This thesis is research about Grammatical Cohesion in Stephenie Meyer's novel *TheSecond Life of Bree Tanner*by using discourse analysis approach.The purpose of this research is to find out the kinds of reference in the noveland to explain the reference used in the novel.The method in this research is descriptive qualitative method. The source of data in this research is The Second Life of Bree Tanner by Stephenie Meyer, which is published in 2010, and the books reference to support this research. The data collection technique in this research usesnote taking technique. The data analysis technique in this research is always linked to the theory, concepts, and methods based on the theory of cohesion. This research uses Cohesion in English by Halliday and Hasan.

The result of this research shows that there are two types of reference which is used in the novel. In this novel there are 93 utterances which consist of 88 personal references and 34 demonstrative references.

Based on the result the writer concludes that personal reference which dominate in this novel. The personal reference in this novel most of them refer to Bree and Diego because Bree is the main character in this novel.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background

Language cannot be separated from human's life because human beings have to cooperate with one another which can only be carried out in a community. It is needed to communicate each other both in oral and in written discourse. By language they can interact, communicate with other people and they can express their ideas or viewpoints on things in the world. It is an instrument for conveying meaning and communicating some ideas either oral or written. As Ramelan (2003:1) states that man speaks a language as a means of communication with other people, as tool to express his ideas and wishes. Without language it is hard to imagine how people can cooperate and get along with another. Language isrealized by text and discourse. Text and discourse deal with the various devices used by speakers and writers when they knit coherence and cohesive utterance(s).

Discourse analysis is the study of the relationship between the language and contexts in which it is used. Whether it is written text of all kinds or spoken data.Referring to Brown and Yule (1984:1) that the analysis of discourse, is necessarily, the analysis of language in use. When it says language in use it means sentences, clauses or a linguistic units, such as conversational exchanges or written texts. A single sentence or a paragraph was developed and described by another sentence or paragraph in a cohesive and coherent and make a complete unit.

Cohesive devices have function as connector between two sentences and indicator the relationship between them. Text cannot be said intact reading without cohesion because the text is less isolated element of that, which is not related to each other. This relationship implies the continuity between one sentence to another. Referring to Halliday (1994:170) cohesion refers to the resources within language that provide continuity in a text, above and over that is provided by clause structures and clause complexes. There are two kinds of cohesion, grammatical cohesion and lexical cohesion. Grammatical cohesion consists of reference, substitution, ellipsis, and conjunction. Lexical cohesion consists of reiteration and collocation.

Talking about grammar,is not easy. Some of learners and readers are confused about grammar. Grammar is the study on how to connectword in a sentence as used for expressing feeling, idea and mood. As Swan (1996: 23) states that grammar as the rules that say, how words are combined and changed to show different meaning. One of media for expressing feeling, idea, and mood is a novel. Novel is a way of conveying feeling, thought and idea by imagination. It always presents something that happens in daily life. It can also as medium that can be used to criticize everything that happens in this world. As Wellek and Werren (1995:57) state that the novel is a picture of real life and manners, and of the time in which its was written. Based on the statement the writer can conclude that understanding the content of novel is very important because it describes real life. In understanding the novel, it is possible that the readers will get difficulties. It means that knowledge of grammatical cohesion is very necessary because the writer will analyze it.

In analyzing grammatical cohesion in Meyer's novel "*The Second Life of Bree Tanner"*the researcher used theory of Halliday and Hasan. Theory of Halliday and Hasan related to four types of grammatical cohesion, they are reference, substitution, ellipsis, and conjunction but in this research the writer only will analyze reference.

In this research, the writer chooses conversation in Meyer's novel "The Second Life of Bree Tanner" because it is interesting and it is one of phenomenal novels of her as well as Twilight, Eclipse, Breaking Down, and New Moon. Stephenie Meyer is the most famous writer the writer has never heard of.

B. Problem statement

Based on the background of research, the researcher formulates research questions as follows:

1. What kinds of the reference are there in Meyer's novel "The Second Life of Bree Tanner"?

2. How is the reference used in Meyer's novel"The Second Life of Bree Tanner"?

C. Objectives of the research

Based on the statements above, the objectives of this study are:

1. To find out the kinds of reference in the novel" The Second Life of Bree Tanner" conversation by Stephenie Meyer.

2. To explain the reference used in each utterance in the novel "The Second Life of Bree Tanner" conversation by Stephenie Meyer.

D. Significance of the research

The result of this research is very useful to understand information about grammatical cohesion generally for the readers and may give meaningful information who is interested in analyzing the grammatical cohesion especially reference.

E. Scope of the research

There are two kinds of cohesion, grammatical cohesion and lexical cohesion. In this research, the writerlimited the discussion on the analysis of grammatical cohesion especially reference based on Halliday and Hasan's theory (1976:37). The writer here only analyzes about reference in the Meyer's novel "The Second Life of Bree Tanner" conversations because it dominates in the novel.

CHAPTER II

THEORICAL BACKGROUND

A. Previous Study

There are some prevoius studies which have thesimilarity with this research as follows:

Elsa (2004) in her thesis title, "Cohesion Analysis on Bernard Shau's Pygmalion".She used Halliday and hasan's theory to analyze cohesion in the Bernard Shau's Pygmalion. She found types of cohesive devices used in the utterances. She found all of the cohesive devices which consist of reference, ellipsis, conjunction and lexical cohesion. The percentage of reference used is 69%, substitution 3,3%, ellipsis 5,3%, conjunction 7,9% and lexical cohesion 14,5%. Reference is the most dominant devices.

Juandi (2006) in his thesis title," The Use of Cohesive Devices in The Novel"the Great Gatsby".He used Halliday and Hasan's theory to analyze cohesive devices in the novel the Great Gatsby.He found some types of cohesive devices used in the utterances The Great Gatsby all of the cohesive devices consist of reference, substitution, ellipsis, conjunction, and lexical cohesion.

Rikman (2008) in his thesis title,"Cohesive Devices in Edgar Allan Poe's Short Story in Eleonora".He used Halliday and Hasan's theory to analyze the short story in Eleonora. He found some types of cohesive devices in short story of Eleonora. They are reference expression (68,71%), ellipsis(1,61%), conjunction (23,10%), and lexical cohesion (6,58%) except substitution.

Those theses above have similarity to the writer's research. All of them used Halliday and Hasan's theory. They also found reference which is most dominant in their research. Therefore referential is the most influential cohesive devices in the story. The difference from Elsa and Juandi is both of the researchers above analyzed all types of cohesive devices in the novel whereas the writer here onlyanalyzed grammatical cohesion in the novel especially reference. The difference from Rikman is that he analyzed cohesive devices in the short story whereas the writer analyzed reference (part of cohesive devises) in the novel.

B. Discourse Analysis

McCarthy(1991:5) defines that discourse analysis is concerned with the study of the relationship between language and the contexts in which it is used. Discourse analysts study language in use: written texts of all kinds, and spoken data, from conversation to highly institutionalized forms of talk.Similarly, in Schiffrin (in Alba, 2009:8) states that discourse analysis involves the study of both text and context.

Combining both definitions above, the writer can conclude that discourse analysis is talking about language and contexts where the language used whether written text or spoken text.

Coulthard (1976:7) states that one of the fundamental aims of discourse analysis is to discover the rules of producing coherent discourse, but an even more fundamental question is the nature of the units whose structure and occurrence the sequencing rules will be described.

A cohesive is very important in the discourse to make it complete. It can create coherence in its meaning.

C. Definition of cohesion

The term cohesion is very important in the text. It is a part of the system of a language. Halliday and Hassan (1976:4) state cohesion occurs where the interpretation of some elements in the discourse is dependent on that of another. That one presupposes the other, in the sense that it cannot be effectively decoded except by resource to it. When this happens a relation of cohesion is set up, and the two elements, the presupposing and the presupposed, are thereby at least potentially integrated into a text. The statement has similar with Cook (1990:156) which states that cohesion is formal links between sentences and between clauses. Another statement is Baker(1992:180) supports that cohesion is the network of lexical, grammatical, and other relation which provide links between various parts of a text. This relationship functions to convey meaning from the speakers' mind, idea or thought, in order to make a sentence convey meaning and to get readers easier to understand the whole meaning.

Combining some statements above the writer can conclude that cohesion is used to links one part of a text to another part of the same text. It has functions as a tie to link one sentence to another for indicates the relationship between the sentences.

1. Grammatical Cohesion

a. Reference

Baker (1992:181) states that the term reference is traditionally used in semantics for the relationships, which holds between a word and what it points to in the real word. Every language has certain item which has the property of reference in the textual sense. She identifies the potential function of these reference items are to direct the readers to look elsewhere for their interpretation. The most common items in English and a large number of other languages are pronouns. Apart from personal reference, English also uses items such as the, this, and those to establish similar links between expressions in the text. In "Mrs. Thatcher has resigned. This delighted her opponents", the reader has to go back to the previous stretch of discourse to establish what this refers to delighted. So, reference is a device which allows reader/hearer to trace participant, entities, and events in a text.

Halliday and Hasan (1976:33-78) classify reference into exophora and endophoric as a general name for reference within the text:

Reference:

                              Reference:
                                  |
            ┌─────────────────────┴─────────────────────┐
      (situational)                                (textual)
       Exophora                                    endophora
                                                        |
                                        ┌───────────────┴───────────────┐
                                  ( to preceding text)           (to following text)
                                      anaphora                       cataphora

From the figure above, as a general rule, reference items may be exophoric or endophric: and if it is endophoric, it may be anaphoric or cathaphoric. Exophora, according to them is one, which does not name anything; it signals that reference must be made to the context of situation. Endophora is textual reference, that is, "referring to anything as identified in the surrounding text". Endophora reference is further classified into anaphora (reference to preceding text) and cataphora (reference to following text).

Halliday and Hasan also divided reference into three types they are personal, demonstrative, and comparative reference

1). Personal reference is a reference by means of function in the speech situation, through the categories of person. The category of personals includes the three classes of personal pronoun (I, you, we, he, she, they, it, and one), possessive pronouns (mine, yours, ours, his, hers, theirs, and its) and possessive identifiers (my, your, our, his, her, their, its, one's).

For example:

e.g. Mrs. Mary was absent yesterday.

Sheattended a meeting in Jakarta.

In the second sentence, she refers to Mrs. Mary in the preceding sentence. The word she is called personal reference, as she follows it linguistic reference of Mrs. Mary.

2). Demonstrative reference is a reference by means of location, on a scale of proximity. Demonstrative reference is divided into three parts, they are:

   a) Selective nominal demonstrative like this, these, that, and those refer to the location of something; for example: These pens must be given to the students, mom!

     The word*these* in the sentence above refers to pens on scale of proximity near the speaker. This is also called selective nominal demonstrative.

   b) The definite article*the.* It refers also to the location of something; For example: His mother gives him a new car. The new car is very beautiful. The word the in the example above is classified as the definite article because it refer to 'new car' in the previous text.

   c) The adverbial demonstrative such as here, there, now, and then refer to the location of process in space or time, and they normally do so directly, not via the location of some person or object that is participating in the process.

3) Comparative reference is cohesion in the form of reference that shows comparison between one thing and another.

For example:

It's the same cat as the one we saw yesterday.

It's a similar cat as the one we saw yesterday.

It's a different cat from the one we saw yesterday.

The referent was the one we saw yesterday, and the comparative same,similar, and different was pointing forward to it.

b. Substitution

As Cook (1990:158) defines that substitution is a cohesive devices in which one of closed set of words (for example: one, do, so) stand for a word, phrase, clause or element of the context.

Another statement, Jackson (1985:103) in Sulatri's thesis (2011:21) states that substitution is defined as grammatical relation, where one linguistic item is substituted for longer one.

It's similar with Halliday's statement (1989:228) that a clause, or a part (usually including the lexical element) of a verbal or nominal group, may be presupposed at a subsequent place in the text by the device of replacement or substitution.

McCarthy (1991:45) states substitution is similar to ellipsis, in that, in English it operates as nominal, verbal or clausal.

From some statements above the writer can draw conclusion that substitution is used to substitute or replace one linguistic item by another one.

This linguistic item could be a word, a phrase, or a clause. The function of substitution is to avoid the use of words repeatedly.

Examples from Halliday and Hasan (1976:89;105):

1) Do

You think John already knows?

I think everybody does. (D*oes* replaces knows)

2) One

My axe is too blunt.

I must get a sharpen one. (O*ne* replaces axe)

3) The same

A: I'll have two poached eggs on the toasts, please.

B: I'll have the same. (the same replaces two poached eggs on toast)

It brings to an idea that in substitution, an item is replaced by another item.

c. Ellipsis

As Mc. Carthy (1991: 43) defines ellipsis is the omission of elements normally required by the grammar which the speaker or writer assumes are obvious from the context and therefore need not be raised. Ellipsis is distinguished by structure having some missing elements.

Cook (1989:20) states that ellipsis is omitting part of sentence on the assumption that an earlier sentence or the context will make the meaning clear.

From both of the statements the writer concludes that ellipsis is omission of an item and it settles obvious from the context therefore need not be raised.

Halliday and Hasan (1976:143;158;159) give some examples, they are:

Joan bought some carnations and Catherine some sweet peas.

(ellipted item: brought in second clause)

Here are thirteen cards. Take any. Now give me any three.

(ellipted items: card after any in second clause and cards after any three inthird clause).

These apples are delicious. Let's buy some.

(elliptic item: *apples*after some in the second clause.

d. Conjunction

Baker (1992:190) states that conjunction involves the use of formal markers to relate sentences, clauses, and paragraphs to each other. Cook (1989:21) conjunction is provided by words and phrase that explicitly draw attention to the type of relationship with exist between one sentence or clause and another.Both of them similar with Crystal (2008:101) state that conjunction a term used in the grammatical classification of words to refer to an item or a process whose primary function is to connect words or other constructions.

Combining some statement above the writer can take conclusion that conjunction is a term is used to relate or connect sentences, clauses, and another constructions. Unlike reference, substitution, and ellipsis, the use of conjunction does not instruct the reader to supply missing information either by looking for it elsewhere in the text or by filling structural slots.

There are also many variations in using conjunction in daily life, however it can be said that there are four types of conjunction considered as the most types used. Those four types are additive, adversative, causal and temporal. As Brown and Yule (1983:191) state that there are four types of conjunction, they are:

1. Addictive : and, or, furthermore, similarly, in addition

2. Adversative: but, however, on the other hand, nevertheless

3.Causal : so, consequently, for this reason, it follows from this

4.Temporal: then, after that, and our later, finally, at least.

As Halliday and Hassan (1976:244) explain that Addictive relation is somewhat different from coordination proper, although it is no doubt derivable from it. For example, Bella bought butter yesterday. And she made some cakes. The second type is adversative conjunction. It includes those conjunctions, which signal that the information following conjunction is contrary expectation. For example, she isnot French but she is very famous in Paris. The third type is causal conjunction. This type of conjunction signals that the information in the preceding clause refers to the cause of the content of the clause that follows the conjunction. The last type is temporal conjunction. This type is related to sequence in time, where the one is subsequent to the other.

From fourth of the kinds of grammatical cohesion, the writer only analysed reference because it dominates in the novel " The Second Life of Bree Tanner".

D. Novel

Novel is a way of conveying feeling, thought and idea by imagination. It always presents something that happens in daily life. It can also as medium that can be used to used criticize everything that happens in this word wheres'one lives. As Wellek and Werren (1995:57) state that the novel is a picture of real life and manners, and of the time in which its written.

A novel has power to bring the readers to another world and place that they never seen before. It can make the reader feel angry, happy, and sad because of the story. As the Bain (1986:117) explains that novel can make the readers happy and sad it depends on the novel which they read.

Based on the some definitions above, the writer can conclude that the novel is very important because it describe of real life. In understanding of the novel, it is possible that the readers will get difficulties because some of them do not understand what grammatical cohesion is. Grammatical cohesion in this novel has important role. It has function as a tie to link one sentence to another for indicates the relationship between the sentences in the novel.

E. Synopsis of The Second Life of Bree Tanner

This novel talks about Bree and Diego hunting for human blood in Seattle, Washington. Bree has been a vampire for three months, and Diego has been one for eleven months. Together they kill and drink a pimp and two prostitutes. Bree and Diego talk about Victoria and ask why she is turning so many people into vampires. Diego thinks something is coming, and she is using them as protection. They hide in a cave and discuss their human lives, and how Riley came to offer them a second life as a vampire. Together they decide that Riley is using them as pawns for protection, and that he might be lying to them. They also discover that sunlight does not kill a vampire, but makes their skin sparkle. They become friends and decide to form a club, spending the day playing ninja, looking for Riley and the other vampires they live with. They find that Riley had relocated everyone to a log cabin and Diego gets into a fight with Raoul, an arrogant newborn, but another newborn, Freaky Fred, uses his repelling power to stop Raoul from killing them. That night Bree and Diego stalk Riley, suspicious that he is meeting with her. They eavesdrop on Riley's conversation with Victoria. Eventually the Volturi show up, threatening to punish Victoria for amassing a vampire army but willing to give her army a chance to destroy the Cullens. The Volturi say that if Victoria does not attack within five days, they will kill her.

Bree returns to the log cabin and resolves to run away, while Diego stays behind to talk to Riley. Riley returns to the cabin alone and tells his vampire army that there are older vampires in Seattle (the Cullens) who want to kill them, and if they want to survive, they will have to work together and learn how to fight. Riley tells Bree that Diego is doing surveillance work with her and will return to join them in the fight. After three nights of training, Bree and the vampires hunt a ferry boat to drink the passengers' blood and regain their strength for the battle against the elder vampires. Riley then tells everyone that the vampires they will be fighting have yellow eyes and keep a human (Bella) as a pet, giving them Bella's scent to hunt. They head off to fight the Cullens. Fred decides to run away to Vancouver before the battle, and Riley retreats, telling Bree that Diego has already started fighting with the group. Bree arrives at the battle to find the newborn vampires being killed by the Cullens, and thinks that Diego is already dead because she cannot see or smell him anywhere. She deduces that Victoria and Riley killed Diego for being disobedient the night he went missing. Bree surrenders to the Cullens. They debate whether or not to kill her and decide to restrain her until the Volturi arrive. Bree has trouble resisting the urge to drink Bella's blood. The Volturi show up and Jane tortures Bree into telling everything about the newborns. She explains that Riley lied to her and everyone else, and if they did not do as they were told they would be killed. She uses her thoughts to tell Edward that the Volturi had allowed the army to attack the Cullens. The Volturi decide to kill Bree, and Edward warns Bella to shut her eyes. Bree mistakenly thinks that Edward is referring to herself. Bree closes her eyes and is instantly killed (Meyer, 2010).

F. Biography of Stephenie Meyer

Stephenie Meyer was born in Hartford, Connecticut, to Stephen and Candy Morgan. She grew up in Phoenix, Arizona, with a large family. She has five siblings: Seth, Emily, Jacob, Paul, and Heidi. She attended Chaparral High School in Scottsdale, AZ., and Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, where she received a B.A. in English in 1995. There are two reasons Meyer wrote this novel because there are Bree and Diego. Meyer in this novel explain life of Bree in the basement who such a small, seemingly trivial character in Eclipse in order the readers can love Bree as Meyer love her.

CHAPTER III

METHODOLOGY OF RESEARCH

A. Method of Research

This research used qualitative descriptive method. As Aminuddin (1990:16) defines that the qualitative descriptive method is to analyze the form of description, not a number or coefficient of relationship between variables. Data collected in the form of vocabulary, sentences, and pictureshave meaning. It was applied in describing the sentence and conversation in the novel "The Second Life of Bree Tanner" by Stephenie Meyer.

B. Population and Sample

1. Population

The writer got the data from the novel "The Second Life Bree Tanner" by Stephenie Meyer.The population of the research178 pages containing reference in novel The Second Life of Bree Tanner.

2. Sample

In this research, the writer used non- random sampling or purposive sampling was used for this research. The taken samples were pages 1-35 out of 178 pages in The Second Life of Bree Tanner. The writer only analyzed these pages because the writer find many references and these pages are very important because theytalk about beginning of the second life of Bree and Diego.

C. Instrument of Research

In collecting data, the writer used note taking as an instrument of research. Note taking is used to take notes and write it down on the cards. The writer made some notes to classify and find the meaning of the person, time and place (Nazir, 1988:124). It was used to get data from the novel, after reading the novel "The Second Life of Bree Tanner" and other relevant references.

D. Procedure of Collecting Data

The following procedures of collecting data used by the writer:

1. The writer read The Second Life of Bree Tanner by Stpehenie Meyer.

2. The writeridentified and wrote one by one of reference words in the novel on the paper.

3. The writer classified reference words and found the meaning of reference.

E. Technique of Analyzing Data

Data analysis step is the process to categorize the data, manage the data, accumulate the data and decide which one would be told to others. The technique of data analysis includes the following steps:

1. The writer explored reference theory according to Halliday and Hasan's theory.

2. The writerclassified the characteristic of data into three categories of reference based on Halliday and Hasan's theory, the categories mean are personal reference, demonstrative reference, and comparative reference in the novel.

3. Next, the writerexplained the meaning of the reference.

4. Last, the writer made conclusion based on the findings and the discussions.
