her research aimed to find out the error pronunciation and the causes of error. She used qualitative method in conducting her research and used the causes of error theory by Norrish. The result of her research showed that the causes of students’ error in their pronunciation were their first language or language interference and their error performance.

Based on those previous findings, there are similarity and differences among those previous findings and the researcher’s study. The similarities are that all the researchers study about error analysis and one of the previous studies has the same theory with the researcher. The differences are that the researchers had different theory and object, where Rahmaniar had English utterances as her object and used the surface strategy taxonomy based on theory of Dulay. Rachmat Faisyal took English writing as his object and chose the source of errors theory proposed by Selinker. Nurmuliani Rusli had the pronunciation of the sixth semester student as her object and used the causes of error theory by Norrish. The researcher herself studied about English writing as object and used the surface strategy taxonomy theory of Dulay, Burt and Krashen.

B. Pertinent Ideas

1. Error Analysis

Crystal (1987:112) states that in teaching and learning of language, error analysis refers to the way to identify, classify and interpret the unsuitability forms of language utilizing some rules and techniques given by linguists. Errors is stated to draw the level of capability attained by a learner. It is different from “mistake”, that means a performance limitations where a learner is able to correct.

Kitao and Kitao cited in Hashemi (2013:3) say that error analysis in language use can predict the learners’ type of errors which will be useful for developing teaching materials and selecting teaching methods. Moreover, the result of such analysis can be used as an indicator of the learners’ achievement. It can also be used for researching language acquisition and learners’ strategy in language learning.

Richard, et al., in Asik (2012:15) state that error analysis as the analysis study of the errors produced by the foreign language learners. Errors analysis is done to:

- a. Figure out how well a person knows a language. According to Jack Richard, one can be categorized as those who knows a language if he/she is able to distinguish the grammatically correct sentence from the ungrammatically one.

b. Find out how a person learns language. By understanding the errors one makes, an instructor can conclude the way someone learns a language and in turn the instructor can choose the appropriate teaching method that will be applied in the classroom.

c. Find out the information about the frequent difficulties in learning about language as an consideration in language teaching or in teaching material preparation.

Sometimes we are confused of differentiating between error and mistake. If the learner is inclined and able to correct a fault in his or her output, it is assumed that the form he or she selected was not the one intended, and we shall say that the fault is a mistake. If, the learner is unable or in any way disinclined to make the correction, we assume that the form the learner used was the one intended, and that is an error.

Mistakes can only be corrected by the learners if their deviance is pointed out to him or her. If a simple indication that there are some deviances which are sufficient prompt for self correction, then we have a first-order mistake. If additional information is needed, in the form of the exact location and some hints to the nature of the deviance, then we have a second-order mistake.

Error cannot be self-corrected until further relevant (to that error) input (implicit or explicit) has been provided and converted into intake by the learner. In other words, errors require further relevant learning to take place before they can be self-corrected.

Error is a systematic deviation, when a learner has not learnt something and consistently gets it wrong' (Norrish:1983:14). The phrase 'systematic deviation' in this definition is a key word that can be interpreted as the deviation which happens repeatedly. Further, it is necessary to differentiate between error and mistake. A mistake is also a deviation of the norms of the language but is not systematic. It means that the use of the norms of the language in sentences is sometimes true and sometimes wrong. Norrish (1983:17) says that a mistake is an inconsistent deviation that is sometimes the learner 'gets it right' but sometimes wrong.

2. Syntax

According to Nofal (2014:183-184), syntax is the study of sentence structure. This definition includes the sentence elements and their relationships, ambiguity, rank scale, rank shift, word order, bracketing, tree diagram, transitivity, phrasal verbs and prepositional verbs, categories and functions, and thematization among others, all of which include higher order thinking skills.

Fromkin cited in Misir (2017:30) states that syntax is the part of the grammar that represents a speaker's knowledge of sentences and their structures. Mostly when talking about syntax, it usually means word order and sentence structure. Every sentence is a sequence of words, but not every sequence of words is a sentence because syntactic structures make language speaking well-formed or grammatical whereas violating them causes ill-formed and ungrammatical speaking.

Some definitions from linguists indicate that syntax is the rule to form sentences. O'Grady and Dobrovolsky (1989:126) define syntax as rules and categories system which allows to combine words becoming sentences. Crystal (1987:346) defines syntax as the study of the way to combine words in order to form sentences in a language.

The study of syntax consists of phrases, clauses and sentences. Those terms will be explained as follow:

a. Phrases

According to Finch in Sharhan and Al-Abedi (2018), a phrase is a syntactic unit which typically consists of more than one word and is intermediate between word and clause level in sentences.” He adds that in a phrase words go together to form a ‘single syntactic entity’ which can be moved ‘around’ and also substituted by another word.

Jackson in Basri (2013:3)classifiesphrases into five types, they are:

1) Prepositional phrase (PP) is a phrase with a preposition as its head.

Forexamples:in the garden, on the floor.

2) Noun phrase (NP) is a phrase with a noun as its head. For examples: a good man, my beloved mother.

3) Verb phrase (VP) is a phrase with a verb as its head. For examples: is speaking, play well.

4) Adjectival phrase is a phrase with an adjective as its head. For example: very disgusting.

5) Adverbial phrase is a phrase with an adverb as its head. For example: very carefully.

b. Clauses

Clause is a full predication consisting of a subject and a predicate with a finite verb (Frank in Haryanti, 2018:3). In line with what is said by Hornby (1987:152), clause is component of a (complex) sentence, with its own subject and predicate, especially one doing the work of a noun. Clause can be classified into two kinds those are dependent and independent clause.

1) Independent clause

Independent clause is a complete sentence. It consists of main subject and verb (Azar, 2002:239). An independent clause is able to stand alone without other clause because it has had complete meaning.

2) Dependent clause

In contrast with independent clause, this clause cannot stand alone. It always has connector before the subject. There are some types of dependent clauses (Ba'dulu, 2009:60-61), they are:

(a) Adverbial clause

Adverbial clauses are dependent clauses that function as adverbs. They can express place or location, time or temporal, manner, reason, purpose, and condition.

Example: I was watching movie when he came.

(b) Adjective clause

Adjective clauses are clauses that function like adjectives. They can function as modifiers of noun in sentences and they are commonly introduced by connectors, like that, who, whom, etc. Example: The girl who is standing under the tree is my sister.

(c) Noun clause

Noun clauses are clauses that function or act like nouns. They can function as the subject, object, or complement. Noun clauses are commonly introduced by connectors, like what, where, who, etc. Example: I don't know what to do.

c. Sentence

According to Andersen (2014:1) a sentence is a complete set of words that conveys meaning. It can communicate a statement, a command, an exclamation, and a question. One sentence is composed of one or more clause.

Here are the types of sentences:

1) Simple sentence

A simple sentence consists of a subject and at least one finite verb (Eastwood, 2002: 5). Example: it breaks.

2) Compound sentence

This kind of sentence contains more than one independent clauses affiliated by conjunctions such as “and”, “or” and “but”. Example: I play football and my sister eats meatball.

3) Complex sentence

This type of sentence consists of one independent clause and one dependent clause or more. A complex sentence consists of clauses that are not equal which is in contrast with compound sentence. For example: Although she buys it for me, I will never wear it.

3. Taxonomies of Error

Taxonomies of error refer to the classification of error according to some criteria. Dulay, Burt, and Krashen (1982:147-189) propose four kinds of error taxonomy. They are the linguistic category classification, the surface structure taxonomy, the comparative taxonomy, and the communicative effect taxonomy.

a. Linguistic Category Classification

This type of taxonomy classifies the errors according to either or both the language component or the particular linguistic constituent the error effect (Dulai et al. 1982:149). The language components consist of phonology, syntax and morphology, semantic and lexicon and discourse. Constituents consist of the elements that comprise each language component.

b. Surface Structure Taxonomy

1) Omission

Omission is the error when an item that is required for an utterance to be considered grammatical is left out. Omission errors refers to the absence of an item that must appear in a well-formed utterance. Dulay, Burt and Krashen (1982: 154-155) suggest that there are two kinds of omission. They are the omission of content morphemes or major constituents and the omission of grammatical morphemes. The omission of content morphemes or major constituents includes nouns, verbs, adjectives, and adverbs. The omission of grammatical morphemes includes noun and verb inflections, articles, verb auxiliary and preposition.

2) Addition

Addition is the opposite of omission errors. They are characterized by the presence of an item which must not be presented in a well-formed utterance. Dulay, Burt and Krashen (1982: 156-158) say that there are two kinds of addition. They are double markings and simple additions. Double markings refers to marking two items rather than one for the same feature like tense. In simple addition, no particular features characterize the errors.

3) Misformation

Misformation errors are characterized by the usage of the unacceptable or wrong form of the morpheme or structure. According to Dulay, Burt and Krashen (1982: 158-161), there are three kinds of misformation. They are regularization, archi-forms, and alternating forms. Regularization errors in misformation category are those in which a regular marker is used in place of an irregular one. Archi-forms are the selection of one member of a class of forms to represent other in the class. In alternating forms, the use of archi-forms often gives way to the apparently fairly free alternation of various members of a class with each other.

4) Misordering

Dulay, Burt and Krashen (1982:162) state that the incorrect placement of a morpheme or group of morphemes in an utterance is characteristic of misordering error. For example in utterance , “He is all the time late”. All the time is misordered. Misordering also occurs systematically for learners in construction that have already been acquired, specifically simple (direct) and embedded (indirect) question. Students also have made written misordering errors that are word-for-word translation of native language surface structures.

c. Comparative Taxonomy

The classification of errors in a comparative taxonomy is based on comparison between the structure of L₂ errors and certain other types construction (Dulai et al. 1982:163). For instance, if one used a comparative taxonomy to classify the errors of Indonesian student learning English, one might compare the structure of the student’s error to that of errors reported for children acquiring English as first language.

d. Communicative Effect Strategy

The communication effect classification deals with error from the perspective of their effect on the listener or reader (Dulai et al. 1982:189). It focuses on differentiating between errors that seem to cause misscommunication and those that do not. Underlying this type of errors analysis is the question about types of errors render a phrase or sentence is incomprehensible to the listener or reader.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

This chapter consists of research method, data source, research instrument, procedure of data collection and technique of data analysis.

A. Research Method

The researcher conducted descriptive qualitative research that described the syntactical errors in writing produced by the third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar. According to Maolani and Cahyana (2015:72) descriptive research is an activity that aims to describe a situation or phenomenon, which is designed to get information in the present situation. Tailor defines qualitative research as a procedure of research in resulting descriptive data in written form (Moleoeng, 2009:4). It can be concluded that descriptive qualitative research is an activity to get descriptive data in written form.

B. Data Source

In this research, the researcher took the final writing examination sheets of the third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar in academic year 2018/2019. The researcher chose one class from three classes. Based on consideration that AG 1 & 2 students had good competence where the total GPA of AG 1&2 students was 3,63, the total GPA of AG 3&4 students was 3,51 and the total GPA of AG 5&6 was 3,28 , the researcher chose AG 1&2. Therefore, there were 40 students' final writing examination sheets.

C. Research Instrument

The instrument of the research was the researcher herself because the researcher had the main role in gathering the data. It is in line with what Stainback and Stainback (1988:20) say, that human being is the instrument who has sufficient adaptability to adjust to variety realities that will be faced when doing qualitative research.

D. Procedure of Data Collection

In collecting the data, the researcher researcher took the final writing examination sheets of AG 1&2 of the third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar.

E. Technique of Data Analysis

In analyzing the collected data, the researcher followed the following steps:

1. The researcher identified the data that had been collected.
2. The researcher classified the syntactical errors produced by the students.

CHAPTER IV FINDING AND DISCUSSION

A. Findings

The researcher finds many syntactical errors produced by the students in their writing. The errors are classified into four categories. They are omission, addition, misformation, and misordering. The following table shows the finding of the research.

Table 4.1 Syntactical Errors in the Surface Strategy Taxonomy and the Most Dominant Syntactical Errors

No	Surface Strategy Taxonomy	Number of Error	Percentage
1	Omission	328	46,13 %
2	Addition	149	20,95 %
3	Misformation	223	31,36%
4	Misordering	11	1,2%
Total		711	1,54%

The table above shows the number of errors produced by the third semester students in their writing. The most dominant errors belong to omission. The second dominant error is misformation. The third is addition error and the last belongs to misordering.

In this section, after classifying the syntactical errors, the researcher gives further analysis and explanation about types of students' errors by giving some examples which represent the types of error in the following extracts.

1. Omission

Table 4.1 shows that there are 328 omission errors in students' writing. They are divided into omission of head noun, subject, main verb, preposition, article, plural marker, auxiliary, copula, progressive or gerund marker, regular past, irregular past, third person singular, infinitive marker, connector and letter of word.

a. Omission of Head Noun

Based on the finding, there is 1 error made by 1 student in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 1:

I am on my _ to college then I hear _ girl were talking in the bus so seriously.

This sentence was made by the 35th student. It is categorized as omission of head noun, irregular past, article, addition of auxiliary, misformation of copula and preposition. The copula of the first clause should be in its past form. The head of noun after the copula is omitted. The sentence talks about something happening in the past so the main verb "hear" should be in its irregular past form. The student also omits the presence of the article before the object. The other error is the addition of auxiliary "were" whereas it is inappropriate because "the girl" is not a subject that should be followed auxiliary and main verb. The last error is misformation of preposition. The proper preposition that should precede the noun “bus” is preposition “on”. The correct sentence is I was on my way to college then I heard a girl talking on the bus so seriously.

b. Omission of Subject

Based on the finding, there are 11 errors made by 10 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 2:

It is my fault because _ judge too early.

This sentence is written by the 4th student. It is categorized as omission of subject, regular past and misformation of copula. The linking verb “is” should be in the past form because it tells something happening in the past. The second clause also omits its subject, so there should be subject after the connector and the proper subject for the sentence is pronoun “I”. The main verb in the second clause also should be in its regular past form, so it becomes “judged” because it tells an action that has happened in the past. The correct sentence is It was my fault because I judged too early.

c. Omission of Main Verb

Based on the finding, there are 12 errors made by 10 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 3:

When I _ back to the home, on the way I saw two people were speaking in the way.

This sentence is written by the 5th student. It is categorized as omission of verb, addition of article, auxiliary and adverb. The first clause omits its verb and the proper verb for that clause is “went” because the sentence tells something happening in the past. The addition of article “the” before the noun “home” is inappropriate because it does not refer to specific object or it is something that has not previously been discussed. The addition of auxiliary “were” is also inappropriate because “the two people” is not a subject that needs to be followed by verb. The noun “two people” above is the direct object of the verb “saw” and “speaking” after the object is present participle which acts as an adjective. The addition of adverb of place “in the way” is inappropriate because there is also an adverb before the second clause. The correct sentence is When I went back to home, on the way I saw two people speaking.

d. Omission of Preposition

Based on the finding, there are 19 errors made by 12 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 4:

...I thought that they were _ an a relationship.

This sentence is written by the 3rd student. It is categorized as omission of preposition and addition of article. After the verb of noun clause, there should be preposition “in”. The addition of article “an” is inappropriate because there are double articles before the noun and the initial letter of the noun after the article is a consonant, so the appropriate article is “a”. The correct sentence is ...I thought that they were in a relationship.

e. Omission of Article

Based on the finding, there are 8 errors made by 6 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 5:

And the last, _ boy promises that he want _ came back home early today...*

The sentence above was written by the 23rd student. It is categorized as omission of article, infinitive marker “to”, regular past tense, addition of connector and irregular past. The presence of connector “and” at the beginning of the sentence is inappropriate because one connector that is the connector ‘that’ after the main verb “promises” is enough to connect two clauses in the sentence. The definite article of the subject in the main clause is also omitted whereas the subject above refers to someone that has previously been discussed. The next error is omission of regular past of the verbs “promises” and “want”. The other error is omission of infinitive marker “to” after the verb “want”. The last is inappropriate form of verb after the infinitive marker “to”. The addition of irregular past form is no need. It should be in infinitive form. The correct sentence is The last, the boy promised that he wanted to come back home early today...

f. Omission of Plural Marker

Based on the finding, there are 7 errors made by 7 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 6:

They also bought some sandwich and feed each other

The sentence is written by the 6th student. It is categorized as omission of plural marker and omission of irregular past. The quantifier “some” before the noun “sandwich” that is modified indicates that the noun after the quantifier should be in plural form. Because the noun “sandwich” is a countable noun, so the noun should be added “es” that acts as plural marker. The second verb of the sentence also should be in its past form, so it becomes “fed” because it is an irregular verb. The correct sentence is “They also bought some sandwiches and fed each other.”

g. Omission of Auxiliary

Based on the finding, there are 13 errors made by 11 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 7:

When I _ sitting in the bus, I'm so very tired and want to sleep, but there are the man and the woman speaking very seriously.

The sentence is written by the 9th student. It is categorized as omission of auxiliary, regular past, misformation of preposition, article copula and addition of adverb. The auxiliary verb of first clause in the sentence is omitted and the appropriate to fill the blank is the auxiliary “was” because the sentence tells something happening in the past. The second clause is also inappropriate form of copula and it should be in the past form of “am” that is “was”. There are also double adverbs before the adjective, so one of the adverb should be omitted. The second verb of the second clause also is inappropriate form because of the omission of regular past tense. The third errors are the inappropriate use of definite article whereas they should be in indefinite article forms. The last is misformation of copula “are” whereas it should be in past form. The correct sentence is When I was sitting on the bus, I was very tired and wanted to sleep, but there were a man and a woman speaking very seriously.

h. Omission of Copula

Based on the finding, there are 29 errors made by 23 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 8:

Their mom _ always angry because they never clean their bedroom before to go.

This sentence was made by the 28th student. It is categorized as omission of copula, regular past, gerund marker and addition of infinitive marker “to”. The copula of the first clause is omitted and the proper copula to fill the blank is “was”.

The verb of the second clause is also inappropriate form and it should be in its regular past form. The last errors are the addition of infinitive marker “to” and the omission of gerund marker. The correct sentence is Their mom was always angry because they never cleaned their bedroom before going.

i. Omission of Progressive and Gerund Marker

Based on the finding, there are 10 errors made by 7 students in writing as shown in the following extracts;

Extract 9:

They were talking about their mom before to go outside.

This sentence is written by the 28th student. It is categorized as omission of gerund. The preposition “before” above needs an object and it must be noun. So it should be in “-ing” form. The correct sentence is “They were talking about their mom before going outside.”

Another example of omission of progressive marker is given below:

Extract 10:

A woman and a man were sit _ front of me.

This sentence is written by the 22nd student. It is categorized as omission of progressive form. The main verb after the auxiliary verb should be in progressive form “sitting”. The correct sentence is “A woman and a man were sit _ front of me.”

j. Omission of Regular Past

Based on the finding, there are 83 errors made by 29 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 11:

The boy laugh and see his hand.

The sentence above was written by the 33rd student. It is categorized as omission of regular and irregular verb. The verb laugh should be in its regular past form because the sentence tell something happening in the past and the appropriate form is “laughed”. The other error is omission of irregular past tense that is the inappropriate form of the verb “see”. It should be “saw”. The correct sentence is The boy laughed and saw his hand.

k. Omission of Irregular Past

Based on the finding, there are 85 errors made by 28 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 12:

And from there, I know _ they are siblings _ the children _ to love very much for their mom.

The sentence above was written by the 36th student. It is categorized as omission of irregular past, regular past , connector, addition of connector, infinitive marker “to”, preposition, misformation of direct object, copula and misordering of adverb. The presence of the connector “and” in the beginning of sentence is inappropriate. The object of preposition of “from” should be “that”. The verb of the main clause is also not in its irregular past form whereas the sentence tells something which has happened in the past. The noun clause as the direct object of “know” misses its connector. The next error is the form of copula “are” that should be in its past form. Because there are two objects of the noun clause, there should connector to connect both of them. Adjective clause that follows the object “the children” misses its connector. The next error is omission of regular past tense of the adjective clause. The addition of infinitive marker before the main verb of the adjective clause is inappropriate. The last errors are misordering of adverb “very much” and the addition of preposition “for”. The correct sentence is From that, I knew that they were siblings and the children who loved their mom very much.

1. Omission of Third Person Singular

Based on the finding, there are 2 errors made by 1 student in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 13:

The girl said, "... She needs you _ she want to meet you..".

This sentence was made by the 13th student. It is categorized as omission of third person singular and connector. There are two clauses inside the quotation but they are not connected by connector, so the presence of connector between those two clauses are needed. The second clause also misses the addition “s” following the verb because the subject is third person singular. The correct sentence is The girl said, "... She needs you and she wants to meet you..".

m. Omission of Infinitive Marker "To"

Based on the finding, there are 2 errors made by 2 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 14:

...He said "Mom, me too. I want to you _ send me money. There is something _ i must to pay".

The sentence above was written by the 31th student. It is categorized as omission of infinitive marker "to", connector, addition of preposition and infinitive marker "to". Addition of preposition before the object "you" is inappropriate. After the object "you", there should be infinitive marker "to". The second sentence inside the quotation has no connector which indicates the adjective clause. The last error is the addition of infinitive marker "to" whereas after modal verb, there must be infinitive verb. The correct sentence is ....He said "Mom, me too. I want you to send me money. There is something that I must pay."

n. Omission of Connector

Based on the finding, there are 34 errors made by 23 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 15:

I can know _ they _ brother and sisters because I heard they speak about family.

The sentence above was written by the 17th student. It is categorized as omission of connector, copula, misformation of auxiliary and object pronoun. The auxiliary verb in the first clause is inappropriate because it is not in past form. The noun clause that becomes the object of the verb “know” has no connector which indicates the presence of the clause. The noun clause also misses its linking verb or copula that should be in past form. The last clause also has inappropriate object pronoun. It should be in objective pronoun “them”. The correct sentence is I could know that they were brother and sisters because I heard them speak about family.

o. Omission of Letter of Word

Based on the finding, there are 12 errors made by 10 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 16:

The man answer “Ah.. Oh my god, I am forgot, I haven’t asked a permission to mother and father abut this journey.”

The sentence above is written by the 27th student. It is categorized as omission of letter of word, regular past, addition of auxiliary. The verb “answer” is inappropriate because it should be in past form specifically in its regular past form. The addition of auxiliary “am” is also inappropriate in that sentence. The omission of letter of the word “abut” makes the sentence is inappropriate. The correct sentence is The man answered “Ah.. Oh my god, I forgot, I haven’t asked a permission to mother and father about this journey.”

2. Addition

Table 4.1 shows that there are 149 addition errors in students’ writing. They are addition of regular past, irregular past, article, preposition, infinitive marker “to”, connector, auxiliary, adverb, plural marker, progressive/gerund marker, subject, verb and word letter.

a. Addition of Regular Past

Based on the finding, there are 12 errors made by 10 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 17:

“...We have to surprised her..”

This sentence is written by the 7th student. It is categorized as addition of regular past. From the quotation sentence above, the addition of regular past after “to” is inappropriate because after “to”, it should be infinitive verb. The correct sentence is “...We have to surprise her..”

b. Addition of Irregular Past

Based on the finding, there are 16 errors made by 12 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 18:

Then a boy said _ he cannot because he must went to has done this assignment in his friend's home.

The sentence above was made by the 30th student. It is categorized as addition of irregular past tense, word letter, omission of connector, misformation of article and auxiliary. The use of article “a” before the noun “boy” is inappropriate because the noun refers to someone that has previously been discussed, so the appropriate article is “the”. The absence of connector after the verb “said” is inappropriate because the noun clause should be preceded by connector “that”. The form of auxiliary modal “cannot” should be in past form because it tells something happening in the past. In affirmative sentence, modal should be followed by base form but in the sentence above , it is followed by irregular past form. The last error is the addition of letter in word “this” that should be “his”. The correct sentence is Then the boy said that he couldn't because he must go to has done his assignment in his friend's home.

c. Addition of Article

Based on the finding, there are 12 errors made by 9 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 19:

For the first, I guesst _ they were a married couple....

The sentence above was made by the 22nd student. It is categorized as addition of article, misformation of preposition, regular past and omission of connector. The appropriate form of adverb in the beginning of sentence should be “at first”. The article “the” is not needed and the proper preposition is “at” instead of “for”. The form of verb “guesst” is inappropriate because the regular past form for the verb is “guessed”. The last error is omission of the connector “that” which indicates the presence of noun clause. The correct sentence is At first, I guessed that they were a married couple....

d. Addition of Preposition

Based on the finding, there are 11 errors made by 9 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 20:

Until I arrived to the mall I still think of aboutthe conversation in the buss, I miss my mom to and I wanna hug her.

The sentence above is written by the 36th student. It is categorized as addition of preposition, letter of word, misformation of preposition, the omission of letter of word, irregular and irregular past. The verb “arrived” in the sentence should be followed by preposition “at”. Because the sentence tells something happening in the past so the verbs “think” and “miss” should be in past form. The addition of the preposition “of” is also inappropriate because there will be double prepositions. So one of them should be omitted. The last error is the omission of word letter in the word “to” that should become “too”. The correct sentence is Until I arrived at the mall I still thought about...the conversation on the bus. I missed my mom too and I wanna hug her.

e. Addition of Infinitive Marker “To”

Based on the finding, there are 4 errors made by 4 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 21:

Because I was bored, so I just focused to hear them.

The sentence above was written by the 40th student. It is categorized as addition of infinitive marker “to” and omission gerund marker. The second clause of the sentence has “focused” as main verb but is followed by to infinitive so the sentence becomes incorrect. The infinitive marker “to” should be omitted and the base verb after “to” should be in gerund form. The correct sentence is Because I was bored, so I just focused on hearing them.

f. Addition of Connector

Based on the finding, there are 20 errors made by 10 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 22:

But, I hear what they _ talking about.*

This sentence was written by the 24th student. It is categorized as addition of connector, omission of irregular past and auxiliary. The connector “but” at the beginning of the sentence is inappropriate because it does not connect two clauses. The verb “hear” also should be in its irregular past form because the sentence tells something happening in the past. Auxiliary verb in noun clause that becomes the object of main verb “hear” is omitted and the proper auxiliary to fill the blank is “were”. The correct sentence is I heard what they were talking about.

g. Addition of Auxiliary

Based on the finding, there are 43 errors made by 23 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 23:

I saw they are talking about the serious topic.

This sentence was written by the 15th student. It is categorized as addition of auxiliary, misformation of object pronoun and article. As the direct object of the verb “saw”, they must be in objective pronoun form. The presence of auxiliary “are” also becomes inappropriate. The last error is the article “the” should be changed to “a” because the noun is not something that has previously mentioned. The correct sentence is I saw them talking about a serious topic.

h. Addition of Adverb

Based on the finding, there are 6 errors made by 5 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 24:

In a bus there are boy and girl behind my seat talking in the bus and they are loke like siblings.

This sentence was made by the 11th student. It is categorized as addition of adverb, auxiliary, misformation of preposition, copula and regular past. The appropriate preposition that always precedes the noun bus is the preposition “on”. The copula “are” also should be in past form. The addition of adverb “in the bus” is also inappropriate because there has been adverb at the beginning of the sentence. The second clause of the sentence also has addition of auxiliary that is incorrect for the sentence. The form of the verb “loke” is also inappropriate, because the proper form for the regular past verb is “looked”. The correct sentence is On a bus there were boy and girl behind my seat talking and they looked like siblings.*

i. Addition of Plural Marker

Based on the finding, there are 5 errors made by 3 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 25:

I _ really really confused _ they are brother and sister or _ couples.

This sentence was made by the 19th student. It is categorized as addition of plural marker, omission of copula, connector, article and misformation of copula. The omission of copula in the main clause becomes the first error. The next clause also misses its connector and the proper connector for the clause is “whether”. The copula is also inappropriate form. It should be in past form that is “were” because the sentence tells something happening in the past. The addition of plural marker in the noun “couple” is incorrect because it refers only to one couple so it should be “ a couple” which is preceded by indefinite article “a”. The correct sentence is I was really really confused whether they were brother and sister or a couple.

j. Addition of Verb

Based on the finding, there are 2 errors made by 2 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 26:

Sometime if her talk with him I always heard they talking about their family and someday their talk want to go to grandmother’s hometown.

This sentence was written by the 8th student. It is categorized as addition of verb, omission of letter of word, regular past, misformation of subject pronoun, preposition and object pronoun. The adverb “sometime” misses one letter of word that is “s”. The proper subject pronouns are “she” instead of “her” and “they” instead of “their”. The verbs in the first and the third clause also should be in its regular past form because the sentence tells something happening in the past. The object of verb in the second clause is also incorrect. It should be “them”. The last error is the addition of verb “talk” whereas the verb “want” has been enough to make the proper sentence. The correct sentence is Sometimes if she talked to him I always heard them talking about their family and someday they wanted to go to grandmother's hometown.

k. Addition of Subject

Based on the finding, there is 1 error made by 1 student in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 27:

.....and then I know that they are a brother and sister who they parents _ dead because _ the accident.

This sentence was made by the 9th student. It is categorized as addition of subject, omission of irregular past, copula, preposition, misformation of copula and connector. The verb “know” should be in its irregular past form because the sentence tells something happening in the past. The proper form of the copula “are” also should be “were”. Adjective clause that modifies the noun “a brother and sister” has incorrect connector. The proper connector is “whose parents” that is followed directly by the noun “parents”. The subject “they” also should be omitted and the addition of copula “were” to link the subject and the subject complement is needed. The other error is omission of the connector “of” before the object of preposition “accident”. The last is the inappropriate use of definite article whereas it should be indefinite article “a”. The correct sentence is ..... and then I knew that they were a brother and sister whose parents were dead because of an accident.

i. Addition of Progressive/Gerund Marker

Based on the finding, there are 9 errors made by 6 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 28:

Their mom was sick and the girl is so sad to talking with the boy.

The sentence is written by the 36th student. It is categorized as addition of progressive marker, misformation of copula and preposition. The copula of the second clause should be in its past form “was”. “To” also should be followed by infinitive verb, but in the sentence it is followed by verb with “-ing” so it becomes inappropriate. The last, the preposition that should be attached after the verb “talk” is “to”. The correct sentence is Their mom was sick and the girl was so sad to talk to the boy.

j. Addition of Word Letter

Based on the finding, there are 8 errors made by 4 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 29:

I go to the buss stop.

The sentence above was written by the 38th student. It is categorized as addition in word letter, misformation of irregular verb. The verb of the sentence above should be in its irregular past form because the sentence tells something happening in the past. The second error is the addition of word letter in the word “buss” that is inappropriate. The correct sentence is I went to the bus stop.

3. Misformation

Table 4.1 shows that there are 223 misformation errors in students’ writing. They are misformation of regular past tense, object pronoun, auxiliary, preposition, subject pronoun, possessive pronoun, negative, article, copula, gerund or progressive marker, plural and word.

a. Misformation of Regular Past

Based on the finding, there are 6 errors made by 4 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 30:

The boy replied “3 o’clock, why?”

The sentence above was written by the 33rd student. It is categorized as misformation of regular past. The appropriate form of the regular verb “reply” is “replied”. The correct sentence is The boy replied “3 o’clock, why?”

b. Misformation of Object Pronoun

Based on the finding, there are 20 errors made by 15 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 31:

When I ask they, they said “I am Vera and he _ Very. We are brother and sister”

This sentence is written by the 5th student. It is categorized as misformation of pronoun, misformation of verb and omission verb. The verb in the first clause has to be in past form because it tells something happening in the past. The object of the verb “ask” is also inappropriate because it is not in its objective pronoun form. The last error is the omission of main verb. The proper linking verb to complete the clause is “is”. The correct sentence is When I asked them, they said “I am Vera and he is Very. We are brother and sister”

c. Misformation of Auxiliary

Based on the finding, there are 49 errors made by 23 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 32:

I am standing at the halte in front of my campus.

The sentence above is written by the 33rd student. It is categorized as misformation of auxiliary. The auxiliary in the sentence above should be in its past form because the sentence tells something that has happened in the past. The correct sentence is I was standing at the halte in front of my campus.

d. Misformation of Preposition

Based on the finding, there are 46 errors made by 29 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 33:

In a bus I saw two people were talking _ each other.

This sentence was written by the 1st student. It is categorized as misformation of preposition, omission of preposition and addition of auxiliary. Preposition “In” at the beginning of the sentence is inappropriate and the proper one is preposition “on”. The addition of auxiliary after the direct object “two people” is inappropriate because the noun “two people” is not a subject that needs to be followed by auxiliary and main verb. The last error is the omission of preposition “to”. The correct sentence is On a bus I saw two people talking to each other.

e. Misformation of Subject Pronoun

Based on the finding, there are 9 errors made by 6 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 34:

Me and Dhiyah just smile when we were looking at them...

The sentence above was written by the 6th student. It is categorized as misformation of subject pronoun and omission of regular past. The use of “me” is only for object pronoun so the use of “me” as the subject pronoun in the sentence is inappropriate. The verb also should be in its regular past form because the sentence tells something happening in the past. The correct sentence is I and Dhiyah just smiled when we were looking at them....

f. Misformation of Possesive Pronoun

Based on the finding, there are 6 errors made by 6 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 35:

But I hear they talking about how she help there mother _ the house.

This sentence was written by the 10th student. It is categorized as misformation of possessive pronoun, object pronoun, addition of connector, omission of preposition, irregular and regular verb. The connector “but” is unnecessary because there is no clause that has to be connected. The verb “hear” also should be in its irregular past form because the sentence tells something happening in the past. The object of the verb “hear” is also inappropriate because it is in subject pronoun form. The other error is the verb “help” that is not in its regular past form whereas the sentence tells something that has happened in the past. The possessive pronoun that should precede the noun “mother” is not proper. It is written “there” whereas it should be “their”. The last error is the omission of preposition “in” before the noun “house”. The correct sentence is I heard them talking about how she helped their mother in the house.

g. Misformation of Negative

Based on the finding, there 1 error made by 1 student in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 36:

.....when we were children you always got punishment from Daddy because you wonnot hear what his needed...

This sentence was written by the 22nd student. It is categorized as misformation of negative and subject pronoun. The short form of “will not” in the sentence is inappropriate. It is written “wonnot” whereas it should be “won’t”. The other error is the inappropriate form of subject pronoun. It is written “his” whereas it should be “he”. The correct sentence is*when we were children you always got punishment from Daddy because you won’t hear what he needed...*

h. Misformation of Article

Based on the finding, there are 7 errors made by 4 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 37:

And I see the girl hug a old woman and say “I miss you mom”.*

This sentence was written by the 19th student. It is categorized as misformation of article, addition of connector and omission of irregular past. The connector “and” at the beginning of the sentence is inappropriate because there is no clause that should be connected. The verb “see” also should be in its irregular past form because it tells something happening in the past. The last error is the inappropriate use of indefinite article “a”. The proper article that should precede the noun phrase “old woman” is the article “an” because the noun phrase is preceded by a vowel. The correct sentence is I saw the girl hug an old woman and say “I miss you mom”.

i. Misformation of Copula

Based on the finding, there are 64 errors made by 23 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 38:

I am quite tired from an the activities.

The sentence above was written by the 14th student. It is categorized as misformation of copula, preposition and addition of article. The copula of the sentence should be in past form because the sentence tells something happening in the past. The preposition that should follow the adjective “tired” is the preposition “of”. The addition of the article “an” is inappropriate because there are more than one article that modify the noun. The correct sentence is I was quite tired of the activities.

j. Misformation of Progressive or Gerund Marker

Based on the finding, there is 1 error made by 1 student in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 39:

...“If there _ any choice apart from left this town. I do not think so”, said the female....

The sentence above was written by the 14th student. It is categorized as misformation of gerund marker, omission of copula and plural marker. The omission of copula in the first sentence becomes the first error. The plural marker that should be added to the noun “choice” is omitted whereas the presence of quantifier before the noun indicates that the noun should be in its plural form. The last is the inappropriate form of the object of preposition “from”. It should be gerund that is “leaving”. The correct sentence is If there are any choices apart from leaving this town. I do not think so”, said the female.

k. Misformation of Plural

Based on the finding, there are 8 errors made by 6 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 40:

I heard the women call a men.

This sentence was written by the 16th student. It is categorized as misformation of plural. The appropriate forms of the noun are “the woman” and “a man” because they refer to only one woman and one man. The correct sentence is I heard the woman call a man.

l. Misformation of Word

Based on the finding, there are 10 errors made by 8 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 41:

I did not mind to spied what they were talking about....

This sentence was written by the 32nd student. It is categorized as misformation of word and addition of regular past. The proper word for the sentence is the verb “mean”. The addition of regular past after infinitive marker “to” is inappropriate because it should be infinitive verb. The correct sentence is I did not mean to spy what they were talking about.

4. Misordering

Table 4.1 shows that there are 11 omissions in students' writing. They are misordering of auxiliary in simple question, adverb and noun phrase.

a. Misordering of Auxiliary in Simple Question

Based on the finding, there are 5 errors made by 3 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 42:

“So what we can do the next? Are we still live without parents?”

This sentence was written by the 9th student. It is categorized as misordering of auxiliary in simple question, addition of article and misformation of auxiliary. The right order for the question is the auxiliary verb should precede the subject. In the first clause, the auxiliary “can” should precede the subject “we”. The presence of article “the” is also incorrect. The next clause also should use auxiliary “do” not “are. The correct sentence is “So what can we do next? Do we still live without parents?”

b. Misordering of Adverb

Based on the finding, there are 2 errors made by 2 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 43:

Maybe you _ honest more than me.

This sentence was written by the 4th student. It is categorized as misordering of adverb and omission of copula. The copula which links between the subject and the subject complement is omitted. The order of the adverb is inappropriate because the adverb should precede the adjective. The correct sentence is Maybe you were more honest than me.

c. Misordering of Noun Phrase

Based on the finding, there are 4 errors made by 3 students in writing as shown in the following extract;

Extract 44:

When I stop in station bus, they leave a bags.

The sentence is written by the 19th student. It is categorized as misordering of word, misformation of verb and, addition of plural maker. The verb should be in past form because it tells something happening in the past. The same error also happens to the next clause's verb "leave" that should be in its past form. The last error is the addition of plural marker "s" after "bag" inappropriate because the bag is actually singular that is signified by the presence of article "a" before the noun. The correct sentence is When I stopped in bus station, they left a bag.

B. Discussion

From the finding above, it can be concluded that many students make errors in their writing. The errors are divided into four kinds. They are omission, addition, misformation and misordering. In this section, the researcher will give further discussion about the syntactical errors produced by the third semester students in their writing.

1. Omission

Dulay, Burt and Krashen (1982:154-155) classify the kinds of omission into two. They are omission of major constituents that consist of noun, verb, adjective, adverb and grammatical morphemes that consist of noun and verb inflections, article, verb auxiliaries and preposition.

From the finding, the researcher finds those two kinds of omission error that are committed by the students in their writing. In major constituents, the researcher finds that there are only omission of head noun, subject and main verb. In grammatical morphemes, there are omission of preposition, article, plural marker, auxiliary, copula, progressive/gerund marker, regular past, irregular past, third person singular, infinitive marker “to”, connector and letter of word.

Omission errors in the students' writing become the most dominant error produced by the students. This kind of error occurs in students' writing because the students are omitting some parts of the sentence that make sentence incomplete. It is in contrast to the previous finding by Rahmaniar (2013) entitled “Grammatical Errors Produced by the Speakers of English Corner Program on TVRI Makassar”. In her research, she finds that omission becomes the third highest errors produced by the speaker of English Corner Program.

2. Addition

Dulay, Burt and Krashen (1982:156-158) classify two kinds of addition. They are double marking and simple addition. In double marking, there are addition of present indicative, regular past, irregular past, direct object. In simple addition, there are addition of third person singular, past tense, article and preposition.

From the finding, the researcher finds those two kinds of addition error that are committed by the students in their writing. In double marking, there are only addition of regular past and irregular past. In simple addition, there are addition of article and preposition. Other addition errors are also found such as addition of connector, auxiliary, adverb, plural marker, verb, subject pronoun, progressive/gerund marker, and letter of word.

Addition errors in the students’ writing become the third highest errors produced by the students. This kind of error occurs in students’ writing because the students are adding unnecessary item to their sentence that actually does not need to appear in well-form sentence. It is in contrast to the previous finding by Rahmaniar (2013). She finds that addition becomes the second highest errors produced by the speaker.

3. Misformation

Dulay, Burt and Krashen (1982:158-161) classify two kinds of misformation. They are overgeneralization and archi/alternating form. In regularization, there are misformation of reflexive pronoun, regular past, third person singular and plural. In archi/alternating form, there are misformation of auxiliary, preposition, subject pronoun, possessive pronoun, negative and quantifier.

From the finding, the researcher finds those two kinds of addition error that are committed by the students in their writing. In regularization, there are misformation of regular past and plural. In archi/alternating form, there are misformation of auxiliary, preposition, subject pronoun, possessive pronoun, and negative. The researcher also finds addition of object pronoun, article, copula and word.

Misformation in students' writing becomes the second highest error produced by the students. This kind of error occurs in students' writing because the students are using the wrong form morpheme or structure in their sentence. It is in contrast to the previous finding of Rahmaniar (2013). In her result of the research, misformation becomes the most dominant error.

4. Misordering

Dulay, Burt and Krashen (1982:162-163) classify three kinds of misordering. They are auxiliary in simple question, auxiliary in embedded question and adverb.

From the finding, the researcher finds only two kinds of addition. They are auxiliary in simple question and adverb. Another misordering is also found. It is misordering of noun phrase.

Misordering in students' writing becomes the lowest error produced by the students. This kind of error occurs in students' writing because the students are making incorrect placement of a morpheme or group of morphemes in their sentence. It is similar to the previous finding by Rahmaniar (2013). She also finds that misordering becomes the lowest errors committed by the speaker of English Corner Program.

From the finding, the researcher finds that many students still make error in arranging sentences. Because of that reason, the researcher wants to give some solutions that can reduce syntactical errors produced by the students. The researcher thinks that student should read more grammar book in order to know how to arrange sentence well. After reading some books of grammar, the student also should practice more to arrange a good sentence such as writing a journal.

Nowadays, many things could help student in improving their skill in writing. Student could read articles or other kind of English text on. By reading more text in English, the student could improve his mastering of vocabularies and get used to English text. There are also many applications on internet that could support student's learning in English.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusions

From the findings and the discussion before, the researcher makes conclusions that:

1. The third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar produced many errors in syntax. They are divided into four categories. They are 328 omission errors, 149 addition errors, 223 misformation errors, and 11 misordering errors.
2. The most dominant errors produced by third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar are omission.

B. Suggestions

Based on the result of this study, the researcher suggests that:

1. For the third semester students of English and Literature Department of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar, it is important to study syntax because the inappropriate arrangement of sentences in writing can cause misunderstanding in conveying the intended idea.
2. For the English learners, it is very significant to study syntax in order to master English.
