ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Alhamdulillah Rabbil Alamin. First of all, the writer would like to deliver her most profound gratitude to Allah SWT, the creator, who has given health and help to the researcher so that she can complete this thesis. The researcher also remembers to send sholawat and salam to the Prophet Muhammad SAW, the prophet who has brought us from the darkness to the bright realm, the prophet whom Allah SWT sent as Rahmatan Lil Alamiin into this world. The researcher realizes that writing this thesis was only completed with the help and support of many people.

The researcher received much help and support from many parties while completing this thesis. Therefore the researcher would like to express his appreciation and gratitude to all of them. First, the researcher would like to express her deepest gratitude to her parents, Hamzah, S.E, and Heny Widyastutik, who have given prayers and love and never stopped supporting the writer with positive energy so that she can complete her thesis well. Then, the researcher would like to say thank you dear little sister Valia Ayunda Kirana Hamzah, who motivated, prayed, and entertained the researcher when she was tired.

The greatest thanks to the Rector of Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar, Prof. Drs. Hamdan Juhannis M.A, Ph.D., Dean of Adab and Humanities faculty, Dr. Hasyim Haddade, S.Ag., M.Ag, all Vice Deans of the Adab and Humanities faculty; Dr. A. Ibrahim, S.Ag., S.S., M.Pd., Dr. Firdaus, M.Ag., Muh. Nur Akbar Rasyid, M.Pd., M.Ed., Ph.D., and all English and Literature Department lecturers and staff, especially Dr. Jumharia Djamereng, M. Hum as the head of the department who has helped the researcher lot and Syahrani Junaid, S.S., M.Pd. as secretary of the department.

The researcher would like to express special thanks to the honorable supervisors, Dr. Muh. Syukri, S.S., S.Pd., M.Pd., as the first supervisor, and Waode Surya Darmadali, M.Hum., as the second supervisor. Both have spent much time guiding, providing direction, correcting, suggesting, and advising the researcher during this thesis's completion. A big thanks to the honorable examiner in this thesis, Dr. H. Barsihannor, M.Ag., and Dr. Sardian Maharani Asnur, S.Pd., M.Pd, at all once as academic advisors. Thanks to the examiners for all their suggestions and criticisms in the proposal seminar to improve this thesis. In addition, the researcher remembers to thank all lecturers Department of English and Literature for their kindness and patience in sharing knowledge with the researcher during the academic year.

The deepest appreciation researcher also wants to thank individuals profusely and collectively English and Literature Department students for the 2018 academic year. AG 12, AG 56, and especially my beloved classmates in AG 34, who have become the support system and always provided positive energy and enthusiasm as well as help during the researcher writing of this thesis. Furthermore, thank you to my dear friends who always give their support and assistance during the writing of this thesis and who have eased some of the burdens on the researcher, Miftahul Saleha, Nur Anasafika, Muh. Fayed, Putriana, Muh. Al-Anhar, Nurfitriah, Anisah Nur Wahidah, and all friends who cannot be named one by one all contributed significantly to the completion of this thesis.

Thanks also to researcher friends far away in Sengkang, Gustinawati, Rani Udin, Fira Indah, Baso Dirga, and Suriani Bustamin. They provide positive energy, support, and prayers so the researcher can complete her thesis.

The last thanks among all my friends, the deepest gratitude addressed to the researcher partner and best friend, Muh. Arif Rizaldy, Muniratul Hidayah, and Zakkya Mutiara Arifah always support and comfort the researcher when happy or sad, provide positive energy when needed, do not hesitate to help, and always be there when needed. Thank you very much for having supported the researcher. May your blessings and ease be upon you.

Everyone above has positively influenced the researcher, so the researcher cannot stop thanking them for being a part of an extraordinary journey in researcher life. The researcher realizes this thesis is far from perfect, but researcher hope that it can be useful to the readers.

Title : An Analysis of Idiomatic Expression in Death on the Nile Movie
Supervisor I : Dr. Muh. Syukri, S.S., S.Pd., M.Pd.
Supervisor II : Waode Surya Darmadali, M.Hum.

Language is the subject of all communication; we cannot communicate without language. Every language has an idiom, and it is hard to learn and capture the intent of the idiom if we are not part of the native speaker's language. Not everyone understands the idioms, making them essential to learn. As described earlier that idioms are unique texts that cannot interpret directly. This research study focuses on the idiomatic expression that appears in Death on the Nile movie adaptation from Agatha Christie through McCarthy and O'Dell's theory.

The research objective for this study is to identify the types of idiomatic expressions used in the Death on the Nile movie and to describe how idiomatic expression is used in the Death on the Nile movie. This research study applied a qualitative method to describe the types and use of idiomatic expressions in the movie. The data of this research is a movie with English subtitles, consisting of idiomatic expressions and all suspected as idiomatic expressions. At the same time, the data source of this study is the Death on the Nile movie. The researcher used note-taking to obtain the required data from Death on the Nile movie.

The result shows forty data of idiomatic expressions found in the movie based on the theory of McCarthy and O'Dell about six types of idioms: similies, binomials, proverbs, cliché, fixed statements, and other languages. The conclusion is only binomials, proverbs, cliché, and fixed statements found in the movie.

This research aims to simplify and add insight into the idiomatic expressions found in the Death on the Nile movie. The researcher expects that readers can easily find the meaning of the idioms used in the Death on the Nile movie after reading this research. In addition, the researcher expects this research will help English literature majors, especially in the field of Linguistics.

CHAPTER I INTRODUCTION

A. Study Background

Language is the subject of all communication; we cannot communicate without language. Humans are social beings. As humans, we need to communicate with each other. This is what makes language an essential aspect of communication. Tarin (1989:4) in Bagus (2013), gives two definitions of language. First, language is a system that systematically, perhaps also for generative systems. Second, language is a set of symbols as you like it, or arbitrary symbols. Several countries and regions have its language. It is formed by different cultures of different countries in conversation, as mentioned in Al-Qur'an Surah Ar-Ruum 30:22 :

وَمِنْ آيَاتِهِ خَلْقَ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ وَاخْتِلَافِ
اللِّسَانِ وَالْوَالِدَاتِ إِذَا رَبَّيْنَ فِي ذَلِكَ لآيَاتٍ لِّلْعَالَمِينَ - ٢٢

“And among His Signs is the creation of the heavens and the earth, and the variations in your languages and colors: verily in that are Signs for those who know.”

Sukma cites in Sayyid Quthb Tafsir Fi Zhilalil Qur'an (2002:137), about Qur'an Surah Ar-Ruum verse 22 is a directive by Allah SWT for humans to pay more attention to His signs of greatness in creating the heavens, the earth, differences in human language and skin color. That difference creates one of the uniqueness of language, namely idioms. Every language has an idiom, and it is hard to learn and capture the intent of the idiom if we are not part of the native speaker's language. All we can do is practice with a native speaker and read more about the idioms.

According to Oxford (2008) idiom is a group of words with a meaning that differs from the definition of all individual words. Idioms are special texts, often used in novels, movies, or everyday conversations by Kunjana (2001, 93-95) as cited in Dosen Pendidikan website (2022).

Idioms have many types. One of the types that the researcher uses is the idiom from McCarthy & O'Dell (2017:22-30). They describe idioms into six types: similes, binomials, proverbs, clichés, fixed statements, and other languages.

Not everyone understands the idioms, making them essential to learn. As described earlier that idioms are unique texts that cannot interpret directly. Therefore to understand them, we must learn about idioms. Idioms are used not only in everyday conversation but also for magazines, advertising, news headlines, novels, films, and even songs. Furthermore, the use of idioms when speaking can improve English-speaking skills, most idioms are informal, so use them at the proper time.

Besides being interesting to learn, idioms are also attractive to examine. Idioms are used everywhere, proving that idioms are instrumental in language. Frequently we cannot catch the meaning of idioms that are spread in the media, for example, in the case of this study which examines idiomatic expressions in a movie. Research about idioms is needed because misunderstandings often occur due to misinterpretation of idioms. Therefore this research exists so that the audience of Death on The Nile movie can understand the idioms implied in the character dialogues.

This study used the theory of McCarthy & O'Dell (2017:22-30) to classify the idiomatic expressions in Death on The Nile movie and interpreted these idioms with simple explanations so that ordinary people can understand them.

The object of this research is a movie. According to Anggraeni et al. (2019) in Hornby (1995: 434), a movie is a story documented as a set of moving pictures to be shown on television or cinema. A movie is a story told using sound and moving pictures, shown at a cinema or on television (Longman, 2022).

Besides idioms, movies also have several types. According to Pratista (2008:21), as cited by Hasanah (2020), there are three types of movies: documentary, fiction, and experimental. A movie is an interesting object to study. Anyone can easily reach it, so the researcher chooses to analyze Death on the Nile movie.

Death on the Nile is a movie adapted based on the famous mystery novel by Agatha Christie. The movie is produced by Kenneth Branagh, Ridley Scott, Judy Hofflund, and Kevin J. Walsh. The screenplay was entrusted to Michael Green. At the same time, the Director is also Kenneth Branagh. Death on the Nile was released on February 11, 2022. This movie is a sequel to the previous movie, Murder on the Orient Express, which is also an adaptation of Agatha Christie (IMDb, 2022).

Lady Mallowan Agatha Mary Clarissa, or Agatha Christie, is an English novelist. She was born on September 15, 1890, in Torquay, England. Although his father is from New York, he has never claimed American citizenship. Agatha uses the concept of murder with poison, which is widely used in his murder mysteries.

Agatha has received many awards. One of the awards is the Guinness Book of World Records as "Best Selling Writer," sharing a place with William Shakespeare. Death on the Nile is one of the most famous works of Agatha Christie and was first adapted into a movie in 1978 and remade again in 2022. (Amazone. co, 2022)

Death on the Nile movie is very suitable to be studied using idiomatic expressions because there are many idioms in the dialogue. This movie is an example of a complex movie to understand because of the use of these idioms. This movie is also exciting when we look at the actors. The actors chosen to play the characters in this movie are pretty famous, including Gal Gadot, Emma Mackey, Letitia Wright, and others. Besides, the quality of Agatha Christie always presents the best in her work, so it can be guaranteed that the story must be good.

The researcher chose Death on the Nile movie as the object because the adaptation of the story is fresher and more modern. Moreover, the novel can no longer use as an object of research. The novel was published in 1937 and is not qualified to be included as the latest research object.

The reputation of Death on the Nile is also well recognized by several movie review media, including Rotten Tomatoes, IMDb, and Google Film. Here are some reviews:

“Death on the Nile feels like a relic from a bygone era which I found to be one of its most alluring traits” – Keith Garlington 4/5 (2022).

“Every bit as good as that 1978 version. I really enjoyed this movie. Brannagh makes an excellent Poirot. Very good production all round. Good cast, suspense just a truly enjoyable murder mystery” – Ronbell 10/10, IMDb (2022).

“This movie was very interesting, it kept me entertained and drawn in throughout the whole movie. The lead male actor did a great job, he was perfect for the part. Some of the animated graphics they added in weren't the best but that does not matter that much, because the story was original and super interesting. I'm so glad there wasn't a ton of sexual content, or weird stuff, while I'm just trying to enjoy a nice movie before bed.”– Justin Case 5/5, Google Film (2022).

There are some previous studies conducted on the use of idiom terms. The study by Ulya Fikrina Rosyada's "Idiomatic Expression Found In Green Day's Song Lyric Seventh Album American Idiot (2019)" and Siti Haniah's "An Analysis of English Idiomatic Expression in the Freedom Writers Movie (2020)" has a similar topic to this research but using very different theories. Meanwhile, the study by Monica Ardita titled "The Translation Analysis Of The Idiomatic Expression In Kinney's Diary Of A Wimpy Kid: The Last Straw Into Diary Si Bocah Tengil: Usaha Terakhir (2017)" has different topics and theories from this research, although the scope of the discussion is still in the same area and it is about idiomatic expressions.

Learning the meaning of idiomatic expressions in movies is certainly quite difficult for ordinary people, especially in Death on the Nile movie, in which the dialogue uses implied language. This research is a challenge and a good opportunity for the researcher to learn and develop knowledge about idiomatic expressions.

Based on the problems above, the researcher is interested in analyzing a movie focused on idiomatic expression types and meanings with the title Death on the Nile. Therefore, the study entitled “An Analysis of Idiomatic Expression in Death on the Nile Movie.”

B. Research Question

1. What types of idiomatic expressions are used in the Death on the Nile movie?
2. How are idiomatic expressions used in the Death on the Nile movie?

C. Research Objectives

1. To identify the types of idiomatic expressions used in the Death on the Nile movie.
2. To describe how idiomatic expression is used in the Death on the Nile movie.

D. Research Significance

Based on the research objectives, this research has some benefits. The benefits of this research include the following :

1. Theoretically
Multiply and increase knowledge about idiomatic expressions applied to movie scripts, especially from McCarthy and O’Dell’s theory about six types of idioms. Besides that, it will use as a reference for further related research.
2. Practically
As additional information to readers about idiomatic expressions, idiom types, and movies, this research expects to make it easy for readers to identify the idioms themselves.

E. Research Scope

Based on the research, the researcher analyzes the type and the meaning of idiomatic expressions in the Death on the Nile movie. The researcher used theories from McCarty and O'Dell to define the type of idiomatic expressions. The analysis of this research is finite to the idioms, which are in the form of dialogue in the Death on the Nile movie.

CHAPTER II

LITERATURE REVIEW

A. Previous Findings

Several previous studies have similarities with this research. The previous research provided many references to this research. Researcher took three earlier studies as a reference.

The first previous study is Monica Ardita The Idiomatic Expression in Kinney's Diary of a Wimpy Kid: The Last Straw (2017), a Thesis from English Letters Study Program Department of English Letters, Faculty of Letters Sanata Dharma University Yogyakarta. Her study concerned how English Idiomatic translates by a translator in Kinney's Diary of a Wimpy Kid: The Last Straw. This study uses the qualitative method. The qualitative method is related considering the objective of this study, discusses idiomatic expression in Kinney's Diary of a Wimpy Kid: The Last Straw. The conclusion of the study is researcher found 620 data of idiomatic expressions in the ST and took only 62 sample data to analyze since this study uses Baker's theory about translation which is classified into four types of translation strategies. The thesis also concludes that the translation uses some words that have a similar form based on the ST.

The comparison to my research is the object of the study and the author's concern with idiomatic expressions. This study examines how English idiomatic translated by a translator based on Baker's theory. On the other hand, exploring idiomatic expressions that exist in a novel is different from my research. My research examines types and the meaning of the idiomatic expression that exists in a movie, and also, the researcher used McCarthy and O'dell's theory for the analysis.

Ulya Fikrina Rosyada's Idiomatic Expression Found in Green Day's Song Lyric Seventh Album "American Idiot" (2019), a Thesis from the Department of English Literature of the Faculty of Humanities Islamic State University of Maulana Malik Ibrahim Malang. Her study is concerned with what types of idiomatic expressions. It examines the lyrics that show the lexical and contextual meaning of the idiomatic expression found in Green Day's song lyrics in their seventh album, "American Idiot." This study uses the qualitative method to analyze the data sources that the researcher has selected. The result of the study shows that the researcher found there is 47 idiomatic expression based on the theory of Makkai (1994). Furthermore, for the meaning researcher found that not all lexical meaning is the same as contextual meaning.

The comparison to my research is the object of the study and the author's concern with idiomatic expressions. This study examines types and how lexical and contextual meanings of idiomatic expressions are found based on Makkai's theory. On the other hand, exploring idiomatic expressions in a song differs from my research. My research examines types and the meaning of the idiomatic expression in a movie, and also the researcher used McCarthy and O'dell's theory for the analysis.

Siti Haniah's An Analysis of English Idiomatic Expression in The Freedom Writers Movie (2020), a Thesis from the English Language Education Department of the Cultures and Languages Faculty of The State Islamic Institute of Surakarta. Her study is concerned with what types of idiomatic expressions and the contextual meaning of idioms are found in the Freedom Writers movie. This study uses the qualitative method to analyze the data sources that the researcher has selected. The result of the study shows that based on Fernando's (1996) theory, the researcher found that the Pure idiom occurs 12 times out of 89 idioms, Semi Idiom occurs 18 times, and Literal Idiom is 59 times. For the meaning, the researcher used the theory by Firth in Haliday (1994). The researcher found that interpreting the meaning of Pure Idiom and Semi Idiom needed the indicators of contextual meaning by Firth, while interpreting the contextual meaning of Literal idiom was not required the hands of contextual meaning.

The comparison to my research is the object of the study and the author's concern with idiomatic expressions. This study examines about types and contextual meanings of idiomatic expressions based on Fernando's (1996) and Firth in Haliday's (1994) theory. Exploring idiomatic expressions that exist in a movie is similar to my research, but my research examines idiomatic expressions by using McCarthy and O'Dell's theory.

B. Review of Literature

1. Definition of Idiom

The idiom is a series of words that are difficult to interpret directly or literally for each term Muhammad Ismail Shiniy (2022). Idioms are expressions that can be used in formal or non-formal circumstances and in writing or oral. Essentially all languages have idioms, and they are influenced by local culture. A native usually often use idioms. For instance, if We are in the same boat, it does not mean that two people are in a boat together. It means that they're in the same situation.

The main problem that students generally experience is that sometimes they get confused to guess the meaning of an idiom. In addition, idioms usually have a more powerful sense than non-idiomatic phrases. An idiom is a fixed compound of words whose purpose is typically challenging to guess from the meaning of each word Cambridge English Idioms In Use: Advance (2010:6).

Idioms are words that have special meanings and cannot be interpreted verbally because they will have different definitions (Longman, 2022b)

Kunjana (2001:93-95) says, as cited in Dosen Pendidikan website (2022), Idiom is special, meaningful texts and expressions that can be classified into compound words. A compound word combines morphine or a word with a grammatical and special semantic pattern.

Many idiom dictionaries have been widely circulated and easily accessible. The most famous is the Oxford Dictionary of Idioms and the Cambridge International Dictionary of Idioms. With this glossary, it can be easier to interpret idiom sentences that are difficult to understand directly.

To conclude that idioms are language expressions, generally in the form of words, and cannot be interpreted word for word. This is the result that is summarized from the opinions of several experts.

2. Types of Idioms

There are several types of idiom, and the researcher uses the types of idiom from McCarthy & O'Dell's (2017:22-30) theory. They classify the idioms into six groups as follows :

- a. Similes are expressions that compare two things; they always have the words as or like. Using similes is good when we want to compare one thing to something extreme, like extremely dry/thirsty, extremely thin, or extremely rich. You have to be careful when using similes. They are often used in humorous or sarcastic because they have a strong meaning. For example, the sentence "working like a dog," which means I work very hard, or "your face as red as a crab" means you are angry or shy, so your face is so red.
- b. Binomials are the type of idioms that combine two words with a linking word; usually, the linking word that uses is the word "and." Example words from Binomials that are common in use are "black and white," which means separate and clear. This kind of idiom has a few categories, which are :
 1. Synonym: Combining two words with similar meanings, as in the sentence "Xiao always looks gorgeous and stunning at every party," which means Xiao always looks handsome at every party.
 2. Opposite: as it is called, this is the opposite of synonym, so this category idiom combines two contradictory words, as in the sentences "we live must know how to give and receive."
 3. The same word: is a combination of two words that are the same, as in the sentence "they finish their race neck and neck."
 4. Rhyming: a combination of two words that are similar in pronunciation. For example, "when we are young, we tend to approach the hustle and bustle of the city," which means that when we are young, we tend to like busy and noisy cities.

5. Alliterative: the combination of two words that have a repetition of the initial consonant sound, usually in two words or syllables that are close together. For example, “he likes to travel the world, but first and foremost he is a chef” The meaning of First and foremost are the most important.
 6. Joined by words other linking word “and”: as the name suggests, this type is a combination of two words but does not use a linking word “and.” For example, “the statue must be worth a hundred dollars, give or take a few thousand” Give or take means plus or minus (informal)
 7. Trinomials are similar to binomial idioms. The difference is that it combines three words, such as “they had given their blood, sweat, and tears to reach the next stage of the challenge,” which means they put in tough work to reach the next stage.
- c. Proverbs is an idiom used to express things people have experienced. The function is to give advice or warnings. Proverbs can be used in positive situations, such as “many hands do light work,” which means the more that helps, the faster the job gets done. Also, proverbs are used in negative situations, such as “it never rains, but it pours,” which means that sometimes problems always come together. Some proverbs are pretty popular, such as “Rome wasn’t built in a day, ” meaning it takes time and process for everything important to finish well.
- d. Cliché is a general comment and relates to everyday situations. Generally, people are familiar with this type of idiom. Cliché is widely used in ordinary conversation, in commercial and tabloid headlines. Cliches should not be used in formal writing or to convey original ideas because they contain informal words. Examples of cliches are “read between the lines,” which means trying to look for the hidden meaning of something, or other examples such as “he brave as a lion,” Which means he is fearless.

- e. Fixed statements or fixed expression is an idioms often used in regular conversation. Usually, the words used are not directly related to the literal meaning. For example, “once upon a time” is generally used for children’s book stories and means a long time ago.
- f. Other languages mostly come from Latin or French. For example, “Veni, Vidi, Vici” means I came, I saw, and conquered.

Oxford Advanced Learner’s Dictionary (2006:49), as cited in Mabruroh (2015), classifies the expression of the idiom as follows:

- a. A few idioms are imaginative expressions like proverbs. For example, “Too many cooks spoil the broth,” which means it will not be well done if too many public are involved in something.
- b. If the expression is ordinary, part of it may be left out. For example, “Well, I knew everything would go wrong-it’s the usual story of too many cooks,” which underlines the meaning of the idiom “too many cooks spoil the broth.”
- c. Another idiom is short expressions that are used for a singular purpose. For example, “Hang in there!” is sometimes used to strengthen somebody in a difficult situation, and other examples like “get lost!” mean an impolite way of saying “go away.”

Fernando (1996: 35-36), as cited in Tumbel (2021), classified idioms into three alternate classes they are pure idioms, semi-idioms, and literal idioms.

- a. Pure idioms

A pure idiom is a category of an idiom that is conventionalized, a non-literal multiword expression that the explanation cannot be understood by adding up the meanings of the words that make up the phrase. For example, “spill the beans” means revealing secret information unintentionally or indiscreetly; this has nothing to do with the beans.

b. Semi-idioms

A semi-pure is a category of an idiom that at least has a literal element and one with a non-literal meaning. For example, “foot the bill” explains that the word foot is a non-literal element, and the word bill is used with literal meaning.

c. Literal idioms

The last category is a literal idiom. Literal idiom does not use complex wording, this kind of idiom is easier to understand than the other two because the meaning of literal idioms is related to the meaning of the word. This type will make people easier to understand.

3. Definition of Movie

We are indeed very familiar with the word movie. Unconsciously watching movies has become a hobby. So what is the definition of the movie? A movie is a motion picture recording that tells something, and people watch it on a screen or television (Britannica, 2022). According to Hornby (1995: 434), as cited in Anggraeni et al. (2019), A movie is a story documented as a set of moving pictures to be shown on television or at the cinema.

Meanwhile, in the other dictionary, a movie is shown in a cinema or television and often tells a story (Cambridge, 2022).

The conclusion is based on the expert opinion and some famous dictionaries that a movie's definition is a moving image displayed on a screen both on television and in cinema.

4. Genre of Movie

We all know that not only do novels have genres, but movies also have them. Each genre has its fans, and the movie sometimes contains several genres. Here are some common types of genres based on the WWI Virtual Academy Program in Film making (2021) :

a. Action

This genre involves many actions, fighting scenes, and lots of stunt work for dangerous scenes. Usually, this genre includes movies about superheroes or wars. Action is the oldest genre among other movie genres.

b. Romance

It is one of the easiest genres to identify in choosing a movie. Sometimes even the romance genre can be guessed from the movie poster. This genre continues to grow from time to time.

c. Thriller

This genre is genre that contains many elements of mystery and tense things. The Thriller genre is also a genre that often appears in a row of cinema movies.

d. Sports

It's a genre that can be dramatic or comedic, but sports remain at the story's heart. Sports is a new type of genre that also has many fans.

e. Comedy

This genre is one of the many genres that are pretty entertaining from year to year; this is a genre that is suitable for all ages, especially for family time.

f. Sci-Fi

Sci-Fi is a genre where aliens, superheroes, and robots come true. Usually, this genre revolves around an alternative world.

g. Horror

Almost everyone likes this one genre; this genre will always be in theaters. First appearing in the 1970s, the horror genre continues to evolve. Starting from only containing something scary to developing sound effects in horror movies.

5. Types of Movie

The movie has several types of message delivery and conveying meaning. According to Pratista (2008:21), as cited by Hasanah (2020), these are the types of movies:

a. Documentary Movie

Documentary movies are usually made based on true stories, sometimes made to honor and commemorate events or figures.

b. Fiction Movie

Fiction movies are movies that are not real and sometimes involve imagination in the making, commonly fantasy or another universe genre.

c. Experimental Movie

Experimental movies are very different from the other two; the structure owned is influenced by filmmakers' subjective instincts, such as ideas, ideas, emotions, and inner experiences.

6. Synopsis of Death on the Nile Movie

Hercule Poirot was an intelligent soldier of his time, he managed to bring his flock to victory by carrying out a plan with the right timing in World War I, but he failed to save his captain, who stepped on a landmine. A few later, he becomes a detective. He is famous for successfully solving significant cases.

The story begins when Poirot walks into a bar where the famous singer Salome Otterbourne is performing. Then he meets Jacqueline or Jackie indirectly, introducing her fiancé Simon Doyle to her childhood friend Linnet Ridgeway, to offer her that she can hire Simon and Linnet agrees.

Six weeks later, Hercule Poirot was enjoying his holiday in the Nile, Egypt, and stumbled upon his best friend Bouc and his mother, Euphemia. After that, Bouc introduced Poirot to his friends who had just married and were enjoying their honeymoon in Egypt. They were Linnet and Simon. Several guests came and joined the event; they were Linnet's maid Louise Bourget; Salome; Salome's nephew; Managers; Linnet's classmate Rosalie; Linnet's communist-leaning godmother Marie Van Schuyler; Nurse of Van Schuyler, Mrs. Bowers; Linnet's cousin Andrew Katchadourian, who was also in charge of Linnet will; and finally, the doctor Linus Windlesham, who had proposed to Linnet before she married and left for Simon. Linnet felt insecure, so she and Simon asked Poirot to protect them from Jackie, who had been following them since the wedding.

This is where Hercule Poirot's involvement in the murders of the Nile began. He relied on his observations of all the people involved in this murder case.

7. Characters and Cast in Death on the Nile Movie

- a. Linnet Ridgeway-Doyle, played by Gal Gadot, is an elite girl whose wealth is not limited. She is one of the famous rich people, her husband is Simon Doyle, and her best friend is Jacqueline De Bellefort.
- b. Hercule Poirot is played by Kenneth Branagh. He is a former Belgian soldier who later became a famous detective. He is firm in character, and as a detective, he is a reasonable observer. He got involved with a murder case while on vacation.
- c. Simon Doyle is played by Armie Hammer. He is a not-so-rich businessman, and his wife is Linnet Ridgeway. He also has Jacqueline De Bellefort as his ex-fiancé.
- d. Jacqueline De Bellefort is played by Emma Mackey. She is the antagonist in Death on the Nile movie. Jackie is Linnet's childhood friend and Simon's ex-fiancé. Jackie has been following Simon and Linnet ever since they got married.
- e. Louise Bourget, played by Rose Leslie, is a loyal Linnet servant who serves wherever Linnet travels.
- f. Rosalie Otterbourne is played by Letitia Wright. She only goes on vacation with her mother, Salome. Rosalie is a cheerful and friendly woman.

- g. Salome Otterbourne is played by Sophie Okonedo. In the story, she is described as a singer, romance author, and mother of Rosalie Otterbourne.
- h. Bouc is played by Tom Bateman. He is a friend of Hercule Poirot. Poirot stumbled upon Bouc in Egypt while flying a kite from the top of the pyramid. Then, Bouc introduced Poirot to Linnet and her husband, Simon. Bouc had an important role in Death on the Nile.
- i. Euphemia is played by Annette Bening. She is the mother of Bouc. By profession as a painter who is quite famous, he expanded his work to Egypt, Euphemia, and even painted Bouc, who was flying a kite from the top of the pyramid.
- j. Andrew Katchadourian is played by Ali Fazal. He is Linnet's cousin and lawyer. Andrew secretly has a motive for Linnet to sign a mysterious file.
- k. Marie Van Schuyle is played by Jennifer Saunders. She is a wealthy spinster who travels around the world with her nurse and her cousin. She is a tough person.
- l. Bowers is played by Dawn French. She is the nurse of Van Schuyler. She accompanied and looked after Van Schuyler more carefully than anyone else.
- m. Lord Windlesham is played by Russell Brand. He is a doctor, and a noble, and Linnet Ridgeway is his ex-fiancé.

CHAPTER III

METODOLOGY OF RESEARCH

A. Research Method

The method used in this research is the descriptive qualitative method. Zaid said in his study that investigating the condition of natural objects, where researcher are the key instruments, is how the qualitative research method works (Sugiyono, 2015). This research uses a micro linguistic approach as it is known to examine the linguistics, namely the type and the meaning of an idiomatic expression in the movie Death on the Nile, and describe the data using descriptive analysis.

B. Data Source

The data of this study is a movie with English subtitles, consisting of idiomatic expressions and all suspected as idiomatic expressions. At the same time, the data source of this study is the Death on the Nile movie, which Kenneth Branagh directed. The movie was released on February 11, 2022, at the cinema, and from May 3, 2022, this movie can be watched on Netflix. The researcher would search for the idiomatic expression as data in the Death on the Nile movie script. Michael Green wrote the script of the movie transcript for the screenplay, and Agatha Christie as the original writer based on the novel. This study uses primary and secondary data from the movie and some resources.

C. Research Instrument

In acquiring data in this research, outline note-taking is the researcher's method. The researcher needs to write down the points relevant to the required data from the Death on the Nile movie.

D. Data Collection Procedures

The researcher collects this data by several step as follow:

1. Watching and listening to the movie several times to understand the story
2. Reading the full-text script of Death on the Nile movie.
3. The researcher looking carefully at the Death on the Nile movie script to compare the dialogue characters
4. Identifying the idiom that is used in the movie script
5. Marking the type of idiomatic expression

E. The Technique of Data Analysis

The analysis technique in this research is descriptive analysis to interpret text and content analysis dealing with the educational perspective of the movie. The data was analyzed by using McCarthy and O'Dell's theory about six types of idiomatic expressions. The idea explains the idiomatic expressions used by the character in Death on the Nile.

In the research process, the researcher uses note-taking by writing every sentence that includes idioms. In analyzing the data, the researcher applied procedures as follows :

1. Preparing Death on the Nile movie script
2. Identifying idioms in Death on the Nile movie, according to McCarthy and O'Dell's theory
3. Writing and inserting the dialogue of an idiomatic expression found in Death on the Nile movie
4. Explaining what types of idioms the researcher found in Death on the Nile movie
5. Explaining the meaning of the idioms found in Death on the Nile movie
6. Grouping the idiomatic expression
7. Then concluding the research

CHAPTER IV

FINDING AND DISCUSSION

A. Finding

This research has been analyzing Death on the Nile movie script as a document of sources data and finding the data appropriate on two of the statement problem mentioned in chapter one. The first problem is identifying the types of idiomatic expressions used in the Death on the Nile movie with the theory from McCarty and O'Dell. To make the idiom easy to understand, the researcher presents all idioms on the table.

The second problem is to describe how idiomatic expression is used in the Death on the Nile movie by cross-checking in dictionaries of an idiom.

1. Types of Idiomatic Expressions

Based on the first problem, the researcher finds out the types of idiomatic expressions used in Death on the Nile movie with the theory from McCarty and O'Dell about six types of idiomatic expressions found as follows:

2. The use of Idiomatic Expressions

The second problem describes how idiomatic expression is used in the Death on the Nile movie. The researcher presents all the use of idioms with the dialogue from the movie, making them easier to understand.

1. Captain: You too sharp to be a farmer, Poirot

The idiom “too sharp” refers to clever or intelligent. This idiom does not mean sharp. Captain speaks this dialogue to Poirot because of his intelligence in strategizing, so they can conquer the enemy. Following its characteristics, this idiom belongs to the type of idiom cliché because it is an opinion, non-formal, and commentary. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

2. Jacqueline: Honestly, I'll die if I can't be Mrs. Doyle

The idiom “I’ll die if ” refers to if one would not be able to preserve if something were to happen. Jacqueline speaks this dialogue to Linnet and tells her that she wants to marry Simon and would be very distraught if she did not marry him. This idiom has the suitable characteristics of a fixed statement type because it is used in everyday conversation, and the meaning is not literal. (McCarthy & O’dell, 2017:28)

3. Jacqueline: You’ll need someone to fix it up for you and run it. (00:13:22)

The idiom “Fix it up ” refers to supplying someone with something. Jacqueline spoke this dialogue to Linnet because Linnet offered money to Jacqueline as a wedding gift. However, Jacqueline refused because she would instead suggest a new job for her gift than money. This idiom belongs to the type of proverbs because it is used as a suggestion in favorable situations.(McCarthy & O’dell, 2017:26)

4. Jacqueline: He’s unemployed. But he’s country through and through. (00:13:26)

The idiom “through and through ” refers to thoroughly or entirely in every way, manner, or aspect. Jacqueline speaks this dialogue to Linnet to convince her that Simon is diligent and trustworthy in managing one of Linnet's assets. This idiom is included in the binomial category of the same word because it uses the conjunction "and" and has the exact repetition of words. (McCarthy & O’dell, 2017:24)

5. Jacqueline: If he doesn’t make good, axe him on the spot. (00:13:31)

The idiom “axe him on the spot” refers to the threat of being fired. Jacqueline spoke this dialogue to Linnet to assure her that if Simon was not doing well, she could fire him immediately. The idiom in this dialogue includes a proverb because Jacqueline advises Linnet. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:26)

6. Simon Doyle: I hope you don't mind, I took the liberty. (00:13:55)

The idiom "I took the liberty" refers to doing something without first seeking out or asking for someone's permission. Simon spoke this dialogue to Linnet because he approached Jacqueline and cut them off. This idiom is included in the fixed statement category because the meaning of the idiom is not literal and is used in general conversation. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

7. Jacqueline: Simon, darling, meet the golden girl. As advertised (00:13:58)

The idiom "the golden girl" refers to a girl or woman who is especially popular, admired, and successful. Jacqueline speaks this dialogue to Simon to show that her famous friend is here. This idiom belongs to the category of cliché because it is a comment Jacqueline pointed out to Linnet in an informal conversation. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

8. Jacqueline: Simon, darling, meet the golden girl. As advertised (00:13:58)

The idiom "as advertised" refers to purchasing something and hiring a particular type of person. Jacqueline speaks this dialogue to Simon to introduce himself to Linnet. This idiom belongs to the proverb type because Jacqueline suggests that Simon get acquainted with Linnet. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

9. Bouc: Of all the pyramids in all the world, you had to walk up to mine. What a small world.

The idiom “what a small world” refers to one encounters the same people, events, or situations in unexpected places. Bouc spoke this dialogue to Poirot because he did not expect to meet Poirot in Egypt. The idiom in this dialogue belongs to the cliché type. This idiom is often used and is familiar enough to fulfill the cliché type's characteristics. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

10. Andrew: Now, please sent this telegram sent off as soon as able. And not another soul sees it.

The idiom “not another soul” means not revealing this information to anyone else. Andrew speaks this dialogue to the waiter to warn that the information he conveys is confidential. This idiom is a type of proverb because its purpose is to give a warning. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:26)

11. Lord Windlesham: I am calm, capable, and coping.

(00:20:46)

The idiom “I am calm, capable, and coping” means self-soothing sentences or encouraging yourself for something. Lord Windlesham spoke this dialogue to cheer himself up in the mirror. This idiom is included in the binomial type of the trinomial category because it uses the conjunction "and" in three words connectedly. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:24)

12. Bouc: Lucky devil.

The idiom “lucky devil” refers to someone who has just experienced excellent fortune. This dialogue was spoken by Bouc to Poirot and addressed to Simon, who was fortunate to have married

Linnet. This idiom is included in the type of fixed statement because it is not interpreted literally. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

13. Bowers: Three cheers and a tiger from me!

(00:22:53)

The idiom “three cheers” refers to three shouts of joy, approval, appreciation, or congratulations. Bowers spoke this dialogue to Simon and Linnet to celebrate their lavish wedding. This idiom belongs to the type of cliché because it is a comment from Bowers towards Simon and Linnet. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

14. Bouc: If I were in his shoes, I'd only come here to put a bullet in the groom.

(00:25:02)

The idiom “If I were in his shoes” refers to seeing or experiencing something from someone else's point of view. Bouc spoke this dialogue to Poirot to share his advice that if he were in Lord Windlesham's position, he would kill the groom. This idiom belongs to the type of proverb and is used in adverse situations. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:26)

15. Bouc: Oh, and there's Cousin Andrew. He's slippery fish.

The idiom “He's slippery fish” refers to devious, scheming, and untrustworthy. Bouc spoke this dialogue to Poirot to introduce Linnet's wedding guests and explain that Andrew is a cunning, hypocritical, and untrustworthy person. This idiom is included in the fixed statement because what Bouc meant was not a fish but an unpredictable nature. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

16. Rosalie: What's the scam here, Simon?

Simon: Hurry on.

(00:32:51)

The idiom “what's the scam” refers to what is going on ? said one when one is suspicious of someone. Rosalie spoke this dialogue to Simon because Simon suddenly told them to gather, and Rosalie felt doubtful and suspicious of what he would show. This idiom belongs to the cliché type because it is informal, is Rosalie's comment, and is used in ordinary conversation. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

17. Linnet: I hoped you might watch for us.

The idiom “watch for us” refers to being aware of one's surroundings to look for or be aware of someone or something. Linnet spoke this dialogue to Poirot to plead and suggest that Poirot should watch over them because Linnet did not feel safe being in the same place with her guests. This idiom is included in the proverb type because it aims to give advice and input in favorable situations. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:26)

18. Euphemia: Bloody good fun!

The idiom “bloody good fun!” refers to having much fun. Euphemia speaks this dialogue to express her pleasure towards the party being held. This idiom is included in the type of fixed statement because its meaning has nothing to do with the word blood but expresses feelings of joy. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

19. Bouc: Look, I've been bursting to tell you.

The idiom “bursting” refers to wanting to do something so much. Bouc spoke this dialogue to Poirot to let him know that he wanted to tell Poirot that he was interested in Rosalie. This idiom is included in the type of fixed statement because it is used in ordinary conversation and does not have a meaning directly related to the spoken word. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

20. Louis: I have pressing to do.

The idiom “pressing to do” refers to the urge for something to be done. Louis spoke this dialogue to Linnet to tell her that she still had work to take care of because suddenly Linnet invited everyone off the ship without exception. This idiom is included in the fixed statement type because it has nothing to do with pressing but just Louise’s way of expressing that she has a lot to do. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

21. Bouc: Brushes down, Mother. It’s the temple of Abu Simbel.

The idiom “brushes down” refers to removing or cleaning something. Bouc spoke this dialogue to Euphemia, his mother, so she immediately stopped her painting activities and got off the ship to see the temple of Abu Simbel. This idiom is included in the type of fixed statement because it is not related to the meaning of the word brushes. Bouc speaks this word to express that his mother must stop for a moment because her activities are less important. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

22. Louise: “Just by passing, she has stolen my heart”

The idiom “stolen my heart” refers to captivating one, to instill deep affection or love in one. Louise spoke this dialogue while reading the poem engraved on the walls of the queen’s burial mastaba in the book brought by Lord Windlesham. This idiom belongs to the cliché type because it is often used in informal and is well-known. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

23. Linnet: Name a price!

The idiom “name a price!” refers to identifying or coming up with a price for which one is willing to buy or sell something. Linnet spoke this dialogue to Simon to express his anger at knowing Jacqueline had bought a ticket and joined her party sailing on the Nile. This idiom belongs to the type of cliché because it is informal and used in general conversation. Linnet uses it to show that she is so angry that she can buy the boat. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

24. Simon: God, I feel so free and so fat-headed for not turning around sooner.

(1:00:30)

The idiom “fat-headed” refers to another way to say stupid. Simon spoke this dialogue to Jacqueline because she was annoyed that Jacqueline kept bothering him with Linnet. This idiom is included in the type of fixed statement because the word's meaning cannot be interpreted literally and is used in general conversation. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

25. Simon: Are you sure you don't want to make it hurt more, Doctor?
Settle the score.

(1:02:52)

The idiom “settle the score” refers to getting vengeance on someone for past wrongs or punishing someone. Simon speaks this dialogue to Lord Windlesham, who is still kind to him. He suspects that Lord Windlesham wants revenge by making him suffer more pain while treating him. This idiom belongs to the type of fixed statement because it cannot be interpreted literally and has nothing to do with any score. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

26. Rosalie: It's all right. He's a bloodhound, let him sniff.

(1:06:53)

The idiom "he's a bloodhound" refers to other words to call Detective. Rosalie spoke this dialogue to Bouc to calm him down and allow Poirot to interrogate him freely. This idiom is included in the type of fixed statement because the sentence's meaning is not related to dogs. Bloodhound is a hunting dog breed. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

27. Louise: He dropped me.

(1:11:04)

The idiom "dropped me" refers to stop being friends with someone, especially with one's boyfriend or girlfriend. Louise spoke this dialogue to Poirot to answer the interrogation questions surrounding Linnet's death. This idiom is included in the type of fixed statement because the meaning of the word mentioned is unrelated to the word drop. Louise uses this idiom to convey that, at that time, she was dumped by her ex-boyfriend. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

28. Poirot: She flaunted her new love, yet still called you like a puppy dog.

(1:14:30)

The idiom "puppy dog" refers to continuing to the following someone and do things for them like a small needy animal. Poirot spoke this dialogue to Lord Windlesham as a form of interrogation of him. Poirot insisted on pressuring Lord Windlesham for his alibi, why he could still participate in his ex-fiancé Linnet's events. This idiom is cliché because Poirot uses it to comment on Lord Windlesham, who can still follow Linnet despite being hurt. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

29. Poirot: Acquired tastes require acquisition, and here you moon over truffle and king crabs.

(1:18:52)

The idiom “moon over” refers to an intense pine or yearning for someone or something. Poirot spoke this dialogue to Bowers as a form of his interrogation of Linnet’s death. Poirot revealed that Bowers was one of the wealthy families who became bankrupt because of Linnet’s father. This idiom belongs to the type of cliché because Poirot uses it to comment on Bowers’ strange behavior towards certain foods and because this part of the interrogation is Poirot’s own opinion. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

30. Maria: I don't give a fig for money

(1:21:15)

The idiom “don't give a fig” refers to not having the slightest concern about it. Maria spoke this dialogue to Poirot, who accused her of having the intent to kill Linnet because if Linnet died, she would receive her inheritance. This idiom is included in the cliché category because Maria uses it to comment on Poirot’s accusations. Besides, this idiom is informal and impolite, so it is unsuitable for use outside of the regular conversation. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

31. Poirot: The stewards on this ship keep excellent room. Have you noticed? A truly first-rate housekeeping staff

Maria: He's off his rails

(1:21:27)

The idiom "off his rails" refers to losing control and starting to behave in a way that is not normal or acceptable. Maria spoke this dialogue to Poirot to call him nonsense when he was suddenly discussing the ship's service. This idiom belongs to the type of cliché because it is a commentary by Maria to Poirot. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

32. Salome: Monsieur Poirot, if I put a bullet in everyone who took a potshot at me for not keeping to my place, the world would be littered with dead white ladies.

The idiom "potshot" refers to criticizing somebody suddenly and without thinking. Salome speaks this dialogue to Poirot to answer interrogation questions surrounding the Linnet murder case. This idiom is included in the type of fixed statement because it has no meaning related to the word potshot. Besides that, Salome uses this idiom to emphasize that she is not a vengeful person. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

33. Lord Windlesham: I always told her your firm was bilking her for millions.
(1:32:49)

The idiom "bilking" refers to obtaining something from one by dishonest means and for personal gain. Lord Windlesham speaks this dialogue to Andrew because he accuses him of killing Louis and being the suspect in Linnet's murder. This idiom is included in the type of fixed statement because it is not related to its literal meaning. Lord Windlesham used this idiom as a form of anger at Andrew's cunning actions. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

34. Bowers: Well, he'd better try harder, or we'll all wind up in an Egyptian jail cell.

The idiom "wind up" refers to reaching a specific place or state. Bowers spoke this dialogue to Poirot to comment on so that the case would quickly resolve, or they would all throw into Egyptian prisons. This idiom is a cliché because Bowers used it to comment on Poirot, and the word wind up is not formal. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

35. Poirot: But you lie to me. You lie in my face!

(1:37:06)

The idiom "lie in my face" refers to telling a lie directly to someone without trying to hide it. Poirot, who was angry, spoke this dialogue to Bouc because he lied and hindered the investigation. This idiom belongs to the cliché type because it is often used in casual and informal conversation. In addition, this idiom is used by Poirot to comment on Bouc's attitude. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

36. Poirot: Madame Doyle reported her husband was cross with Louise over some nail polish left at the hotel. Why should he care?

The idiom "cross" refers to being angry or annoyed with someone. Poirot spoke this dialogue to everyone when explaining the conclusion of the investigation into Linnet's murder. Poirot explained that Simon's anger towards Louis was suspected. This idiom is a fixed statement because it is not related to the literal meaning of the word cross. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

37. Simon: You are mad. That I will shoot myself, and then somehow kill Louise and Bouc

(1:49:44)

The idiom "you are mad" refers to being difficult to believe. Simon spoke this dialogue to Poirot after his investigation, which led to him. This idiom belongs to the cliché type because it is Simon's comment on Poirot's conclusion, which he thinks is unreasonable. Besides that, this idiom has been widely used in ordinary conversation. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

38. Poirot: When detected who had killed Louise, Simon shouted...

Simon: Come on!

Poirot: A warning to his accessory, who shot Bouc through the throat
(1:51:31)

The idiom "accessory" refers to someone who knowingly incites the commission of some crime without direct participation. Poirot spoke this dialogue to everyone to explain the investigation's conclusion into Linnet's death. Poirot explains that Simon, as the murder suspect, was not working alone in the plot to kill Linnet. This idiom is included in the type of fixed statement because it is not related to the literal meaning of accessory. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

39. Simon: Listen to me. We can make it. We've got to go now, and we've got to be strong

(1:53:45)

The idiom "we can make it" refers to being successful or surviving. Simon spoke this dialogue to Jacqueline to calm her down because they had both been caught as Linnet's killers. This idiom belongs to the cliché type because it is familiar in ordinary conversation, is used to encourage, and is just an opinion. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

40. Stranger: Watch it, mister.

(1:58:01)

The idiom "watch it" refers to being careful. A stranger spoke this dialogue to Poirot because he was not being careful and ran into him. This idiom belongs to the cliché type because it is a comment from a stranger to Poirot, and this idiom is also often used in ordinary conversation. (McCarthy & O'dell, 2017:28)

B. Discussion

In this section, the researcher will describe 40 idiomatic expression data found using the theory from McCarthy and O'Dell. The researcher found several types of idiomatic expressions. The data shows 2 idioms of binomial type, 6 proverbs, 16 cliché, and 16 fixed statements. The meaning and how idiomatic expressions used in Death on the Nile movie were identified with the help of the Farlex Dictionary and in-depth observations by researcher on each scene and character dialogue.

Among the 40 data of idiomatic expressions found in the Death on the Nile movie, the cliché and fixed statement type is the dominant type in the characters' dialogue. This proves that the conversational dialogue in this movie used many idioms of the cliché and fixed statement type, which is often used in general conversations and primarily used for specific purposes.

One cliché type is found in the conversation between Poirot and the Captain. At that time, the movie shows a war situation, and the Captain praises Poirot's actions in the dialogue "You are too sharp to be a farmer, Poirot," which can be interpreted as Poirot being an intelligent person in strategizing. For the Fixed Statement example, it can be found in the conversation between Bouc and Poirot in the dialogue, "Look, I've been bursting to tell you" which can be interpreted that Bouc wants to tell Poirot his secret for a long time. This type of idiom should not be taken literally.

This research has the same object as previous research but uses a different theoretical source. Like Siti Haniah's research, her research uses Fernando's theory. Apart from that, the two other previous studies, Monica Ardita and Ulya Fikrina's research, have the similarity in the research object examines idiomatic expressions. The advantage of this research lies in the theory of McCarthy and O'Dell theory that is easy to understand and divided into types. This research have a rich data, devising the functions of idiom clearly and explaining the meaning of idiom, from Death on the Nile movie the readers can understand only certain people know how to use idiom. Another advantage of this research is the object under study, the movie adaptation of the legendary novelist Agatha Christie. Researcher believe this is the advantage of this research.
