New Perspectives of The Spread of Islam in Bone Makasar

Rahmawati Harisa Sahrul (Universiti Utara Malaysia)

Abstract

This study aims to investigate the history of Islam at the kingdom of Bone in South Sulawesi 1606-1640 which passed on the conquest, resulting in the Islamization of war (MusuSelleng) conducted by the Kingdom of Gowa Bone, using a historical approach (Dirasat tārīkhīyyah / historical research). This study argued that the causes which led to Musu ' Selleng the deployment process of Islam at Kingdom of Bone, namely distinguished between "direct cause" and "indirect causes". In conjunction with the spread of Islam by the Kingdom of Gowa Bone, Musu Selleng a "direct cause" whereas "indirect cause" is the desire of the Kingdom of Gowa, to make the kingdom of Gowa as strong in terms of economics and politics. The study shows that at the end of the war Musu Selleng, Kingdom of Bone defeat must accept the fact that accepted Islam in 1611 and subject to the power of the kingdom of Gowa. Musu Selleng very favorable impact on the spread of Islam in the kingdom of Bone, which is accompanied with the Islamization of the kingdom of King Bone Bone with the entry into Islam on 23 November 1611 M. This study also shows the position of the king's role as Petta Bone Mangkaue "which means the sovereign lord and sit on the throne of the kingdom of Bone, Bone Kingdom of the Islamization process easier. Mangkau the kingdom Bone structure topped pyramid, so it can be said to be the position of the king in the spread of Islam occupies a central position and the starting point in the spread of Islam in the political and social life in the kingdom of Bone.

Introduction

With a difference of opinion about the history experts exactly when Islam entered the archipelago, but the people of South Sulawesi has long been associated with Islam before Islam became the religion in the region. The sailors and merchants Bugis and Makassar in touch with the trade community in the Muslim majority areas north and west Java coast and along the Strait of Malacca, and the Ternate in the Moluccas (Thosibo, 1984). Even a Muslim Malay community has settled in Makassar since the mid-16th century (Palallo, 1966).

Group bearer of Islam to Indonesia is not just limited to the people who come from outside Indonesia. Banyak evidence that the Muslim nation of Indonesia also did the spread of Islam. Example of this, the first propagator of Islam in South Sulawesi, which is known as Datuk Tellua, Abdul Makmur Tunggal degree Khatib Dato 'Worship, titled Eldest Sulaiman Khatib Dato' Pattimang and youngest Khatib Dato degree Itiro regarded as carriers and spreaders of Islam to Sulawesi (Mattulada, 1983). Ahmad argues that Datuk Tellua Sewang the structural approach to choosing a strategy to approach the royal elite as it takes place in Luwu kingdoms, Gowa Tallo, Wajo, Bone, Balanipa Mandar and other kingdoms in South Sulawesi (Sewang, 2002).

Through structural approach Datuk Tellua it, then the kings of Gowa and Tallo formally converted to Islam on the 22 September 1605 M / H. 4 Jumada Early 1015 After that the preach Islam, a more formal approach is structural in spreading Islam as done by Sultan Alauddin when decreed as the Islamic sultanate of Gowa Kingdom. This decree was announced after the first Friday prayers in Tallo followed by all levels of society (Sewang, 1997). Bone kingdom is one of a number of kingdoms in South Sulawesi who accepts Islam from the Gowa kingdom through war known as musu-selleng (war of Islamization). Therefore, in this paper will reveal and explain the process of entry and development of Islam in the kingdom of Bone. Which became a new perspectives in the process of dissemination of Islam, where the spread of Islam or Islamization has been in spread peacefully. In this paper the authors use the historical method (historical method), which describes the research issues based on historical perspective. The procedure includes four stages, namely the search and collection of sources (heuristics), source criticism (data selection), interpretation (interpretation), and the presentation or history writing (historiography).

This paper tries to deal with four research questions: (1) How culture and public confidence Bone pre-Islamic? (2) How does the spread of Islam in the kingdom of Bone? (3) Why the spread of Islam in the kingdom of Bone through war? (4) How the influence of the spread of Islam in the socio-political domain in the Kingdom of Bone?

From the formulation of the main problem and sub-problems above, it can be emphasized that in this paper limits its scope to the period between 1606 - 1640, i.e., during the reign of La Tenri Pela, MatinroE RI Talloq (1606-1631 and La Maddaremmaneng, MatinroE Bukaka RI (1631-1640). At the second king, taking into account the nature of the problems posed and the response given the context of the period under review was seen as the most defining periods in the spread and development of Islam in the later period in the kingdom of Bone.

Discussion

The results of the study showed that the worst enemy a selleng accompanying process of Islamisation in the kingdom of Bone, not only backed by the rejection of a solicitation Bone Gowa-Tallo to accept Islam peacefully, but also can not be separated from the political and economic interests in the context of competition and struggle for hegemony in South Sulawesi. It is the total reason for the rejection of Gowa-Tallo to combat Bone, but at the end of the war, Bone defeat must accept the fact that accepting Islam in 1611 and subject to the power of Gowa-Tallo. This is a new perspective in the process of the spread of Islam is happening in the 3 kingdoms including Bone kingdoms of South Sulawesi, where the spread of Islam or Islamization has been in spread peacefully. Having decreed Gowa and Tallo Islamic kingdom and its kings have earned the sultan, the kingdom was also at the center of Islamization in the entire region South Sulawesi. Sultan Alauddin issued a call to other public authorities to accept Islam. The appeal was said to have been based on an agreement (the pit there) before, that any ruler who found a new way, and better, is obliged to notify the authorities other findings (Patunru, 1993). The appeal of Islamization was received by several small kingdoms well that was taken away the Islamization in any places peacefully, but empire Bone refused to do so with loud that Gowa declare war. Wars were named by the Bugis "Musu Selleng" (Islamic religious war).

In 1607 Gowa sent troops into the kingdom Bugis area, but can be defeated by the royal army of Bugis. Despite of this, the upcoming years, namely Bone debuted in 1611 conquered lands (Noorduyn, 1955) With the surrender of Bone in 1611 (Pelras, 1996), the majority of South Sulawesi has embraced Islam, except Tanah Toraja. Kings of Bone who firstly embraced Islam after the king was conquered was the King of Bone XII, La Tenri Pale, Matinroeri Tallo on Tuesday, 23 Ramadhan 1020 H / November 23, 1611 M (Ligtvoet, 1880). Having accepted Islam as a religion in the Kingdom of Bone in 1611 M, the deployment process carried out by the Islamic Bone Kingdom with a formal top-down approach also remains passed as well as has been done in the Kingdom of Gowa. This has advantages, namely the spread of Islam is faster.
However, this approach is not without drawbacks. One of the most apparent weakness is the acceptance of Islam became a formality, even though the population has already accepted Islam, but still there are many violations of the teachings of Islam itself. To overcome these drawbacks, a formal approach is equipped with a set of systems in the governance structure.

Regardless of these shortcomings, it is formalistic and cultural values of Islam has been entered into the system of pangngadereng known as custom systems of Bugis (Rasdiyanah, 1995), which was originally only consisted of four basic elements in building integrated human moral life, namely ade, rapang, wari and bicara. Having accepted Islam as a system of public confidence in the kingdom of Bone, then pangngadereng which has four elements that, enriched by the teachings of Islam so that these elements into five, because it receives Sara, i.e. Islamic law into public life. Sara as an institution in charge of religious matters. Officials then held Petta Kalie (Qadhi) and any existing Palili Bone was appointed priest in the kingdom, aided by a "Khatib" and a Bilal (Mattulada, 1983). Thus began the process of socialization Islamic kingdom into structures and community life. Was here in the context of Islam as a religion as well have become a culture of Indonesian society. On the other hand, the local culture available in the communities, was not automatically eliminated with the advent of Islam. These local cultures was partly continues woken up by the color of Islam. These developments gave birth to "acculturation", between Islamic and local culture, get the format to "Pangngadereng".

Conclusions

New perspectives in the deployment process conducted by the Islamic Kingdom of Gowa to the Bone kingdom through the War of Islamization (Musu Selleng). Based Royal Bone In 1611 successfully conquered, then in the 12th King Pale Bone latenri officially accept Islam. Acceptance of Islam as the official religion of the kingdom of the Bone, is the starting point of the spread of Islam in the constitution of social and political structures. The spread of Islam in the kingdom of Bone does not mean changing all the established political institutions. But in general social and political institutions that have existed retained, then filled and fitted with new institutions that came from Islam, as on Pangadareng.

Pangadereng is a constitutional of Bone Kingdom, consisting of four basic elements, integrated in building social and political life of Bone society, namely ade, rapang, wari and bicara. After the introduction of Islam, some changes have occurred gradually, this change more apparent at the time Sara 'took for the fifth place. Sara' in addition to providing the change is negated (ata / slavery), it also is adding (qadi, including priests, and others, mosques and prayer rooms) also munakahat application of the law (marriage) and faraid law (inheritance), and merge (governance structure) (Rahim, 2011). If the observed changes can be classified into the changes that are needed. All of these changes do not undermine the values that already exist to the contrary even more strengthen.
