Thesis Title : Representation of Sexuality through Children Story Book,
"Sex is a Funny Word"
Supervisor I : Dr. Rosmah Tami, S.Ag., M.Sc., MA.
Supervisor II : Dr. Muhammad Taufik, SS., M.Hum.

This research aims to focus on determining the representation of sexuality by analyzing text and picture in children story book, "sex is a funny word". The objective of the research is to find out the representation of sexuality through children's story book, "Sex is a Funny Word".

This research uses qualitative method specifically phenomenological qualitative method. In collecting the data, the researcher analyzed the object by using theory of representation by determining the conversation, quotation and the picture in the children story book.

The result of the research revealed nine theory of sex education as the representation of sexuality. There are based on helped children to feel comfortable with their bodies, touch and hugs, differences in behavior that can and should not be done in public, differences in anatomy of the male and female, body development, avoid feelings of shame and guilt for the shape and function of the body, private talks about sex, consult their parents about sexuality, gender and relationship. The researcher determined text, quotations and pictures. Then the data that has been obtained is read and analyzed after that the researcher interpreted into a meaning to determine the representation of sexuality.

CHAPTER 1

INTRODUCTION

A. Background

Sex is a sensitive topic which is still taboo to discuss in society, and it is not usually discussed by parents to their children. Parents may often feel uncomfortable when asked by their children about how the children were conceived and born and other sex-related topics. However it is important to communicate with children about sex and related matters as they are from an early age. This will allow them to understand what may be inappropriate when interacting with others. Therefore sexual education should be taught from an early age.

Sexual abuse happened in society and the most victim was children and woman (National Commission on Violence against Women, 2020). Children Sexual Education has vital importance to prevent children sexual abuse and sex-related risks and provide kids with the knowledge of the proper sexual behavior. As one of important part needed to introduce and educate to the children, sex should be introduced in schools, it is also important that parents educate their children about sex even before school starts. Therefore, providing information to children according to their needs at a certain age, one of which is sex education, which parents should introduce to children as early as possible. In addition, sex education in schools should be introduced as early as possible to ensure the healthy sexual development of children.

In Al-Qur'an perspective, Allah said in Surah At-tahrim verse 6 :

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا قُوا أَنْفُسَكُمْ وَأَهْلِيكُمْ نَارًا وَقُودُهَا النَّاسُ وَالْحِجَارَةُ عَلَيْهَا مَلَائِكَةٌ غِلَاظٌ شِدَادٌ لَا يَعْصُونَ اللَّهَ مَا أَمَرَهُمْ وَيَفْعَلُونَ مَا يُؤْمَرُونَ

"O you who have believe! protect yourselves and your families from a Fire (hell) whose fuel is people and stones, over which are (appointed) angels, harsh and severe; they do not disobey Allah in what He commands them but do what they are commanded"

This verse shows that parents have a very important role to protect their family from anything bad. Including providing sexual education from an early age, this can be a weapon to prevent sexual crimes that will be happening to their children sometimes. Parent can use many media to their education. One of them is literature.

Adults tend to explain their own ideas about childhood, including the idea that it is innocent. Literature has the potential to become oppressive by providing only partial representations of what is possible for children. Literature can be a prevention of the sexual abuse. It can be an inspiration, strength, support, information, and potential to change lives. Children's literature can be a powerful positive force in children's lives. it can make them become less innocent individuals. it can also make them realize that there is more than one way to be normal (Perry Nodelman, 1997). Also in society, the authors use literary work as the tool to critic something that gone wrong. For example politic, economy, government, abuse, and many more.

Literary work sometimes takes the role of parents in communicating sexuality to its readers. Literature can provide all of age, start from children until mature. Children's story book is a part of literary work and appears in some models based on age of the children like picture book. Books written for children are often morally didactic, and they still carry many traces of didacticism even if the message of the work has shifted. Now days Some case happened in the children's life and many of author have been conducted that case in many children literary work. One of them is sexuality. It is include some aspect such us sexual education and children sexual abuse.

There are so many researches about literature as representation of sexuality but so far most of them are taken from a novel, film or book of adults and teenagers. There is no a research used a children story book as the object. Because of that, the researcher try to analyze the representation of sexuality through children's story book, "Sex is a Funny Word" by using theory of representation.

In relation to this research, the representation about sexuality in the children's story book is constructed by Cory Silverberg as an Author. The author's representation of sexuality can give us knowledge of how the Author's see sexuality based on his experience as the sex educator. This topic also interested because people can see sexuality as something important for education and not taboo to discuss even to the children.

B. Research Question

In order to identify and describe it, a research question is formulated:

What is the Author's representation on sexuality based in children's story book "Sex is a Funny Word"?

C. Objective of the Research

Based on the research question above, the researcher provides the objective of the research as follows :

To identify and describe Author's view on sexuality based on children's story book, "Sex is a Funny Word"

D. Significant of the Research

Reading the question and the objectives of the research above, the researcher expects this research will give any contribution as a significance both theoretically and practically. Theoretically, this research will give additional information to the reader. Practically, the researcher will give some benefits :

1. To University, hopefully : this research can be used as a supplementary material for teaching activities especially in literature.
2. To Society, hopefully : this research can be used as a material to educate the children about sexuality earlier.
3. This research can be used as a reference for another upcoming related research or as a foundation for an extensive research.

E. Scope of the Research

There have been many children picture and story book. One of them is “Sex is a Funny Word”, a book about bodies, feelings and you. This book is colorful, interested and easier to understand for children. It is include a Picture story. This children story book has written by Cory Silverberg and published in 2016. The researcher use theory of representation to conduct the data.

CHAPTER II

LITERATURE REVIEW

A. Review of Related Literature

As far as being discovered, the writing was relating to this study has been writing extensively. On the other hand, this study will be analysis Sexuality in sexual education and others perspective as an object formal and the children's story book, "sex is a funny word" by Cory Silverberg as an object material.

A research about children sexual education had been conducted by many scholars, one of them is :

A thesis by McDaniel (2001), "Children's literature as Prevention of Children Sexual Abuse". In her thesis she analyzed that carefully selected children's literature can help to prevent child sexual abuse. Since statistics reveal that the average sexually abused victim is eight years old, this study focuses on current and suggested literature for children ages four through eight. Children are greatly influenced by situations depicted in books (and other media), positive and negative influences of general children's literature.

Chintya used any supporting theory for her thesis. A theory by Perry Nodelman, "The pleasures of children's Literature" mentioned that literature can be powerful, positive force in the lives of children. It can make them less innocent. This is especially important for children who have experienced situations that cause them to feel like “I’m the only one,” such as sexual abuse or living with an alcoholic parent.

In many ways, a representation of sexuality also has been discussed. There are some existing studies,

A Thesis by Chairiyani (2012), “Representasi Seksualitas Dalam Novel Saman Karya Ayu Utami” used a qualitative method. The researcher try to analyzed a novel by Ayu Utami entitled “Saman” by using theory of representation. It showed a representation of a female counterpart ideology that differs from what has already been made in heterosexual and patriarchal society. The community considers sex is taboo to talk openly. In this novel it is represented openly. Women are no longer in a weak position, and have choices.

A Journal by Jones (2011), “A sexuality education discourse framework : conservative, liberal, critical, and postmodern”. The researcher tries to see discourse framework of sexuality education more complex and varied. It provides a new framework to understanding the sexuality education by orientation education whether conservative and postmodern. The Researcher used a literature review that consist of discourses from more than 300 (American and international) sexuality education policy and curriculum document, books, sexuality education pamphlets (including diagrams and CD ROMs) historical experiences based on sexuality education, sexology, and sociology and existing frameworks in journals and books.

As the previous/existing studies above discover the representation of Sexuality. Also, there is existing study discover a sexual education for children. There are so many research about a representation of sexuality but so far the object material that used from novel, film or literary work for teenager and adult. There is no a research who take object material for children such us picture book. From that, This research tries to develop Author of children story book "sex is a funny word" representation of sexuality by using theory of representation.

B. Theoretical Review

1. Theory of Representation

The theory of representation put forward by Stuart Hall is the main theory on which this research is based. The main understanding of representation theory is the use of language to convey meaningful things to others. Representation is the most important part of the process that produced and exchanged between group members in a culture. Representation is interpreting the concept (concept) that is in our minds by using language. Stuart Hall clearly defines representation as a process of producing meaning by using language. Meanwhile, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary makes two relevant meanings, namely:

- a. Representing something is describing it, bringing up an image or imagination in our minds, placing the likeness of an object in our minds / senses.

- b. To represent something is to symbolize, exemplify, place something, and substitute something.

The theory of representation itself is divided into three theories or approaches, namely :

(1) Reflective approach which explains that language functions like a mirror that reflects the real meaning.

(2) Intentional approach, where language is used to express the personal meaning of a writer, painter, etc. This approach has a weakness, because it considers language as private games, while on the other hand it states that the essence of language is communicating based on codes that have become conventions in society, not personal codes.

(3) Constructionist approach is an approach that uses a language system (language) or any system to represent our concept.

This approach does not mean that we construct meaning by using a representation system (concept and signs), but more on an approach which aims to interpret a language (language). An example of this third model is semiotic approach influenced by the linguist from Switzerland, Ferdinand de Saussure and discursive approach by a French philosopher named Micheal Foucault. Although the constructionist approach is the rationale in this research. However, semiotic and discursive approaches were not used in this study because the method used is framing.

The main relevance of theory constructionist to research is about the explanation that language contained in the news in the form of a collection of signs (conversation, pictures, quotation) has a meaning that represents the culture that is in the surrounding community. Representation connects concepts in our minds by using language that allows us to interpret real objects, people or events (real), and the imaginary world of objects, people, objects and events that are not real (fictional). Various terms it appears in the next discussion, namely the system of representation. There are two processes in the representation system. First, mental representation where all objects, people and events are correlated with a set of concepts carried everywhere in our heads.

Without a concept, we can not really mean anything in this world. It can be said that meaning depends on all conceptual maps formed in our minds, which we can use to represent the world and enable us to interpret objects both inside of our minds and outside of our minds. Second, language which involves all the processes of meaning construction. Concepts in our minds must be translated into universal languages, so that it can connect our concepts and ideas with written language, the language of body, oral language as well as photos and visuals (signs). Signs represent the concepts that we carry everywhere in our heads and collectively form a meaning system in our culture.

2. Sexuality

According to Rathus, sexuality is the way we view and express ourselves as sexual beings (Rathus, 2009: 3). Generally, sexuality is thoughts, sexual feelings, attractions and behaviors towards other people. According to Judith Butler, sexuality is not just a social construction but a kind of performance with all the attributes it wears (Butler, 1990). This attribute is a kind of label given by society. Therefore, it is fluid and impermanent. The attributes determined by the dominant society in a place and time are different from the dominant society in different places and times.

Other things as a part of sexuality are sexually or emotionally attractive, people physically, and all those. Sexuality is freedom and personal, and it is an important part of show who you are. Sexuality can be positive experience, very liberating, exciting and In sexuality, there is an orientation based on what people feels to the others. It is about sexual attraction including emotional, romantic, or what a person feels toward another person.

Nemours Children healthy system divided kind of sexual orientation in to 4 types. There are :

a. Heterosexual

Heterosexual is they who interesting to members of the opposite sex: it is normal condition where male interesting to female and female interesting to male.

b. Homosexual

Homosexual is they who interesting to people of the same sex, Lesbian and gay are the common term for people who identify as women or men in same-sex attracted.

c. Bisexual

Bisexual is they who interesting attracted to members of both sexes. They are attracted to both men and women, and are known as bisexual.

d. Asexual

Asexual is they who may not be interested in sex, but they still feel emotionally close to other people. Asexuality is not a choice, like abstinence (where someone chooses not to have sex with anyone, whether they are attracted to them or not).

3. Sex Education

Children are organisms that have their own uniqueness. One of them is that they often do imitation. Sometimes this nature of imitation is not recognized by most parents and teachers, especially regarding sex. Educatively, children can be given sex education since they ask questions about sex. It may be that children's questions are not spoken in words, for that the child's expression must be captured by parents or educators. Nurhayati Syaifuddin (Roqib, 2008: 277) states that sex education for children is through the following theory :

- a. Helping children to feel comfortable with their bodies.
 - b. Giving touch and hugs to children so that they feel genuine love from their parents.
 - c. Helping children understand the differences in behavior that can and should not be done in public.
 - d. Teach children to find out the differences in the anatomy of the male and female bodies.
 - e. Provide an explanation of the process of body development
 - f. Provides an understanding to avoid feelings of shame and guilt for the shape and function of the body itself.
 - g. Helping children understand personal concepts and teaching them that sex talks are private.
 - h. Getting used to clothes that match the gender in everyday life.
 - i. Talking about relationship each other.

4. Review of Material Object

Children story book appears in some models. The most interested children story book is a picture book. Picture book include much of colorful picture, less script so the children can more interesting and feeling enjoy when they see the book.

The research tries analyze Author's representation of sexuality in children story book entitled, "Sex is a funny word" written by Cory Silvernberg and illustrated by Fiona Smith. That children story book had 160 pages with hard cover and colorful. It is included children and families makeups, orientations, and gender identities, sex is a funny word is an essential resource about bodies, gender, and sexuality for children ages 8 to 10.

Sex is a funny word is the first sex education book for this age group that is inclusive of lesbian, gay, bisexual experience as well as gender creative and gender-nonconforming children. The book is also inclusive of trans and intersex bodies and lived experience. This children story book has received several awards such us, 2016 Stonewall Honor for books in children's and young adult literature, Winner of the Norma Fleck Award for Canadian children's non-fiction, American Library Association Reading list 2016 and Best book of the year selection, Quill and Quire.

The author of this book is Cory Silverberg. He is Jewish and was raised in a liberal Canadian middle class in the 70s. He is a Canadian writer, public speaker, blogger and sex educator. American Association of Sexuality Educators, Counselors and Therapists. He has taught extensively on topics on sex and disability, sex and technology, and pleasure, inclusion and access throughout North America. In addition, Cory is the co-author of "The Ultimate Guide to Sex and Disability" and since 2005 he has been a Sexuality Guide for About.com.

Cory also wrote many children's books and the first children's book was entitled "What Makes a Baby". It is also the most-funded children's book project on Kickstarter to date, and was released in 2012. In May 2015, Seven Stories Press published Sex Is a Funny Word: A Book about Bodies, Feelings, and YOU, which in which Maria Popova is described as "an honest, inclusive, defying stereotypical, and genuinely extraordinary primer about sexuality and gender".

5. Synopsis

A picture book for kids that includes children and families of all makeups, orientations, and gender identities, Sex Is a Funny Word is an essential resource about bodies, gender, and sexuality for children ages 8 to 10 as well as their parents and caregivers. "Sex is a Funny Word" takes 4 children as the main character who represented all of the children that the Author ever met during his job as a sex educator. They are Zai (8 1/2 years old), Cooper (8 years old), Mimi (9 years old) and Omar (10 years old). This is a sex education book that is packaged in the children's daily stories in finding out many things about sexuality. There are 6 parts of this book, that covered include:

a. What is sex?

In the first chapter explains about the meaning of sex.

b. Learning about bodies

CHAPTER III

METHODOLOGY OF RESEARCH

A. Research Design

This research design is a qualitative research. The qualitative research lies with the idea that meaning is socially constructed by individuals in interaction with their world (Merriam, 2002). The qualitative method used is phenomenological qualitative method. This is research design which comes from philosophy and psychology where the researcher describe an experience about certain phenomenon that explain by the participant. This description culminates in the essence of the experiences of some individuals who have experienced all of these phenomena. Phenomenological research used to analyze and describe the author's experience in involve developing sexual education as sexual educator for years.

B. Object of the Research

This research consisted of 2 objects. They were:

1. Material Object

Material Object is the field of the research (Faruk 2012, 23). The field of this research is a children story book entitled "Sex is a Funny Word" by Cory Silverberg that published in 2015. It also becomes the primary data of the research. Secondary data of the material object is taken from thesis, journal, article, magazine which contains the information about the children story book.

2. Formal Object

Formal Object is the object that is used as the paradigm to observe the material object. The formal object consist of author's representation of sexuality in children story book, "Sex is a Funny Word".

C. Procedures of Collecting the Data

The procedure of collecting the data is the way to get the fact and information related to the analysis. The data will gather through:

1. The formal object are carefully examined to know the characteristic of data collected
2. Material object is rad to identify Author's perspective on sexuality
3. Data categorized and analyzed to identify to which sexual theory the expression belongs.

D. Technique of Data Analysis

Analysis method is a set of method or research technic functions to search the relation between data collected. (Faruk, 2012: 25) This relations is never concealed by the data. In this research, after collected and classified the data from material and formal object, the researcher understand the theory of representation and then the data was comprehended to understand the representation on sexuality. The researcher determined text, quotations and pictures. Then the data that has been obtained is read and analyzed after that the researcher interpreted into a meaning to determined the representation of sexuality.

CHAPTER IV

FINDINGS AND DISCUSSION

This chapter, the researcher will show all the right data to prove the truth of all hypotheses that made in Chapter II before. This chapter consisted a finding and discussion.

A. Findings

This part consists of the data analysis from children's story book, "sex is a funny word". The purpose of this analysis is to answer the research question presented in the first chapter, specifically the data about the representation of sexuality based on author.

The Representation of sexuality

Author of children's story book "Sex is a Funny Word" represented the children's feelings and opinion about sexuality in the children's story book, "Sex is a Funny Word". As a teacher, writer, and sex educator for some years, Cory Silverberg made a children story book as a book of sex education and helped by Fiona Smith as the illustrator. As a book of sex education, this finding consist of nine parts as the representation as a sex education that represented by the Author, here are the findings based on the theory:

1. Helping children to feel comfortable with their bodies

Book was something like body. Each of us had an outside like the cover of a book. And each of us had an inside, like the inside of a book filled with stories that only you can see and feel.

It can be seen in pages 36-37 :

Has anyone ever told you that can't judge a book by its cover?

It means you can't tell what's inside a book if all you know is what it looks like on the outside.

Growing up can mean learning about your outside, what your body can and can't do.

Growing up can also mean learning about your inside: the stories, memories, experiences and feelings that make you who you are.

The word "book" in that quotation refers to "body". It is also represented by a picture the outside of the body and the inside of the body. The picture showed that the inner body had many parts that are not visible when only seen from the outside. Every one has their stories about their bodies and their life. To be themselves, they must know the outside and the inside of them and understand what their bodies need. This makes it easier for child to develop properly and to take care of that was already on their bodies.

And then growing up of the kids mean learning about the outside and the inside of their bodies. The outside means the thing that the body can and cannot do while the inside means the stories, memories, experiences and feelings that make them understand about who they are.

Next the outside and the inside of the body is explained. The first is the inside of the body. Every body is different and every body has beauty in it. The picture below shows the diversity of body shapes, faces and races.

In the pages 42-43, it showed :

Mimi : Trusting your body means learning to listen to your body.

Omar : Always ask before you touch someone else's body.

Zai : Every body feels good sometimes and every body feels bad sometimes.

Cooper : Every body needs help from others bodies sometimes.

The four children, Mimi, Omar, Zai, and Cooper are represented these people with the slogan trust, respect, joy and justice. These four slogans are a part of telling that the body is something to be loved.

Trusting in yourself means trying to listen to what our bodies want. Furthermore, mutual respect for each other is an important thing to respect yourself, for example by asking permission when you want to touch someone else. Next is a joy. We have to understand that our self has a mood, sometimes feels good and sometimes feels bad. And the last is Justice. Justice means every body needs help from other bodies sometimes.

Second is the outside of the body. It can be seen in pages 46-47 :

Mimi : Did you ever wonder why we have to wear clothes all the time? If I could be naked all the time.

Zai : Not really, I like wearing clothes

Mimi : I mean who made the rules?

We are all born naked. But as soon as we're born, someone puts clothes on us.

Some people love the feeling of being naked. When you are naked you can see and touch your body without clothes getting in the way. It can also notice how your body is changing as it grows.

From the conversation between Zai and Mimi, it showed that Mimi like the feeling of being naked. This is marked when Mimi said, "... If I could be naked all the time". And then when Mimi asked Zai, "..who made this rules" this rules refers to "wear clothes". It is explained more in the statement, "We are all born naked. But as soon as we're born, someone puts clothes on us". In this statement "someone" refers to the people around us who puts the newborns baby cloths. We are born in a culture that requires us to wear clothes.

This showed in the page 48 :

Every family and community has its own rules about being naked. Even grown-ups have to follow the rules other people make for them about when it's okay to be naked and when it isn't.

Beside that, being naked or not depends on the family or the community where we were born. Every family and community has their own rules about being naked. Even grown-ups have to follow the rules other people make for them about when it's okay to be naked and when it isn't.

2. Giving touch and hugs to children

In order to analyze further, the analysis below shows representation of sexuality as sex education in gave touch and hugs to children. As an education, touched or hugged is a form of sexuality, therefore children must know the touched of the people around them and know what to do when someone touch them or hugs them.

The data in page 93 shows :

Cooper : are you okay, Annie? Let me see if it's bad

Annie : no! don't touch it

Cooper : okay, well how about I carry you home?

The conversation between Cooper and Annie showed that Anni who had an accident did not want Cooper to touch a part of her. This is evidenced by Anni's rejection by said, "No! don't touch it". This response of touch named magic touch means a touch that changes the feeling of the person being touched when touched. The feeling can be good to bad or bad to god. Some touch can feel like helping. Touch can help someone feel good. Help them get something done they could not do on their own, or help them notice something new in the world. Some touch can feel like hurting. Touch can turn someone from happy to sad. It can make them feel upset or angry.

In the pages 94-95 shows :

Some people say touch is magic.

Touching someone can change the way they feel. Touch can make a hard day bit easier, a gloomy day a bit brighter, or a lonely day a little less lonely.

Some touch can feel like helping

Touch can help someone feel good, help them get something done they couldn't do on their own, or help them notice something new in the world

Someone touch can feel like hurting

Touch can turn someone from happy to sad. It can make them feel upset or angry.

(Picture 2.1)

This explained to children that there are 2 types of touch that other people do to them or touch that they should do to others. In the word "helping" and explained by the 3 pictures at the top it explains that the first touch is a touch to give love and help to others. This includes kind touches and what children should do to others.

In the second explanation the word "hurting" and described by the 3 pictures below is a type of touch that can hurt other people. It is these touches that children should not accept and make to others.

In other explanation, getting touch from other people even from family is something that should not be done with children if they feel uncomfortable with the touch.

It can be seen in page 102 :

Women 1 : Omar, kiss your Auntie Mello, she's traveled a long way to see you. Look, all your Aunties are here now ? eek, more Aunties

In the picture we can see that Omar's expression when kissed by his aunt looks forced and unhappy. This shows that the children are still foreign to the touches of others even with their own families. In some families and communities, hugging and kissing is a way of saying hello, showing respect, or showing love. A parent or family member may expect you to give them, or someone else, hug or kiss. They may ask you to do this even if you do not want to.

There was a habit or culture in some family or community. Hugging and kissing is one kind of showing affection for others. Therefore, that habit or culture must be taught to children from an early age and explained that it is a kind of affection for others for them and they do not need to be afraid of it. And the things that need to be taught to children are the boundaries they have to guard and the parts of their bodies that others do not have to touch even by their own families.

3. Helping children understand the differences in behavior that can and should not be done in public.

In this part, children should guard some habits to protect themselves and others' privacy. In other words, this section describes the things they must watch out for when in public.

In page 52, it showed:

At home, the bathroom might be a private place. It's just you, and maybe someone who is there to help you.

Most people knock before going into the bathroom because it is a private place, and knocking is a way to respect privacy

Took the most private part in the house, bathroom is one place that must be kept confidential. Children are taught to maintain privacy while in the bathroom. Furthermore, the thing that children should pay attention to when in public is to knock on the bathroom door to make sure that there or no people in the bathroom. This helped children to be kind and maintain the privacy of people around them.

In the page 53 showed :

Our bodies are private too.

There are some parts we show people and other parts we cover with clothes. There are some parts that we choose to let other people touch and other parts that are just for us

Which parts we show and which parts we keep private depends on many things like our communities and families, how old we are, and who we are sharing with.

In the explanation above, it is explained that there are some parts that are left for others to see and touch. but there are body parts which are private parts which must be protected by clothing and not allow others to touch them.

Then in the picture above there are 2 pictures of kid, a boy and a girl. In that pictures of boy and girl, a white circle that showed the middle part of body means that the middle part of body is a private part of body. This explanation below explained the middle which is the private part of our bodies.

In page 56 showed :

Mimi : Hey Omar, I'll show you mine if you show yours!

Omar : My what? My sandwich? My awesome collection of old-fashioned cell phones?

Mimi : no! your... you know, down there,

Omar : I've got a lot more research to do on mine before I'm showing anyone anything. But thanks!

(Picture 3.2)

From the conversation above shows Mimi is very interested in everything, included the private part of Omar. That showed in Mimi's request to Omar, "I'll show you mine if you show yours!" This is also supported by the picture above when Mimi points to Omar's private part. Our bodies are private. Some people used term private parts to described parts of the body that have to do with sex. Because any part of our body can be private. There are some parts we show people and other parts we cover with clothes. There are some parts that we choose to let other people touch or see and other parts that are just for us.

Learning about these body parts might make you want to see them on other people. It's okay to be curious and want to learn, but if someone has parts of their body covered, it's probably for a reason. Respecting them means not trying to see something they don't want to show you.

4. Teach children to find out the differences in the anatomy of the male and female bodies.

(Picture 4.1)
Female anatomy

(Picture 4.2)
Male anatomy

Both pictures above are images that showed parts of the male and female anatomy. It is important to introduce children to give them knowledge about the anatomical parts of their body. Here the explanation of anatomy that boy and girl have.

In pages 71-72 showed :

Most boys are born with a penis and scrotum, and most girls are born with a vulva, vagina and clitoris
But having a penis isn't what makes you a boy. Having a vulva isn't what makes you a girl.
The truth is much more interesting than that!

In this explanation, the author explained that being male is not only by having body parts such as penis or something like that and also she is called female not only because he has a vulva. But it based on what he or she likes and what he or she is more interested in.

5. Provided an explanation of the processed of body development

Body development is an important thing that must be taught to children. For example, how his body develops from the phase of children to adolescence and reproduction.

In the pages 24-25 showed :

When we talk about sex, we usually mean of three things.

1. Sex is a word used to describe our bodies, (like male, female and the rest of us)
2. Sex is something people can do to feel good in their bodies, and also to feel close to another person. (grown-ups call this "having-sex)
3. Sex is one way grown-ups make babies (also called reproduction)

If you want to learn about sex, there are a few other words that can help. Some might be new to you, and others you may already know.

In this book, the Author explained 3 meanings of sex. One of them in the third point, "Sex is one way grown-ups make babies (also called reproduction)". In biological sciences, sex is one important thing in reproduction. this is because reproduction described how the baby was born.

6. Provides an understanding to avoid feelings of shame and guilt for the shape and function of the body itself.

This section described how children appreciate and love everything that they have.

In page 145-146 showed :

Love isn't just a feeling we have for other people, places, or things. We can also love ourselves. It's nice to try and show ourselves love a little bit every day.

One way to show yourself love and respect is to be nice to your own body. Maybe by taking a rest when you feel tired. Maybe by giving yourself a pat on the back or the arm. Maybe by giving yourself a kiss.

The world can be such a busy place, grown-ups are always asking you to do this and that, be here and be there. It can be nice to take a moment every day to say to yourself, "hi myself! I know I'm not perfect, because no one is, but I am just the way I am."

The quotation below mentioned that "We can also love ourselves". It provided children to love their self too beside love others, place or another thing. It also more explained the way to love ourselves for the examples, take a rest when tired. Then appreciated what is in us with gratitude and be ourselves.

7. Helped children understand personal concepts and taught them that sex talks are private.

In this part, the author represented sexuality based when someone talking about sex in our daily life. In order to analyze further, the analysis below showed the author's view on sexuality in this part.

In page 118 showed :

Mimi : Hey what's for dinner? I'm hungry.

Mimi's Dad : Hi honey! How was school?

Mimi : Great, I heard some kids talking about *#!@, what does *#!@ mean anyway?

Mimi's Dad : what? Don't ever say that word again! That's bad word

Mimi : that's not fair! I don't even know what it means!

The conversation between Mimi and her dad below shows that Mimi's Dad thought it was still taboo to discussed it with his daughter.

Some people think there are two kinds of words. Good words and bad words.

A different way to think about it is that words are not good or bad.

Words can be helpful and words can be hurtful.

A word is helpful or hurtful depending on how we use it. It is also matters how the word feels to the person we are talking with.

It's like the difference between laughing with someone and laughing at someone.

The same word can feel good, or bad, or like nothing at all. It depends on who is saying it. How they say it, and why.

With that explanation, the conversation between Mimi and her dad can be said that for her father, the symbol "*#!@" which refers to the word "sex" is not a good thing to talk about. But Mimi is a girl who started to become a teenager and always curious about words that are unfamiliar to her.

The picture above showed of two different opinions between Omar and Mimi. Omar's disapproving expression and argues that talking about sex is a bad talk. For Omar, Kids like us should not talk about it. Different from Mimi, Mimi's expression seemed very interesting in talking about sex. She wanted to know a lot about sex.

8. Getting used to clothes that match the gender in everyday life.

This part is the part where the author represented sexuality based on gender. It showed how society thought on gender. It can be seen as the conversation below :

- Men 1 : congratulations! Is it a girl or boy?
- Men 2 : pink or blue?
- Women 1 : Do you want a little brother or sister?
- Cashier : are you having a boy or girl?
- Women 2 : are you hoping for a boy or a girl?
- Women 3 : do you know what you're having?

Mom : come on, let's go,cooper!
Cooper : right there, mom!
Men 1 : congratulations! Is it a girl or boy?
Men 2 : pink or blue?
Women 1 : Do you want a little brother or sister?
Cashier : are you having a boy or girl?
Women 2 : are you hoping for a boy or a girl?
Women 3 : do you know what you're having?
Cooper : mom, why does everyone keep asking about boys and girl? I just hope it's a baby!
Mom : me too, coop!

The conversation was taken in market place that people are interesting to know the gender of their baby. After the children are born, people are very interesting to know their gender because of the stereotypes that exist in society that they have to give to these babies. For example, when a baby girl was born, people would call her beautiful and give her the clothes or things that women should have. And also if the baby boy was born, people would call his and give his the things that men should have.

When a baby is born, the doctor or midwife who helped it be born looks at its new naked body.
If they look down and see a penis, they say, "it's a boy"
If they look down and see a vulva, they say, "it's a girl"

There are more than two kinds of bodies, but they call the baby a boy or a girl based on what they see outside. This might sound like the end of the story, but really it is just a beginning. When we are born, a doctor or midwife calls us boy or girl because of what we look like on the outside. They choose a word or label (usually boy or girl, or male or female) to describe our bodies. But that is based on our outside, our cover, and who they think we are.

As we grow into being a kid and then an adult, we got to figured out who we are and what words fit best. Most boys grow up to be men, and most girls grow up to be women. But there are many ways to be a boy or a girl. And there are many ways to be a boy or a girl. And there are many ways to grow up and become an adult. For most of us, words like boy and girl, or man and women, feel okay, and they fit. For some of us, they do not.

Maybe you are called a boy but you know you are girl. You know how girls are treated and what they do. That's how you want to be a treated and what you want to do.

9. Talking about relationship each other

In the last part, the author represented sexuality based on the relationship between someone to another.

It can be seen in page 136 :

A crush is a special kind of feeling you have for another person. You can have a crush on any kind of person. You can have a crush on a friend or on someone you just met. You can even have a crush on someone you have never met.

Not everyone has crushes. If you do, the first time can be surprising, and can feel a bit strange.

Some people have a special kind of feeling for another person. To their friends, families and even to those they just met. Children tend to be sensitive to others especially to people they have just met or people they have just know. In this quotation below :

You might think about them a lot. You might want to spend all your time with if you could.

Just thinking about them can make you happy and nervous. When you are around them, you may feel excited, or awkward, or both.

The feelings that children felt vary widely. They can be happy, excited, sad, anxious or worried when they met or thought of that person.

The picture served a couple who feeling happy when they discussed each other. In other hand, that picture also serve two girls who talked each other, they talked about something. It means they have a crush with the person that they talking about. In the picture of two girls, there is symbol of love when they talked about that person so the researcher concluded that the word "crush" in this part means the feelings especially for children who interesting to others. When they meet or think to that person they may feel happy or excited.

There's no right or wrong way to have a crush. For some people, having a crush means wanting to be physically close and touch, like holding hands or hugging. Other people like to be close but don't want to touch. Some crushes last a long time and some are very short. Sometimes one person has a crush but the other person doesn't. Other times both people feel the same way. The crush that means the relationship between two people in this explanation mean humans have sexual desire and libido which become the natural nature that humans have an attraction to other people, including the opposite sex.

As we get older, some of us decided to start new relationships with people we have a crush on, feel love for, or have sexy feelings for. Crushes love and sexy feelings can happen between people for some many different reasons. There are lots of different names people use for someone they have a crush on, feel love for, or have sexy feelings for. Such us sweetie, boyfriend, girlfriend, husband, wife and much more.

B. Discussion

In Discussion, the researcher interpreted all the data to answer the research question and proved the truth of the hypotheses :

As a sex educator for some years and also a writer, Cory Silverberg certainly has his own representation on sexuality. This can be seen from the way he described and wrote the facts and how he represented sexuality in the children's story book, "sex is a funny word". Silverberg's experiences in explored sex education world during doing his job as a sex educator has learned many lessons and has explored many things that are needed to provide sex education to children. This can be seen in his children story book, "sex is a funny word". Sex is a funny word served Mimi, Omar, Zai and Cooper as a representation of children with various backgrounds, races and physical differences. This story book presents how they explore sexuality in their daily life and represents the questions of children often ask their parents or the people around them.

Based on the findings, the Author that represented sexuality in the children story book, as follows :

1. Helping children to feel comfortable with their bodies

In the children story book, the author explained this book helped children to felt comfortable with their bodies. This can be seen from the author's representation that described the way children understand themselves both from the inside and the outside of themselves. It is also explained by educated children to know what their body needs.

2. Giving touch and hugs to children

It is included how someone touched one another. Based on the finding, this section describesd how children response to someone's touched and hugged. It is also included the way they touched and hugged other person.

3. Helping children understand the differences in behavior that can and should not be done in public.

On finding it was found that there are many habits that parents can teach to children. Like knocking on doors when going to a public toilet. This teach children to be able to maintain the privacy of their bodies and the privacy of others. Then maintain the privacy of their body, by wear clothes that can cover the private parts of their body. That private part is the middle part of our body. By maintaining the privacy of their bodies in front of the public, this keep kids safe from the sexual abuse.

4. Teach children to find out the differences in the anatomy of the male and female bodies.

On findings, boys and girls have different anatomy systems of the body. boys have a penis, testicles and scrotum as a vital tool and girls have a vagina, clitoris and vulva as a vital tool. But in this children's book, that being male is not only by having body parts such as penis or something like that and also she is called female not only because he has a vulva. But it based on what he or she likes and what he or she is more interested in.

5. Provided an explanation of the processed of body development

Sex is one way grown-ups make babies (also called reproduction). In biological sciences, sex is one important thing in reproduction. this is because reproduction described how the baby was born.

6. Provides an understanding to avoid feelings of shame and guilt for the shape and function of the body itself.

On the findings, The quotation written by the author is a message from the author for children to love themselves. This showed that loving themselves makes children to not feel insecure and children can accept everything that is in them without being ashamed when they see things that are different from what others have.

7. Helped children understand personal concepts and taught them that sex talks are private.

In this part, the author represented sexuality based when someone talking about sexuality in our daily life. A different way to think about that words are not good or bad. Words can be helpful and can be hurtful. A word is helpful depending on how we use it. It also matters how the word feels to the person we are talking with.

8. Getting used to clothes that match the gender in everyday life

On findings, Kids got to figured out who they are and what words fit best. Most boys grow up to be men, and most girls grow up to be women based on the stereotype in the society. But there are many ways to be a boy or a girl. And there are many ways to be a boy or a girl. And there are many ways to grow up and become an adult. For most of us, words like boy and girl, or man and women, feel okay, and they fit. For some of us, they do not. Maybe you are called a boy but you know you are girl. You know how girls are treated and what they do. That's how you want to be a treated and what you want to do.

9. Talking about relationship each other

The author represented that the special relationship of someone with another person is a kind of sexuality. In the findings, when Mimi met with her friends, Mimi looks very happy. In the other side It is called crush. As we get older, some of people decided to start new relationships with people. This because people have a crush on, feel love for, or have sexy feelings for. Crushes love and sexy feelings can happened between people for some many different reasons.

Generally, this children story book cointained sex education for children age 8-12 years old. It is included all thing about sexuality in daily life. As a sex educator, Cory Silverberg had many experiences about how to treated children when asked about sexuality or sex-related topics. He had been met with many children in the different background, races, behaviour and traditions. Based on the theory of sex education, there are nine points that included to showed the representation of sexuality especially in sex education.

Six chapters in the children story book explained clearly about issues related to human sexuality in children. This book is very good to be used as a sex education for children, especially in western countries such as America where the author was born. However, if we looked at the existing culture in Indonesia, there are some parts that cannot be the basis for children to learn about sex education. In part boys, girl and all of us, the author represented sexuality by gender. The author explained that having body parts such as a penis for men and a vagina for women did not make us women and men. This can be seen from what the children like, interest and what they choose. Indonesia as the majority of Islam certainly opposes this because this will lead the children to not behave as they should.

Lastly, compared to the previous of related literature mentioned in chapter two, the researcher used three the previous of related literature. The first is a thesis by Chintya McDaniel entitle, “Children’s literature as Prevention of Children Sexual Abuse” and the next is a journal by Tiffany Jones (2011) entitled “A sexuality education discourse framework : conservative, liberal, critical, and postmodern”. Both of this previous of related literature helped the researcher to found many forms of research on studies of sexuality. It showed when sexuality becomes a means of preventing sexual abuse of children. This correlates with the material object taken by the author, children's books which contain sex education. Then discourse framework of sexuality education, It provides a new framework to understanding the sexuality education by orientation education whether conservative and postmodern.

Next, the research has a huge explanation such as the previous of related literature. The first related literature entitled “Representasi Seksualitas Dalam Novel Saman Karya Ayu Utami” , a thesis by Rina Patriana Chairiyan. The research is a study that examines the representation of sexuality. It is same with this research. However, in the previous study, a novel as the object was used for an adult, whereas in this study, the object used was a children story book that was intended as a sex education book for children.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter presented conclusion and suggestion. After finding explained what is the author representation next, the writer proposes some conclusion and suggestion to the readers:

A. Conclusion

Based on the children's story book, the researcher concluded nine theory of sex education as the author's representation of sexuality. First is helped children to feel comfortable with their bodies. It included how the children know the outside and the inside of themselves. Second is touch and hugs to children that they feel genuine love from their parents. It included how they hug and touch other people or how they respond to the hug and touch. Third, differences in behavior that can and should not be done in public. This included habits that children should do and should not do when in public. Fourth, the differences in anatomy of the male and female. Fifth, an explanation of body development. It included some aspects such us the reproduction and children grew up to be teenagers. Sixth, avoid feelings of shame and guilt for the shape and function of the body to accepted their selves and not to be insecure with what the other have. Seventh, private talks about sex. It include thing related to sexuality that not be talked to the public. Eight, getting used to clothes that match the gender in everyday life and last about relationship each other.

The researcher concluded by looking at the culture in Indonesia and six chapters in the children story book explained clearly about issues related to human sexuality in children. There are some parts that cannot be the basis for children to learn about sex education. In part boys, girl and all of us, the author represented sexuality by gender. The author explained that having body parts such as a penis for men and a vagina for women did not make us women and men. This can be seen from what the children like, interest and what they choose. Indonesia as the majority of Islam certainly opposes this because this will lead the children to not behave as they should.

B. Suggestion

1. For next researcher, the writer suggests them to see sexuality from another aspect
2. For the readers, "Sex is a funny word" is a children's story book as a sex education to the children age 8-12 years old. It means this children book is very useful to give a knowledge about sexuality to children
3. The writer believes that the children's story book can be research deeper because it is relied and portrayed the reality

BIOGRAPHY

Resita Sari was born in Sinjai, South Sulawesi, Indonesia, on November 26th 1998. As the first child of Asis Alkaf and Salmiah, She has brothers named Arif Abdillah and Fauzan Azima and a sister named Nurhakiki. She and her family lives in Tondong, East Sinjai.
