This research discussed about adaptation of novel into the film Inferno 2016. This research aimed to find out adaptation of novel into film that found what the differences are and adapter's motivation or reason in the changes of both works that related with the audiences' commentary. The research focused on what and why of four chapters in Linda Hutcheon theory about the differences and the motivation. Then, the data were analyzed using qualitative method. The researcher used note taking as the instrument to find out the valid data. This findings show that there were two different among the structural and mix of plays between novel and film, and the motivation or reason of adapter adapting the novel into the film. The researcher concluded that the differences in the structural and the mix play are character, plot and setting and three motivations or reasons of the adapter are the economy, the legal constrains, and the audience.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

There are five parts of this chapter; background, research questions, objectives of the research, significance of the research and scope of the research.

A. Background

Term of adaptation can be used to see forms and process of one literary work to another such as novel transformed into film and focused the process of both. Novels and films are not only as medium to analysis in adaptation theory but also poems, plays, and another kind of literary work. Hutcheon (2006: XI) said that, the stories of poems, novels, plays, operas, paintings, songs, dances, and tableaux vivants were constantly being adapted from one medium to another and then back again. Thus, adaptation is one of some theories to analysis literary works that not only focus in one or more product of literary works but also to found the motivation as the aspect from adapter's motivation.

Adaptation of novel into film is generally to find variety of new forms in literature that has some steps of process. The film as the result of process and has the difference from novel because the movement will make a change. Someone cannot judge by the cover of the film before know what happened in novel. In addition, Holland (2002: 2) stated that, novels are an older form, and as such, the authority behind the book has been stronger. So, medium of novel differs from film but their central point of the story almost same.

There are two ways in adaptation; as a product and as a process which the author creates a product after passing through a process. Kinney (2013: 8) said that, as a product, adaptation cannot remain entirely faithful to its original text, otherwise questions of plagiarism arise; adaptation must differ enough from the original text while still maintaining the source's fundamental ideas. Adaptation as a process becomes an act of appropriating and ^{salvaging} while trying to give new meaning to a text. It is clearly stated before, filmmaking as a process by adapter who makes the change. It means that there are motivations or reasons by adapter who give new meaning to the original text.

Literary works show picture life of society and can give a meaning to reader (Setiawan, 2015: 1). Therefore, literature is the mirror of social life that has element and media. Elements can be like culture, politic, religion and another but media like language. Every kind of literature gives a value in their story. Moreover, there is era of the growth in literature as revolution process. Draudt (2005: 289) stated that, French neo-classicism was adopted as the fashionable theory that shaped both the form and the language of plays. These currents of change motivated playwrights and managers to "improve on" Shakespeare by rewriting and staging his plays in accordance with the spirit of the new times. In this era, literary works of Shakespeare become a milestone to other works. The author makes up his literary works such as the form and the language. This process will generate the motivations and messages implicit in the author's work.

Talking about literature, there are the secret of itself which the reader not only reads the story but also tries to find out more than the reading. Kermode in Bennett and Royle Nicholas (2004: 240) in his essay entitled, Secrets and Narrative Sequence, to read a novel expecting the satisfactions of closure and the receipt of a message is what most people find enough to do; they are easier with this method because it resembles the one that works for ordinary acts of communication. Not only get a story of novel or film but also can find out the more information as the knowledge in literature or the mirror of this life.

One of some adaptation films, Inferno year 2016, based on Dan Brown's novel with same title in year 2013. The film produced by Ron Howard and Screenplay by David Koepp. In the film Inferno contains the difference with its novel depends on the process a creative by adapter. Thinking about adapter who makes the differences of novel into film and adapter will have some motivations or reasons in the filmmaking.

Adaptation of novel into film Inferno as the title of this research, the writer interested to analysis what the differences of the change of both works based on the movement process. The process will give a product as creativity by the adapter who has relationship his or her motivation. The writer identifies how the audience's point of view for the change in film based on novel. The writer sees the change of adaptation of novel into film and the commentary of both works from the audience. The changing of both works and the commentary of the audience are the beginning and the ending in the adaptation, the process and the product. The change and the point of view of the audience can be the cause-effect because adaptation in this world has reason or cause-effect. The same as this research, there is verse about reason such as in Al-Qur'an surah Al-Anfal verse 22, Allah SWT says:

إِنَّ شَرَّ الدَّوَابِّ عِنْدَ اللَّهِ الصُّمُّ الْبُكْمُ الَّذِينَ لَا يَعْقِلُونَ

Translation:

“Surely the vilest of animals, in Allah's sight, are the deaf, the dumb, who do not understand.”

This verse, talking about the reason of why humans or animals can be important in this world because have a mind to thinking about everything. According to Shihab (2007: 407-408) stated that, truly as bad as the beast is a creature that moves in the sight of Allah is deaf so that cannot hear the guidance again mute thus cannot ask and no sense that cannot think and understand anything. Humans or animals hear in the deaf, can speak more but keep silent in the dumb and never try to understand. Human or animal do not know how to use ear, mouth, eyes and more that it, their mind, far from the word “intellect” are truly as bad as in sight of Allah. The difference between human and animal is mind.

In this research will analysis the differences of novel into film Inferno 2016 and find out the reason why the adapter makes the differences as cause-effect in the movement process after see the audiences' point of view in all commentary in the trailer film. The writer thinks how to use eyes, ears and mind in this research as form of the realization with the verse and always remember adaptation theory by Linda Hutcheon as the approach in the literature analysis.

B. Research Questions

There are two questions of background above as follow:

1. What are the differences of adaptation of novel and film Inferno?
2. What is the motivation or reason of adapter adapting the novel into film?

C. Objectives of The Research

There are two objectives of this research:

1. The writer would describe the differences of adaptation of novel into film Inferno as a form of process adopted.
2. The writer would identify the motivation or reason of adapter which makes the difference of film based on novel related two of four parts in adaptation; what and why.

D. Significance of The Research

The research for the growth of knowledge and the writer hopes this research would give the new information about adaptation theory and literature. This research not only uses as reference but also has many functions in this world, one of them like media to find out the new knowledge that has relation with novel and film as reflection of society.

E. Scope of The Research

The writer determines to find the difference of the adaptation of novel published on 2013 into film year 2016. The writer want to find out what is form of the change and try to identify adapter's motivation in its change of both works to combine the commentary trailer Inferno 2016 in YouTube. In this research, the writer focused on the differentiation of both works and used two chapters in Hutcheon's theory; what and why.

CHAPTER II

LITERARY REVIEW

There are two parts of this chapter; previous finding and pertinent ideas. Previous finding have ten journals and two theses. Pertinent ideas have adaptation theory, synopsis, and two biographies by the writer of novel and film script.

A. Previous Finding

There are ten journals which relate about adaptation of novel and film in years 2010-2018 as follow:

Nelson (2010) in her thesis, Politics of Film Adaptation: A Case Study of Alfonso Cuarón's Children of Men. She investigated the political and social contexts of the adaptation of 1992 novel The Children of Men by P.D James, to a 2006 US film of the same title. Novel and film share same premise, imagining a future world where human reproduction. There are different ideological and political, different product and process, medium specificity, genre and political contexts, and production and reception.

Raitt (2011) in his thesis entitled, Visualizing Literature: Screen Adaptation and the Process of Reading/Viewing. He stated the screen adaptation and other works of art in an Intertextual cluster formed by reverence such as theme and genre. He analyzed some items in his thesis; reading/viewing about relation of difference, character and world view, play We're No Angels to film Cosi, narrative poetry

Eugene Onegin to film The Mongkey's Mask, short story The Killers to film Brokeback Mountain, graphic narrative Gost World to film Persepolis, novel Pride and Prejudice to film Lost in Austen and television, and non-fiction The Orchid Thief to film American Splendor.

Rojas (2012), in her paper, From Classic Novel to Popular Culture: The Transformation of Pride and Prejudice into Film and Television. She elected some philosophers in adaptation theory and novel Pride and Prejudice. She discussed the development of transposition and commentary adaptation in BBC (1980 and 1995) and in focus features (2005), and analogy adaptation in Bride and Prejudice (2004) and Bridget Jones's Diary (2001).

McGibbon (2014), in his thesis, Seeing Double: The Process of Script Adaptation between Theatre and Novel. He described about the process of adaptation between theatre and film. His thesis examines the adaptation of stage plays to cinema and of film to theatre. In his thesis critics two scripts of Hamlet Dies At The End into film adaptation Song's End, plus material from film script Roy Jiminton into theatre. The last, his thesis argues that to successfully adapt play or film scripts from one medium to the other, the adapter must be willing to incorporate significant change in order to effectively 'adapt' and adapter have to remember some adaptation principles in process. He analyzed stage to film and film to stage, script adaptations.

Alqadi (2015) in the paper, Literature and Cinema, described about critics and writers that has usually treated the idea of cinema and literature from one point of view, considering the influence of literature on cinema. Not only explained about critics usually compare cinematographic work to literature, assessing the degree to which a movie is faithful to a text or a novel but also three sections in his paper correlated with adaptation of novel and film. One of three sections are, literature and cinema: on adaptation, exposes the notion of adaptation of novel and classics.

Habrnalova (2016) in her paper, Literary Works by Hanif Kureishi and Their Film Adaptations. She explained some best of elements of adaptation theory. She finds out the differences between the telling and the showing mode of engagement in adaptation theory by Hutcheon after she tries to apply Linda Hutcheon's theory with literary works by Hanif Kureishi and their film adaptation. There are two literary works in her paper; My Beautiful Laundrette and The Buddha of Suburbia.

Anushiravani and Elinezhadi (2016) their paper entitled, An Analytical Study of 2013 Cinematic adaptation of The Great Gatsby. They determined Linda Hutcheon's theory; what, who and why, how, when and where. In adaptation and consist comparative literature. Literature and cinema are two different mediums and different means of expression that novel uses words and cinema uses visual and aural images. They find out the similarities and differences between a novel and film are illuminated through this research.

Perdikaki (2017), in her paper, Film Adaptation as Translation: An Analysis of Adaptation Shifts in Silver Linings Playbook. She defined the process; adaptation and translation involve similar properties. They talk about both the transfer of meaning between texts and both depend on the context of their production and reception. She identified two points in analysis process about adaptation and translation; an overview of the adaptation model and adaptation shifts in silver linings playbook. In her paper not only tried identifying the adaptation shifts; plot structure, narrative techniques, characterization, setting but also interpreting the adaptation shifts.

Leitch (2018), in his paper, Adaptation, The Genre. He discussed film and television adaptations in context of source texts, the reception and analysis; the genre of adaptation itself. The Hollywood traditions of masculine adventure and feminine romance with Alexandre Dumas pere and fils, it identifies four genre markers and would perceived by an audience and concludes adaptation as a model for all Hollywood genres.

Ten journals discussed about adaptation theory and implicated adaptation like politic, media, world's point of view, and phenomena in literary works such as novel, poetry, film, cinema, theatre, and television. This research would focus on the process adaptation of novel into film. The writer would analyze what the differences of both (its form of adaptation), the reason (motivation) by adapter who make the differences as the transformation process.

There are many previous finding that has correlated of the adaptation of novel into film (difference s and similarities with this research), as follow:

Kayyis (2016), in his thesis, Comparison Betthe riteren Novel and Film “Divergent” and used Ecranisation Theory. In his thesis explained about the ecranisation process of novel into film “Devergent”. He identified intrinsic elements of novel and film. This research focused at the reduction, addition and modification based in ecranitation theory by Eneste. He founds reduction, addition and modification as transformation of novel into film and his thesis used qualitative descriptive method.

Robing (2017), in his thesis; Adaptation of The Novel “Datu Maseng & Maipa Deapati” By Verdy R Baso into Drama “An Endless Love of Datu Museng & Maipa Deapati” By BSI in 2015 (Structure Approach). He analysis novel “Datu Maseng & Maipa Deapati” into drama “An Endless Love of Datu Museng & Maipa Deapati” in 2015. The thesis describes adaptation novel into drama by using adaptation theory and Structure Approach. This research used descriptive qualitative method. The result shows there are different among plot, character, setting, figurative language, the theme, point of view, tone, and moral value. So, his thesis gives more information, description, and comprehension about adaptation in novel into drama.

The previous findings above, there are some similarities and differences between this research. The similarities in Kayyis’s thesis used descriptive qualitative method uses and novel into film as medium. However, the differences in his thesis used ecranitation theory by Eneste and analysis some intrinsic elements of the novel into film. The similarities in Robing's thesis used adaptation theory by Hutcheon, and descriptive qualitative method. While the differences; his thesis analysis all elements of the novel and drama (structural approach), and novel into drama as his medium.

B. Pertinent Ideas

1. Adaptation Theory

There are three definitions or discussions of adaptation theory by Linda Hutcheon (2006: 16-21); the first is adaptation as a formal entity or product, adaptation is an announced and extensive transposition of a particular work or works; it can involve a shift of medium or genre or a change of frame and therefore context. As a process of creation, the act of adaptation always involves both (re-)interpretation and (re-)creation. As process of reception, adaptation is a form of intertextuality.

Adaptation theory by Linda Hutcheon is one of some theories can be used analysis literary works like novel, film, theatre and others. Hutcheon's theory is the comparative literature that tries to analysis one medium to another and back again. In addition, adaptation theory discussed about human studies and forms of art. The adaptation novel into film described the relationship between adapter and audience who have a critic with creation and process of adaptation in literary works. There are four parts of adaptation theory; what, who and why, how, and where and when.

a. What

This part talks about the differences between one literary works to the other such as novel into film. As a creative and interpretive transposition of a recognizable other work or works, adaptation is kind of extended palimpsest and, at the same time, often a transcoding into a different set of conventions (Hutcheon, 2006: 33). This is a process of one medium to other or same medium. Here, there are sender-receiver or commonly say that signified-signifier. In the process, adaptation imitated social into the different form and used language as instrument to describe it. Adaptation will give the result product as media to communication between author-audience.

There are many kinds of media in art, performance, music, the visual of photography and other. Novel and film are different medium in literary works, narrative to telling-visual to showing. However, most film from the adaptation of novel before. According to Hutcheon (2006: 22), modes of engagement open to adaptation as follow:

1) Telling-Showing: novel to film, theater and the other

Novel as one of mode telling that has materials; words in text that will stir the feeling, emotion and imagination. Novel uses language as instrument to description or narration something in story. Different from novel, film's materials are visual and aural material. Film uses some instruments to support story as voice, sound track, editing, camera angles and the other.

2) Showing-Showing: film to film or performance and the other

One film can be used to new film or the performance art like theatre or opera. However, each film adaptation has the motivation by adapter. The movement processes of one film to performance art are process creative and will give the differences of both showings.

3) Interacting-Telling or showing: game adaptation of novel or film, and the other

Modes of interacting to telling or showing are new form from one literary works that have characteristics in motivation or purpose. Game adaptation becomes new escape that different with novel or film but can be adapted from them as hero's character and protagonist's character. There is one example of game adaptation such as Sombie's games. Moreover, there are some film adaptation about Sombie like Walking death, Warm bodies, and the other.

b. Who and Why

Most adapters are authors, but special in film is screenwriter. Actually, according to Hutcheon, (2006: 81) said that, film and television are perhaps the most complicated media of all from the point of view. The major adapter cannot underrate how be the screenwriter who creates a film's plot, characters, dialogue, and theme". Thus, intrinsic element differ mode by adapter, who is the new author. Adapter who is not only screenwriter but also can be a director or the leader of production, and actors' relation background. There is inspiration of novel, almost of film construction collaborated with the screenwriter to make some change in the film after get the approval of author's novel.

Motivation or reason of adapter correlated some aspects. Hutcheon (2006: 86-92) explained some aspect of motivations as follow:

1) The Economy

Adapter must look for who is audience (for whom?). Structure of economy: film world-big money=big star, big directors-the screenwriter.

2) The Legal Constraints

Some interest's point in the legal constraints of adapter to make interpretation; raider, spawned, controlled, derivative, substantial similarity, and re-function.

3) Cultural Capital

Today, adaptation process, product, will the result cultural capital as motivation to share some thing like cultural cachet, cultural accreditation. That purposes to alter cultural level.

4) Personal and Political Motives

Every adapter has personal reason and selected medium to do it in which political motives; political positions. Brevity, personal is individual; feminist, postcolonial, ethnic, and queer studies and political; academy circles to interrelate with formalists, New Critics, structuralists, and poststructuralists.

c. How

This part talks about knowing and unknowing audience. Knowledge of audiences is the most important in adaptation because fundamental motivation. According to Hutcheon in Anushiravani and Alinezhadi (2016: 4) stated that “for an adaptation to be successful in its own right, it must be so for both knowing and audiences”. Thus, the problem in adaptation is the adapters have not knowledge about audience, target from literary works and accordance with rule between adaptation process and the results.

Knowing and unknowing audiences are knowledge of human like culture in a collection. The child's delight in the same nursery rhymes or reading the same books over and over as ritual brings comfort and understanding that comes sense of knowing what is happen in future. Audience's reception of adapted work is the transposition that brings the motivation or reason related with some aspects like economy, individual or politic motives.

1) The pleasures of adaptation

The audience has some relations like the mixture of repetition and difference, of familiarity and novelty in the pleasures of adaptation. Repetition in adaptation gives the pleasure. For example; one literary work in the past can be used the product in modern era after renews it in the process of adaptation. Hutcheon (2006: 114) stated that, like ritual, this kind of repetition brings comfort, a fuller understanding, and the confidence that comes with the sense of knowing is about to happen next.

Repetition as well as difference considers the words of librettist, playwright. Terrence McNally in Hutcheon (2006: 114-115) is adapter for musicals and films, who said that, the triumph of successful operas and musicals is how they reinvent the familiar and make it fresh. The successful of literary work can be seen from the audience who respond to the pleasures of adaptation. Another name of adaptation audience is fans.

Comodification and commercialization are not familiarity in the pleasures of adaptation. Familiarity talks about other reasons for the positive reaction to the repetition with variation. Hutcheon (2006: 115) said that, others argue, instead, that it is a particular kind of story that provides the comfort that explains the popularity of adaptations: the familiar linear and realist story-line. The film remakes to unfinished cultural business or continuing historical relevance contains cultural, economic and psychological of a particular narrative. There is one example of familiarity that has relation with difference, calls “censor” adaptations. When censor appropriate for children but others not like adults, this censor for familiarity and when censor change the stories in the process of adaptation, this is censor for difference. Thus, censor illustrates the difference between the audience and someone’s age.

Novelty details dialogue with the past and shows what adaptation means for audiences. In addition, novelty creates the double pleasure of adaptation that make more than one text as experience and knowing of audience. In Hutcheon (2006: 118) stated that, novelizations of films, including what are called “junior” novelizations for younger viewers, are also often seen as having a kind of educational or perhaps simply curiosity—value. This is about adaptations of book that consists educational important for children and for an entertaining film or stage version based on the novel. For example, there is a poster of one character in film or novel that can help the audience to identification with this character. Not only junior identifies the character in novel or film by a poster but also junior as the audience gives perspective on the action in the film as a mirror from the character in the novel.

2) Knowing and Unknowing Audiences

Knowing and unknowing audience motivates the successful in adaptation because the resulting of adaptation makes no sense without reference to and foreknowledge of the adapted text. The process fills the information of the adapted text that director of film, for instance, has freedom and control. The other example, A Midsummer Night’s Dream is Shakespeare’s play. There is the distillation of plot in opera or ballet versions as the necessary. The music is added at the complication so that the story will be a familiar one. Thus, the adapter creates the process of adaptation in one or more literary works and interprets one literary work into the new product of adaptation.

Knowing audience has expectations and demands for the film because the audience understands identity signals like based on or adapted from. Different with knowing audience, unknowing audience just focuses priority or originality of film. Huccheon (2006: 125) stated that, “differently knowing audiences bring different information to their interpretations of adaptations. For example, film buffs likely see new movies through the lenses of other ones.” The theorizing about the product and process of adaptation is considered aspect for knowingness.

3) Modes of Engagement Revisited

Adapter knows the market of adaptation that not repeated from telling, showing and interacting with stories different kind and manner or of engagement of reader (spectator and player). Huccheon (2006: 128) said that, “knowing that spectators of live drama are free to choose at any moment, in any scene, what to look at, whereas with the film he would only be able to show one thing at a time with the camera and what he wanted to show.” The creating in showing from telling as based on it shows the mixed media to cutting and suturing in process adaptation. Telling like the novel requires the audience conceptual work and the audience uses imagination in the reading. Showing like film calls perceptual decoding abilities and the audience uses imagination to give meaning of images, sound, words seen and heard on the stage or screen.

Modes of engagement revisited explain about how the differences between three modes of adaptation like telling, showing, and interacting that has relation with audience. Hucteon (2006:131) stated that, “part of this difference in physical response is a result of a difference in the audience’s experience of space and time in each of these modes.” Because of the argument describes how the audience’s response in the process of adaptation, call experience of the audience. For example, telling; the novel to showing; the film has the liner differences, narrative, character, context, and the like gradually and sequentially in the reading of novel differ with multiple objects, relation, significant signs simultaneously, and then music or soundtrack in film. Thus, the reader of the novel are always in control in the process of solitary reading and the novel takes a long time but the audience of film just need some minutes, simply, time in film is shorter than novel.

4) Kinds and Degrees of immersion

This part discuss about all three modes of engagement can be considered immersive such as the reading a print text is the act immerses with imagination in another world, the seeing a play in film immerses visually and aurally, and the interacting in story of a videogame or in theme park adds physical immerses into enacted dimension. Hucteon (2006: 134) said that, “all readers are engaged in the active making of textual meaning. Stage audiences, argued theater semioticians in the same years, are an active dimension of the meaning-making of any play, not only in their interpretive work but also in their physical and emotional responses at the time of viewing.” So, kinds and degrees immersion depends on how the audience’s response and the audience’s experience as the relationship between the roles of modes of engagement revisited and the adapter working from one mode to the others.

The different kinds of mediums and medias in the audience’s world explain the level of the audience like medium of literatures and medias of televisions. In addition, Marshall McLuhan in Huctheon (2006: 135) stated that, “hot media” like television were “low in participation” and “cool media” like literature were “high in participation or completion by the audience”.” The cool media shows how the audiences to become enjoy, fan and pleasure with literature.

d. When and Where

This part talks about time and place. The process of creation and reception of adaptation contains context plays as important role. Context can modify meaning, not matter where place is and when event happened because adaptation has to exist in the vacuum. Context conditional meaning in process creation and adapter are product that contains some discourses such as society, history, art, literature, and others.

Seger in Huctheon (2006: 142) said that, many adapters deal with this reality of reception by updating the time of the story in an attempt to find contemporary resonance for their audiences: when Here Comes Mr. Jordan (1941) was remade in 1978 as Heaven Can Wait, relevant anti-nuclear and environmental themes of the day were inserted. In the other words, historicism critics as social production and the text's meaning related with the author, the text and the reader. The different with historicism, a feminist adapter linked views to describe the process reception. For example, sexual abuse or abortion becomes a theme in society critics. So, time or place as an important point in adaptation but in the process of adapting from one literary work to another is not emphasized.

2. Synopsis

The starting of the story when the main character, Robert Langdon wakes up in hospital in Florence, Italy. In addition, his memory was lost as effect of amnesia. During times to try to remember what happed, he must race against time to solve a variety of symbols while hunted by assassins and authority in his mind. CHAPTER III

METHODOLOGY OF THE RESEARCH

There five parts of this chapter; research method, source of data, instrument of the research, procedure of collecting data and technique of analyzing data.

A. Research Method

This research used descriptive qualitative method. Descriptive qualitative method is procedure that is used to describe data in the form of words written or spoken of the people or actors in the novel that can be observed (Glass & Hopkins in Dahlia, 2015: 15). This method described what the change of novel into film and how the adapter makes the change of both works.

Nawawi in Purwantini (2015: 36) said that, the basic characteristic of descriptive method is, the first; discontinue attention at problems that there are in the research. The second, describing facts about observed problem like the ways with rational interprets. In addition to it; survey, relation study, and developing study. Glass & Hopkins in Ikhsan and Junaid (2014: 162) stated that descriptive qualitative method is procedure which is applied to describe data that can be examined from the forms of novel characters' written or spoken words.

There are many explanations about descriptive qualitative method but the best point is the same because the purpose to describe the data of the research.

Descriptive qualitative is method that used to apply in literary work analysis and its purpose to describe the data.

B. Source of Data

There were two sources the data like the primary data and the secondary data. The primary data in this research is the novel Inferno by Dan Brown. Unit production manager of film are Dana Robin and David Koepp. The novel published in 2013 and the film produced in 2016. The novel has 104 chapters in 334 pages and screenplay 120 pages by 2: 01: 40 second's duration of film Inferno 2016. The Secondary data from the commentary trailer of film in YouTube to found the audiences and the adapter's motivation of film based on novel.

C. Instrument of the Research

The writer used note taking that as instrument for this research. Note taking is the practice of recording information captured from another source (Makany in Robing, 2008: 36). This instrument used to write notes from source of the data to classify the data that related to the object of the research. The writer has written a note from source of data in primary data; the novel Inferno year 2013 and film combination with screenplay of film Inferno 2016 and secondary data; commentary of audiences in the trailer of film Inferno 2016.

D. Procedure of Collecting Data

The writer applies several procedures as follows:

1. The writer would firstly read the novel, watch the film, and combine screenplay to see what the change (the differences) of both works.
2. The writer looked all the sentences and utterances in novel and film Inferno.
3. The writer identified narrative and screenplay that combined film to analyze why the adapter adapting of novel into film Inferno.
4. The writer identified the commentary of trailer Inferno 2016 in YouTube.

E. Technique of Analyzing Data

In analyzing data, the writer would use adaptation theory by Linda Hutcheon to analyze what is the change (the differences) of novel into film “Inferno” as the movement process. The writer answered how the adapter makes the change of the film based on the novel. Next, the writer identified the motivation or the reason why the adapter does it based on the change as its indication. The last, the writer would observe all commentary in trailer Inferno 2016 to find out classification how many audience pro, contra and neutral for film Inferno 2016 after the reading of novel.

CHAPTER IV

FINDINGS AND DISCUSSIONS

The writer would present all the data that have been found in novel and film Inferno 2016 and this research divides two sections; finding the data and discussion the data which related adaptation theory. Finding and discussion the data are the answer of question in the process of adaptation from novel into film, how the audience's commentary for the change of both works, and as the result of this research.

A. Findings

In this research, the writer presented the data analysis about the differences between novel and film Inferno 2016. Here are some data that related with what and how in adaptation theory. In what focused on the differences of form in telling (novel) to showing (film) and in how explains how the adapter makes the differences of novel into film Inferno. The writer presented the data where Brown is the data of the novel, Inferno is the data of the film mixed a script and Trailer is the name of commentator and its year.

1. The differences between novel and film Inferno

a. The structural

The “What” talks about adaptation of one medium to another like the film based on the novel. The writer focused on the differences between novel and film. In the differences of both works lies the structural change in fiction like elements. Character, setting, plot, theme, tone and the other are intrinsic elements. Although different elements between novels and films but both works have similarities. Generally the elements have similarities but the contents are very different, some of which are as follows:

1) Character

Character discusses about whom she or he that makes a conversation in form narrative of the text in novel or oral of the visual in film. The difference between of the character in the novel and film of Inferno 2016 is as follows:

a) Dr. Sienna Brooks

(Brown; 16)

The quote above, Sienna is portrayed prettier and younger in film than in novel. She is 32 years old in the novel while in the film is still more than 20 years old. She wears a wig and there is a tiny mole on his lips in the story in the novel while there is nothing in the film. Every novel or film needs a beautiful female or a man who is dashing to attract the attention of the audience. Fashionable is the reason to attract readers or audiences in the modern era and with a lifestyle that prioritizes perfectionism.

“Dr. Marconi doesn’t speak much English,” She said, sitting down beside him, “and he asked me to fill out your admittance form.” She gives him another smile. “Okay” she began her tone businesslike. “What is your name?” (Brown; 16)

The quote above, Sienna is good person because she gives a smile to her patients. It is an example of a protagonist character because she is friendly for other people.

“Sienna overtook Sinskey, grabbing her shoulder and using it as leverage to launch past her, clambering wildly over her toward the exit. Sinskey stumbled forward onto her knees, her beloved amulet hitting the cement stairs and breaking in half.” (Brown; 299)

The quote above, character of Sienna becomes antagonist when she blurred of all people after virus released in Istanbul.

“Instead, she buried her face in her hands. She began trembling, her shoulders hunched and shuddering. When she finally looked at Langdon, her eyes were overflowing with tears. “Robert,” she sobbed. “I can’t run away anymore. I have nowhere left to go.” (Brown; 306)

The quote above, Sienna becomes a protagonist again at the ending of the story in the novel while helping Elisabeth to find a bidder from a virus that has spread. Unlike Sienna in the novel, she is a protagonist from the beginning of the story to the ending of the story in the film. There is a constituent character in portraying characters that make films easier to understand and watched by audiences, while in novel, it is more difficult to understand but more evokes the reader's imagination and makes the audience curious.

b) Dr. Elizabeth Sinskey

“Elizabeth Sinskey could never have children. Even now, at sixty-one years old, she still felt a pang of hollowness every time she saw a mother and infant.” (Brown; 78)

The quote above, Elizabeth is described as a firm, beautiful and younger chairman in the film than Elizabeth's character in the novel. Elizabeth is 61 years old in the novel but she is only 40 years old in the film. At 31:19/2:01:40 durations in the film, she wears a plain white shirt in a black suit, a black trouser, jewel earrings in her ears, and loose hair which made her portrayed more beautiful than in Elizabeth's character in the novel.

c) Dr. Marconi

“A man in scrubs hurried in, apparently alerted by Langdon's racing hear monitor. He had a shaggy beard, bushy mustache, and gentle eyes that radiated a thoughtful calm beneath his overgrown eyebrows.” (Brown; 16)

The quote above, Dr. Marconi plays an important role in the novel. He was the doctor in Florence's hospital who helped Robert Langdon in the novel but he was only a nurse in the film Inferno 2016. At 07:12/2:01:40 durations in the film, he just stands up besides at the patient's door and monitors Langdon from afar while Sienna checks Langdon's condition.

d) Ernesto Russo

“Pitti Palace security Ernesto Russo had always wanted to play European football, but at twenty nine years old and overweight, he had finally begun to accept that his childhood dream would never come true.” (Brown; 98)

The quote above, Ernesto as a security at Pitti Palace in the story of the novel is omitted in the film because it is considered the character not to play an important role or not influence the presence or absence of him in the film.

e) An Older Woman

“An older woman who was sweeping the altar hissed sharply at Sienna and held up a finger to her lips for silence.” (Brown; 165)

The quote above, there is an older woman who has played a number of roles in the novel but they eliminated in the film. Accordingly in the film at 1:17:35/2:01:40 durations, there is different an older woman when Sienna held up a finger to an older woman who a mask seller and they makes a negotiation before an older woman helps Sienna.

f) An elderly couple

“Langdon set his sights on an elderly couple seated near the front of the church. The old man’s bald head was dipped forward, chin to chest; clearly he was stealing a nap.” (Brown; 166)

The quote above, There are husband and wife who helped Robert Langdon and Sienna in the church when they wanted to find information about where the virus in the story of novel but an elderly couple eliminated in the story of film.

g) Eugenia

“Robert Langdon!?” Eugenia demended. “Sei con Langdon oro?!” You’re with Langdon now?! Eugrnia seemed to be missing the point. Yes, but the mask. “Devo parlare co lui!” Eugenia all but shouted. I need to speak to him! One the line, there was a long pause, ang Eugenia finally said, “Mr. Langdon, My Boss trusted you so I will, too.” (Brown; 135-136)

The quote above, Eugenia based on the story of novel is the secretary of Robert Langdon's friend, Ingazio. She calls Robert Langdon to talk about the message from her boss. She gives the clue where the virus became a mystery for Robert Langdon but the character is omitted in the film.

2) Plot explains what happens in story in novel and film.

“Although he could still see her, Sienna was a long way ahead, eschewing the taxi stand and idling buses and heading directly for the docks, where Langdon saw all manner of boats moving in and out tourist barges, water taxis, private fishing boats, speedboats”. (Brown; 305)

The quote above, the endding of the story in the novel; the virus spread and only Zobrist and Harry died. While Sienna was survived, repented and collaborated with Elisabeth to find an antidote to the virus that caused sterility after Sienna blurred of Robert Langdon. The endding of the story in the film; the virus was not spread and several characters died like Sienna, Sims and some Zobrist colleagues who helped Sienna.

“The funeral for Ignazio Busoni was just getting under way as Robert Langdon Slipped into the cathedral and found a seat, pleased that Ignazio's life was to be memorialized here, in the timeless basilica that he had looked after for so many years." (Brown; 329)

The quote above, Robert Langdon presented the funeral for Ignazio Busoni after his find out mystery of virus and continued his life in novel while Robert Langdon visited a monsoon and returned Dante's mask in film.

3) Setting explains when and where events occur in novel or film.

There are setting of place and time that some setting of places contained in novel and film Inferno such as Venice, Florence, Budapest in two countries like Italia and Istanbul. However, the setting of places in novel are a little different in film, namely in the description and the naming. Setting of time in novel refers to time of when novel is written by author and film refers to time of filming. There are three years differences between novel published on 2013 and film produced on 2016 so both works have general setting of time, namely modern in 2000s.

a) Setting of the place

The Buontalenti Gritto-so named for its architect, Bernardo Bontalenti-was arguably the most curious-looking space in all of Florence. (Brown; 97)

Boboli Garden-main gate day. And a third time, until it FREEZE-FRAMES, a grainy, overhead image of Langdon and Sienna, seen from the drone aircraft that just took their picture. (Inferno; 38:52/2:01:40)

Two quotes above from novel and film show the first cavern and Boboli Garden as setting of the place when Robert Langdon and Sienna blurred from army and World of Health Organization. Two places above present when Sienna and Robert Langdon try to find out the virus in the Florence. The settings of places above are different name but have the similarity in the representation of the history places and the characteristic of their architect.

The second cavern which was smaller, deeper, and darker. It, too, was dominated by a central piece of art-in this case, a statue of two intertwined lovers-behind which Langdon and Sienna now hid anew. (Brown; 98)

Vasari corridor day. The stairs put out in an open, arched corridor that runs along the river. But just as Sienna takes the first step out into the open, Langdon hears the BUZZ of the drone again. (Inferno; 39:45/2:01:40)

Two quotes above from novel and film show the second cavern and Vasari corridor as setting of the place continue when Robert Langdon and Sienna blurred from army and World of Health Organization. The first quote above presents the setting of place in the novel when Robert Langdon and Sienna leave the first cavern into the second cavern which was smaller, deeper, and darker. The second quote above from the script of the film and the datum from the film is Vasari corridor that describes a journey when Sienna and Langdon seeking the virus.

The tiny space was adorned with rough-hewn mosaics and satyrs. At its center stood a life-size sculpture of a Bathing Venus, who, fittingly, seemed to be glancing nervously over her shoulder. (Brown; 100)

Palazzo Vecchio day. The sprawling Plazzo Vecchio, its bell tower blossoming over the city. INT Hall of Five Hundred day. The Hall of

Five Hundred was at one time the largest room in the world. (Inferno; 40:53/2:01:40)

Two quotes above show the third caverns and Palazzo Vecchio as setting of the place continue when Robert Langdon and Sienna blurred from army and World of Health Organization. Setting of place in the novel and setting of the place in the film is different.

b) Setting of Time

“They stood for a long while, looked in an embrace that neither seemed willing to end. Finally, Langdon spoke. “There’s an ancient saying often attributed to Dante himself” He paused. “Remember tonight for it’s the beginning of forever.” (Brown; 328)

The quote above shows the romantic moment in the night when Sienna and Robert Langdon will separate by Dante’s phrase in the novel. The romantic moment in the morning when Sienna and Zobrist which make a love in the film. The place and time in the settings of novel and film according to where and when the setting in novel are drawn and adjusted into the setting of the film. The setting of time in novel was not much different from the setting of time in the film because both works were made in modern which the novel in 2013 and the film in 2016.

b. Mix of plays between novel and film

“An instant later, his eyes found both Sienna and Ferris. On the floor in front of the Horses of St. Mark’s Sienna was kneeling over Dr. Ferris who had collapsed in convulsion, clutching his chest.” (Brown; 239)

The quote above shows Dr. Harry Ferris as the character in the novel which follows Robert Langdon and Sienna to find out the virus. In the middle of the story, He dies because his sick and collapses in front of the Horses of St. Mark. While there is the character in the film almost same but different name in the novel, Christoph Bouchard who follows Robert Langdon and Sienna to find out the virus in the film. Accordingly, he dies because killed by the character else, Sim.

As director of the World Health Organization, Elisabeth was no stranger to rubbing shoulders with the big boys. Suffering from severe asthma by age six, she had been treated with a high dose of a promising new drug-the first of the world's glucocorticoids, or steroid hormones-which had cured her asthma symptoms in miraculous fashion. (Brown; 77)

The quote above shows Elisabeth has a history of asthma while in the film Sienna has asthma. Plot of the novel above shows a flashback when narration of the story in novel describes Elisabeth who has asthma. Plot of the film at 1:01:50/2:01:40 durations shows a forward because Sienna who has asthma and hard to breath in the centre of people.

“I’m so sorry, Robert For everything. Please know I had no choice.” Strangely, Sienna missed him already. Here, amid the masses of Venice, she felt a familiar loneliness settling in.” (Brown; 253)

The quote above shows Sienna loves Robert Langdon in the story of the novel while Elisabeth who loves Robert Langdon in the film. In addition, Sienna loves another man, Zobrist. Each story will be more attractive to the audience when there is a love story in both works because the romantic story is very close to the audience seen from the life story. The romantic moment reflects the society and can be used as a mirror of the real story in this world. Apart from the media to entertain audiences, there are several reasons why authors and filmmakers adapting some creativities as reflection of life that is commonly found in the real life.

“Bruder’s voice was clearer his time. “...and I repeat the contagion has been dispersed!” (Brown; 298)

“The virus has been released.” (Inferno; 1:51:54/2:01:40)

The quote above shows the virus is spread and Sienna's character changes to good person after regretting her evil deeds in the novel but the virus is not spread and Sienna remains the antagonist character in the film due to the balance of the story. There is an effect that arises on each change in literary works such as the element that make other elements change and adjust into the medium. Film becomes the new product and as produced by the adaptation process of the novel that presents the changes inside.

2. The motivation or reason of adapter adapting the novel into the film

The writer found out the secondary data from the commentary of the audience to identify the reason or motivation of adapter adapting from novel into film. This research focused on the audience in the commentary of the trailer. There are three motivations or reasons of adapter adapting novel into film such as the economy, the legal constraints, and the audience.

B. DISCUSSIONS

In the part, the writer discussed the data analysis that had been found in Brown's novel, adaptation film in year 2016 with a script, and the commentary of the audience in trailer Inferno that related of both works. The writer identified what were the differences of novel and film as a form of the change in adaptation process and how the adapter adapting the differences of novel into film as the result of adaptation product that related of the audience's commentary.

There are two points of this research; what and how in part of adaptation. The first question about the differences of adaptation of novel and film Inferno which has relation with what in adaptation theory because the novel to the film or telling to showing as the object of them. In the adaptation process shows some differences as a form of the change. The writer focused on the structural of the novel and the film such as character, plot and setting as the important intrinsic element.

1. The differences of adaptation of novel and film Inferno

The differences from novel to film generally occur in the intrinsic elements or the structural such as character, plot, setting and the other. The differences between two works are a change that cannot be separated from the process of adaptation. These changes are made by adapter from novel into film. According to Anushiravani and Elinezhadi (2016) their paper entitled, An Analytical Study of 2013 Cinematic adaptation of The Great Gatsby. They analyzed literature and cinema that are two different mediums and different means of expression that novel uses words and cinema uses visual and aural images. They find out the similarities and differences between a novel and film are illuminated through this research.

In the findings, there are the changes of the structural in character such as Dr. Sienna Brooks, Dr. Elizabeth Sinskey, and Dr. Marcony's character. They are portrayed differently from novel into film Inferno 2016, plot like in the ending of each story, and setting like three places which have different name of places in novel and film. The changes occur from novel into film because adapter makes adjustment, considers the different medium of both works and uses different techniques and ways of telling or showing the story for the audiences.

There are differences between this research and Robing (2017), in his thesis; Adaptation of The Novel "Datu Maseng & Maipa Deapati" By Verdy R Baso into Drama "An Endless Love of Datu Museng & Maipa Deapati" By BSI in 2015 (Structure Approach). His thesis described adaptation novel into drama by using adaptation theory and Structure Approach that has the differences in plot, character, setting, figurative language, the theme, point of view, tone, and moral value. However, this research focused on the differences character, plot and setting. In addition, the mix plays of novel and film.

Many of the structures are overhauled from novel into film and some parts that are considered insignificant and removed by the adapter. For example in character; Ernesto Russo, an older woman, and Eugenia's character are omitted in the story of film. In addition; plot in the ending of story when the main character, Langdon continues to live and attend his friend's funeral in the story of novel but is omitted in film.

There are the mixture of repetition and difference and of familiarity and novelty in adaptation. In repetition and difference: repetition lies in the content of the story and the elements that build a literary work. The changes give the difference between novel and film Inferno that there are changes in some characters, settings and plots.

Familiarity and novelty: the audience who is familiar with repetition from one literary work to the other like the change in structure especially in form of intrinsic elements. In the other words, there is a change that is not familiar in the film Inferno 2016. It is mixing the play that Sienna is supposed to love is Robert Langdon as in the novel while Sienna loves another man, named Zobrist in the film. In example of the difference of novel into film Inferno, the writer found out character of Dr. Sienna Brooks is portrayed prettier and younger in film than in novel. She is 32 years old in the novel while in the film is still more than 20 years old.

(Brown; 16)

Character change above explains familiarity in adaptation of novel into film. The relationship between audience and pleasure of adaptation can be seen from the audience's commentary on the pros and cons of the differences that occur in the repetition of the adaptation film based on the novel. In other examples of changes from the novel to film Inferno are like a cut storyline, at the end of the story, the virus is spread and Sienna regrets her actions and becomes a good character in the novel while the virus is not spread, Sienna dies and remains a bad character in the film .

2. The motivation or reason of adapter adapting the novel into film

The motivations or reasons of adapter adapting the novel into film are the economy, the legal constrains and the audiences as follow:

a. The Economy

The film Inferno becomes a new product based on the novel that published on 2013. Inferno managed to becomes box office film year 2016 and the novel also became a bestseller in 2013. Accordingly, the film as the new product of adaptation has relationship with the economy as one of four aspects of the motivation or the reason in the adaptation. According to Hutcheon (2006: 88) said that, “what does happen as a result of the particular economic structure of the film world—big money = big stars, and big directors—is that the screenwriter becomes a decidedly secondary or tertiary figure, but so does the often unknown writer of the adapted text.” It means that Dan Brown as the famous author of the novel and David Koepp as screenwriter and the famous director makes Inferno as great adaptation product. Film Inferno is the world film category, making big money and the big beginning of the novel is directly proportional to the script writer.

The commentary of Inferno's trailer year 2016, Inferno-official trailer (HD), which 11.301.966 times watched, 2.300 commentaries, 22.000 likes, and 1.100 who do not like it in YouTube by Sony Pictures Entertainment. The commentators use some languages like English, Italian and another language. English is more dominant than some languages because it has become an international language. However, some commentators combine English language with their language that makes other commentators difficult to understand. The data explains how many audiences participate in film adaptation. The commentaries of audience are a sign that the novel has been owned by the audiences. Novel Inferno has been translated into more seventy languages and has become the bestseller. It means that the economy aspect increases for the author and the filmmaker who attracts the attention of the audiences.

b. The Legal Constraints

Novel is different from film so adapter makes the differences from the two works to adjust and facilities the audience in understanding the contents. The changes made by adapter depend on how deep the original work and pay attention for the controls in adaptation process. Hutcheon (2006: 88) stated about the second motivation in adaptation theory is the legal constraints like raider, spawned, controlled, derivative, substantial similarity, and re-faction. When all structures and genres change in adaptation process, they are no longer adaptation but plagiarism or remake. The need for control in adaptation process makes adapters have freedom in their creativity and cannot forget their responsibilities as intermediaries from author and filmmaker.

The adapter has perspective, imagination, and ability. The adapter is given the control from the author to changes in the film adapted from original work. In the process of creation, the adapter adjusts the novel into the film because their medium is different. In spite of that, in this process of adaptation there must be an official agreement from the owner of the original work with the adapter who will carry out the process of creation. As the results, this process has relation with the second motivation in adaptation, named the legal constraint which controlled on the process in adaptation relation the position of the screenwriter as the adapter between of the author of novel and the director of the film.

c. The audiences

The writer find out the audiences as one of some motivations or reason adapter adapting novel into film because adapters not only pay attention to their controls but also have to understand the audience such as perspective, knowledge and expectation's audience from one literary work to another. Rojas (2012) in her paper discussed the development of transposition and commentary adaptation in BBC (1980 and 1995) and in focus features (2005), and analogy adaptation in Bride and Prejudice (2004) and Bridget Jones's Diary (2001). In her research, she analyzed the commentary of audiences in BBC which deals with the object of her research namely classic novels to popular culture. Thus, one of the motivation or reason of adapter is the audiences that have relation with commentary or perspective, expectation for one or more literary works.

“Am looking forward already...my best author and best actor...no combination better” (Trailer; cknafather/2 year ago)

The commentary of audience above explains how audience expects the presence of a new work or film Inferno that film adaptation from novel. Audience was very enthusiastic about film Inferno because film based on novel by Dan Brown and waited film Inferno because the main character of film is his best actor.

The writer classifies the data of the commentary and identifies how the audience's perspective in the differences of the adaptation film based on the novel. The commentary describes how the background of the audience that related the knowing and unknowing audience, the audience's experience, expectation and the other. The commentary in the trailer Inferno 2016, the writer finds three types of the commentary like pro, contra and neutral as follow:

1) Pro Commentary

“Hope that the movie is as good as the book.” (Trailer; Surya Pratap Singh/ 1 year ago)

The quote above, the audience hopes the film will be good like the novel. The commentary is the example of the audience's expectation. The good estimation of the audience describes pro commentary for the novel into the film before the audience watches the film completely. The audience ever reads the novel because the statement refer the film will can be good like the novel.

“While I was watching this trailer, suddenly a question pepped up in my mind. Here is it: “If I have a power to blow off half of world’s population, which region I would choose?” Then, I faced my demon of racism.” (Trailer; Thanh Hien Nyuyen/ 1 year ago)

The quote above, the audience just pro commentary with the film because the commentary explains the audience's thinking. The audience's mind opens about world's population in the story of the film. Open minded as the audience's imagination becomes the successful of novel or film. The commentary not only stimulates the audience's interesting but also the commentary describes the audience compare two things such as the story of one literary and the reality.

2) Contra Commentary

“Just watching the movie. Sienna is not a blonde. Vayentha doesn't spikes. Plus, Langdon is able to control the plague at the end. Quite, different from the book.” (Trailer; Fab! Lyrics/ 1 year ago)

The quote above, the commentary discusses about some differences between of characters in the novel and some character in the film. The contra commentary explains the audience's experience and the audience's expectation after reading the novel into the film Inferno. The audience disappointed in the commentary because the story in the novel was not same in the film and so very different of both.

“This movie is BAD! There are less riddles in this movie than in the prequels.1) The film is too fast-paced and thus has not even enough screen-time for the few riddles. 2) Zobrist is just a rich wannabe-genocide-perpetrator and not the brilliant transhumanist as in the novel. 3) They changed the shocking book-ending COMPLETELY! And the priory ingenious Inferno-virus nothing special as in the novel. Just a stupid killer virus. Conclusion: read the book instead! Unless you are content with a conventional action-thriller-movie with a boring fast-paced scavenger hunt!” (Trailer; Gaia Seraphina/ 1 year ago)

The quote above, the commentary of the audience refers how the audience disappointed because the first sentence this movie is bad about the audience’s judge of film after reading the novel. The contra commentary of the audience details the thinking about someone don not judge by the cover of the novel when sees the film is bad. The audience shows the some differences between novel and film that has the relation character of Zobrist, plot in the ending of story, theme and the other. In addition, the audience gives the suggestion about before watching the film, someone have to reading the novel first.

“I think I’m going to read book first. This looks very cliché. Does Tom Hanks only ever deliver his lines in the same monotone throughout the entire movie?” (Trailer; Miles_Metal...8-Bit Metal, Video Game and Film Covers/ 1 year ago)

The quote above, the commentary refers the audience has not experience of the novel. When spectator does not read the novel as adapted from, will not see what the changes of both and will easily judge a work without the original work. The contra commentary also describes the question about one actor in the film and because of that the audience wants to read the novel Inferno as based on the knowing audience.

“Can someone explain in to me why the films adaptations of this series were not made in the way as the books released?” (Trailer; Thboy10/ 1 year ago)

The quote above, the commentary of the audience complains the film between of the question. The audience saw the film as the product adaptation that was not made according to the novel as original work. The audience seemed to ask the novel change into the film as the form the contra for the change.

3) Neutral commentary

“Books over movies, any day and always. One of the best things I’ve discovered is book reading. And now I am thankful to all the teachers of my childhood who taught me to read and write. Value of education recognized. Tip: be careful in selected what you read.” (Trailer; Atul Kumar/1 year ago)

The quote above, the commentary of the audience suggests someone must select to read the book because there is value of education as priority. The neutral commentary of the audience explains the film as mirror of the novel. The audience gives not the commentary that refers pro or contra about the film Inferno adapted from the novel.

Hutcheon (2006: 125) stated that, “differently knowing audiences bring different information to their interpretations of adaptations. For example, film buffs likely see new movies through the lenses of other ones.” Knowing about how an audience's views, expectations and experiences for literary works. Another word from knowing audience is a player who knows a lot about the adaptation for film and novel. For example: knowing the audience in film Inferno from the novel can be seen by the comments of the audience who have made comparisons between of both works. The reason why someone does comparisons and assessments between two literary works such as pro, contra and neutral because of the knowledge of both works, experience of reading from novel that also uses imagination and takes a long time but watching film adaptation that uses visual, sound, and another in a short period of time to enjoy the story.

Unknowing audience when a spectator or viewer only enjoys a literary work and audience does not want to know more than just the film. Another word from unknowing is Junior. Example: adaptation film has a sign in the form of the word "adaptated from" and "based on". A code or meaning of words is; the film adaptated from the novel. In other word, an audience does not know the meaning of the film what someone's watching. That means, the audience is a junior or unknowing audience.

Kinds and degrees of immersion related to three modes engagement and the purpose of the audience. Novels use textual meaning while films use semiotican and respond to the audience. Example: the film Inferno gets a lot of bad ratings from the audience in the trailer in youtube because of the significant changes in the novel. The number of audiences who have knowledge raises high expectation. Excessive changes can disappoint of the audience and finally there will be a bad comment on a work.

This research has seen changes from novel to film and looked the reasons in how the adapter makes the change of adaptation. Finally, the writer agrees with the change from novel into film Inferno after using adaptation theory but the writer is disappointed in the result of adaptation which becomes a product in the form of film Inferno because of the result of adaptation process beyond the audience's expectation. Not only outside the audience's expectation, this adaptation almost changes all intrinsic elements but also mixes plays from one character to other characters. As a connoisseur of literary works, the writer agrees with contra comments from the audiences who say the film adaptation is bad.

Even though adapters have the authority and know the controls in adaptation theory but the result of adaptation is far the expectation of readers of novel which as the original work from film. Cause and effect in the change of adaptation from novel into film Inferno 2016 is an important example to know the limits, rules and aspects in adaptation before becoming an adapter. New work in form of film produced by adapter creativity will be assessed by the audience. An adapter should pay more attention to how the audiences who relate to knowledge and expectation of the audience. Therefore, the work created has value from the audience rather than just getting a box office predicate.

Adaptation not only describes how a literary work is adapted to other literary works or back again but also adaptation is closely related to the cause and effect of a large object. Cause and effect of the creation of the universe, humans and the purpose of the Creator is the thinking start in the world. Next, the cause and effect presents a big question for intelligent people. In Al-Qur'an surah Al-Anfal verse 22 talks about cause-effect or the reason why there are the differences between animals and humans. It means that humans and other creatures such as animals, angels and demons is the reason that can determine the choice of right and wrong. This life seems to travel from nothing to being, another word from birth-growth-death. The example is a life process that contains a long phase or stage.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

There are two parts of this chapter; conclusions and suggestions. After analysis the data from Brown's novel, film Inferno 2016 with script and the commentary of the audience in YouTube, the writer formulates some conclusions and suggestions to the readers.

A. CONCLUSIONS

1. This study describes the differences between the novel and the film on the structural and the mix play of both works. The differences in the structural and the mix play are character, plot and setting. There are the differences of Dr. Sienna Brooks, Dr. Elizabeth Sinskey, and Dr. Marconi's character in the novel and the film while Ernesto, an older woman, an elderly couple, Eugenia's character in the novel are omitted in the film. There is the difference in the ending of the story in novel and the film that as plot of story. In addition, there are the differences of setting of place and time like three setting of places when Sienna and Robert Langdon are blurred from army and World of Health Organization in the novel and the film.
2. The study presents the three types of the audience in the trailer of the film to find out the motivation or reason of the adapter adapting novel into film. The three of the audiences are pro, contra, and neutral commentary and three motivations or reasons of the adapter are the economy, the legal constrains, and the audience.

B. SUGGESTIONS

The writer would like some suggestions based on the conclusions before.

Some suggestions as follow:

1. The writer suggests adaptation of novel into film Inferno 2106 can help the readers to understand the differences of adaptation two or more works. Two points of this suggest; the reader to identify adaptation such as character, plot, setting and the other, and the reader to find the reason or motivation why there are the differences of adaptation one literary work to another.
2. The writer suggests adaptation of novel into film Inferno 2106 can help to understand the audience as spectator in literary works and as one of some adapter's motivation or reason to make the differentiation in adaptation of the film based on the novel.

Adaptation of Novel into Film Inferno 2016

In this research, the writer presented the data analysis about the differences between novel and film Inferno. Here are some data that related with adaptation theory in what or form of one literary to others. The writer would found what the differences of form in telling (novel) to showing (film). Adaptation of novel into film Inferno 2016 focused on the differences of both works. There are some differences of them like character, plot, setting and mix play in novel and film.

The table is the differences of novel into film Inferno 2016 as follow:

NO	NOVEL	FILM	THE DIFFERENCES
1.	A man in scrubs hurried in, apparently alerted by Langdon's racing hear monitor. He had a shaggy beard, bushy mustache, and gentle eyes that radiated a thoughtful calm beneath his overgrown eyebrows. (Page 16)	A man in scrubs hurries into the room. Fiftyish, bearded. He goes straight to the monitors and checks them. (page 6 in script and 05:08/2:01:40 in film)	Dr. Maconi is described as an important figure when Langdon wake up in hospital (in film) but in the film depicted plain even not heightened.
2.	She appeared to be in her early thirties . She wore scrubs and had ties her blond hair back in thick ponytail that swung behind her as she walked. The only blemish a tiny beauty mark just above her lips.	Dr. Sienna Brooks is in her early thirties, blue scrubs and blond hair held back in a ponytail. (page 6 in script and 05:08/2:01:40 in film)	Dr. Sienna Brooks more beautiful than Sienna in film.

3.	“Dr. Marconi doesn’t speak much English,” She said, sitting down beside him, “and he asked me to fill out your admittance form.” She give him another smile. “Okay” she began her tone businesslike. “What is your name?” (page 16)	I’m Dr. Sienna Brooks. Dr. Sienna is friendly in novel. She is mysterious in film.
4.	Langdon wanted in horror as Dr. Marconi staggered backward into the room, falling to the floor, clutching his chest, his white lab coat drenched in blood. (page 21)	Dr. Marconi staggers backward into the room, bangs off the door frame, and falls to the floor, clutching his chest. Blood flows between his fingers. (page 11 in script and 10:02/2:01:40 in film)	In novel, Dr. Marconi uses a white lab coat and in film, Dr. Sienna uses it.
5.	Crouched beside Marconi’s body, Dr. Brooks kept searching for a pulse as tears welled in her eyes. Then, as if a switch had been flipped inside her, she stood and turned to Langdon. Her expression transformed before his eyes, her young features hardening with all the detached composure of a seasoned ER doctor dealing with a crisis. (page 24)	Sienna, who was behind it, flips the deadbolt lock, Langdon watches in frozen horror as she drops to the ground, distraught, calling out in Italian Dr. Marconi, but he is gone, dead from a bullet wound to the chest, and now there’s a POUNDING on the hospital door, and it’s just a few moments before Veyentha figures a way to come through and into room. 6.	The next fifteen seconds were a blur, descending stairs, falling. Langdon stepped on something sharp and fell, hitting the pavement hard. (page 25)	In the hospital staircase, Langdon clings to the rail, half-running, half-falling down the stairs as fast as his bare feet and diminished state will allow. (page 12 in script and 10:50/2:01:40 in film)	In novel; Robert Langdon fell in two times at the corridor and the pavement but in film; Robert Langdon just clings to the rail, half-running, half-falling down in the stairs.
7.	The creaky carriage shimmied and vibrated as it began its ascent. Because the walls were nothing but metal screens, Langdon found himself watching the inside of the elevator shift slide rhythmically past them. Even in his semiconscious state, Langdon's lifelong fear of cramped spaces was alive and well. Dr. Brooks eyed him with concern, "What is it?". "I keep hallucinating!" (page 28)	Sienna: "My apartment". Langdon shrugs, willing to go along. Langdon: "Okay". He looks around, orienting himself, looks back at Sienna. (page 14 in script and 12:37/2:01:40 in film)	In novel; Dr. Sienna Brooks and Robert Langdon walk in the pavement until Sienna's apartment and Sienna asked meekly Langdon, but in film; Langdon just wake up in Sienna's apartment, plus Sienna explained her apartment with arrogantly.
8.	Langdon's eyes shot open, and he drew a startled breath. He was still seated at Sienna's desk, head in his hands, heart pounding wildly. (page 35)	Langdon's eyes open again. He blinks. He looks down. He sees his jacket, the one Sienna took from the hospital room, has been tied around his bloody arm like a bandage. The rest of the jacket dangles over the edge of the chair he's	In novel; when Langdon wake up in the apartment without Sienna but in film; there is Sienna opposite Langdon.

9.	Somewhere in the apartment, a phone was ringing. It was a piercing, old-fashioned ring, coming from the kitchen. Langdon felt a fresh wave of remorse engulfing him. From the sounds of the message, Dr. Marconi had been permitting Sienna to work at the hospital. Now Langdon's presence had cost Marconi his life, and Sienna's instinct to save a stranger had dire implications for her future. (page 35)	Nothing	There is nothing about the message of Dr. Marconi's information in film that different with novel.
10.	"When you're done, please come out to the kitchen," she added. "There's something important I need to show you before we call anyone." (page 35)	Langdon: "May I use your phone? I'd like to call the police. Or the u. s. consulate. Both, actually." (page 16 in script and 13:02/2:01:40 in film)	In novel and script; Sienna forbids Langdon to call someone but in film different with in novel and script.

12.	A hairless thirty-two-year-old woman stated back at her from the mirror. She cried for the life she could not control. She cried for the mentor who had died before her eyes. (page 36)	Nothing	Sienna's character in novel differs from Sienna in film. Why are trailers nowadays so revealing? This trailer showed far too much of the movie.

It would have been better if they haven't disclosed the reason behind all the chasing which was the population. Then it would have been better for those who haven't read the book.

Fictional yes, but heaven and hell are real. One is for those who are saved and the other for those who reject God!

There is no in between to pray your way out! Once you're there, that is where you will spend eternity! It matters little if you believe it or not, God cannot nor will He lie! about either!! He leaves it for you to decide... most will do nothing and lose their lives to hell, never getting saved!!

Pretty please let this movie end the exact way that the book ended. And may what happened at the end of that book happen in real life. SOON.

D

Not sure how to take it. I loved Da Vinci's Code because it was almost I say 98% of the book. I loved Angels and Demons as well because it was different from the book, it kept to the spirit of the book and yet was a bit different to keep me on my seat since I didn't know what was going to be next.

Now I like Inferno. Glad they didn't go with the Lost Symbol, figured out who the enemy was in the first or second chapter. So not sure how I will like this. Should it be a spitting image of the book like Da Vinci's Code or in the spirit of the book like Angels and Demons? Good thing I don't remember much of the book. Almost tempted to reread the book now.

NOW make a movie on Deception Point and Digital Fortress. These are great books as well and don't need Robert Langdon to save the day. Reading Deception Point now and thought it would be a good movie as well. Will reread Digital Fortress again.

Why the hell did they do this Movie first ? I mean where is the third book " Symbol " (don't know if it is the right title in english because I am german and the title of the german one is " Das Verlorene Symbol "). Wouldn't it have been better to make the Movies in book order ? Not that I am not happy that they did a new Movie from the books but I would have wished that they had done Symbol first and then Inferno. I hope they will do the other Movie after that because I waited for Symbol for a while now. The painting is supposed to spell out "CATROVACER" not "PROPHECY"...

Script issue #1: Tom Hanks said that the plague will take out half of the Earth's population. Later this woman said "extinction level event." Either the screenwriters or the author don't know what an extinction is.

This is not a very intelligent looking trailer. I thought the series is a very intellectual series and this doesn't look intelligent.

Now that I think about...Inferno has almost NOTHING to do with Divine Comedy or Dante!! Both the movie AND the book!! The only references to it are:

1. The hell map
2. The face mask
3. The name of the virus

It's not like as if there's a serial killer killing people based on the nine layers nor does the plague have anything to do with hell (both appearance and concept).....Dante's book isn't featured prominently at all !!!

I don't know you people, but... Sienna is blonde, didnt she? xD

At plain view looks like the book, but it would be IMPOSSIBLE to get the whole book in a very single movie... its simply too much.

I lowkey want the virus to breach so I could see awesome zombie effects.

Of the three (3) films based on Dan Brown's books, The Da Vinci Code (2006), Angels and Demons (2009) Inferno (2016) all directed by Ron Howard...This by far the weakest entry. This film leads me to question several issues; 1.) Is Tom Hanks getting too old to portray Robert Langdon? 2.) Is Ron Howard slipping as a film director and 3.) Has the Dan Brown mystique worn off? Easily The Da Vinci Code scored $77M on opening weekend in 2006. Angels & Demons dropped down to $46M opening weekend in 2009 and Inferno dropped to $15M in 2016...undoubtedly executive at Sony are questioning the viability and future of the franchise. Tom Hanks' acting ability is sustainable but, Robert Langdon is a much younger man Hanks' 60 years. Ron Howard's films have always paid attention to the overall story line with a focused attention to historical detail, clearly exhibited in both The Da Vinci Code and Angels & Demons, Inferno failed in both areas. In my opinion, unless there is a stronger commitment to reshape the Dan Brown books-to-film franchise...its not worth pursuing in the future.

I'm a fan of Dan Brown's Inferno. Just watched this movie. I HATE RON HOWARD & DAVID KOEPP OR WHOEVER REWROTE THE WHOLE STORY!! 😡😡😡😡😡

Cinta Dewi · 1 tahun yang lalu

This is so wrongfully different it's dreadful if you've read the book (and I'm not even that huge a fan of the book). You might as well tell me this is an adaptation of Inferno that's very roughly based on the book. And wtf is Sienna not blonde!?! It says so very very clearly.
