

RELIGION AND SOCIAL CONFLICT

(An Effort to Grow up Theological Awareness)

Barsihannor<sup>fi</sup>

A. Background

In postmodernism era,<sup>1</sup> theological affairs come to a critical thought space. The great theological challenge in this time is how one can define himself among the religions or theological doctrine adhered by people. It is frequently felt how intensively the adherents meet each other in their daily life. At the same time, religious doctrine is gradually criticized.<sup>2</sup>

Qasim Mathar stated that in this era, social interaction among the people whose faith is different constitute something unignored. It is due to the occupation, neighbourhood, daily activity, politic, economic and cultural relationship<sup>3</sup>

What Qasim Mathar stated above is a social fact faced by community as logical consequence of technological effect that grows fast, but sometimes, but this growth is not followed by a real consciousness of social change. It means, time has changed, but the people cannot go after or follow the change. They are still analog.

Therefore, there are many people who are not ready to be different, mainly in theological aspects. They refused pluralism and considered other people “false, misleading, unbeliever/kafir” due to different of religious or theological understanding.

Furthermore Qasim Mathar wrote that among of the essential freedom of human right is the freedom to adhere a religion and implement the religious understanding. Al-Qur’an even gives people the freedom to believe or not as explained in Q.S. al-Kahfi (18) : 29. In this verse, Muhammad saw. was asked to explain all mankind the truth revealed by the God, but Muhammad not requested not to force the people to accept this religion. This article really allows the people to determine their faith to believe or not to believe.<sup>4</sup>

Zainal Arifin Djamaris –referred to Q.S. Hud (11): 118 and Q.S. Yunus (10): 99, explained that human being cannot exactly assure who is really the most correct (best) in his religious thought and understanding. This will refer to Allah who will explain in hereafter something crucially debated so far in this life. Therefore according to Zainal Arifin, we cannot be angry with any people whose religious understanding is different from ours.<sup>5</sup>

Islam is a religion that strictly opposes the social conflict. The word Islam or saying Assalamualaikum is a prayer for other people to get and feel the peace.

Islam leads mankind to the peace of Allah. God has created His creature based on His will. All of His creatures are good and harmony, so it is impossible the kindness and harmony lead to destruction.

The main problem to answer in this time is, why some religious group/organization who claimed or look-like “representing” all Moslem community hate other groups or consider them as misleading people and kafir?

One of the “victim” of this case is Ahmadiyah. After the Indonesian Council of Ulama (MUI) stamped “kafir” for Ahmadiyah, some radical groups destroyed the people of Ahmadiyah on 15 Agustus 2005 at Campus al-Mubarak Parung Bogor.<sup>6</sup> The physical and mental violence experienced by Ahmadiyah peoples continued until current time.

This case really surprised some elements of community and government and become headline news broadcasted in some national/international television.

MUI's statements and destroying some Ahmadiyah's property bring about strict critic of some community element such as JIL (Liberal Islam Network), Madani Community Alienation (AMM)<sup>7</sup>. They regarded this case against the human right. They argued that; first, religious doctrine or understanding is very private sphere and each people has the right to implement; second, UUD 45 (45 Constitution) has guaranteed the freedom to worship, adhere a religion, and make group as well as freedom of gathering. Third, there is none who has absolute authority to state or say that he is the most correct while others are kafir.<sup>8</sup>

Syafii Ma'arif was very disappointed to “the Destroyers” who feel most “berislam” and correct by showing “radical Islam” in society.<sup>9</sup> For this reason, it is logic to ask again the religious awareness of the adherents who are living in this 21st centuries?

To answer this question is not easy. The definition of religion itself is still obscure. Consequently, to understand what religion is not as easily as we say. In Islamic perspective, religion is a fitrah (devious potency) grown up by God in the heart of human being. It means that he cannot be separated from religion. (QS. Al-Rum; 30).

B. Religion and Social Conflict

With more than 300 ethnics groups and 700 living languages, Indonesia is a nation-state that struggles to unite an amazing multiplicity of culturally, geographically and linguistically diverse groups. Indonesia is not an Islamic state, though it is home to the world's largest Muslim population, nor is it secular state; belief in One God is the first principle of Pancasila, the state ideology. Religion diversity and freedom are written into constitution, but only six religions are recognized including Kong Hu Cu.<sup>10</sup>

It points out that all religions recognized by government can grow up and develop as well as its adherent has freedom to implement their religious teaching. However, Qasim Mathar was asked by someone at the moment of One Day Seminar. “Is religion still relevant with current life? He answered by stating “Your question should not be given to me, but relevant for religious adherents who get involved in conflict and make religion as a mean of justification”.

Based on social reality in which religion becomes a reason of justification, still according to Qasim Mathar, religion is not relevant anymore. However, if religious values such as, peace, harmony, justice, honesty, etc. are still implemented in social life, religion is still very relevant.

Asking the relevance of religion and modernity challenge is very interesting. Why? Religious teaching, as explained in holy books teaches human being to live in harmony and peacefully in their life. Religion disagrees the anarchism. Religion leaders always remained the adherents to spread the peace in human life.

Therefore, if there is conflict among adherents who live in society, there must be something wrong in their religious experience. Religious values are not reflected in social life. Why it happens? Who is responsible on this conflict?

There are many factors bringing about social conflicts;

1) Narrow religious understanding

Religion in practical implementation, not in form of revelation, could bring about conflict. Although religion offers concept of peace, honesty, justice, love and affection, but it is also undebatable that it leads to religious sentiment which often resulted in riots and violence. Religious adherents do not implement core values of religious teaching.

Islam has taught three concepts and function of human beings in this life namely; First, if human being stands before God, his/her status is a creature and he/she is obliged to do what Allah orders. Second, if human being stands before other human being, his/her status is brothers/sisters, either in religion, nation or as descendant of Adam). He/She is responsible to keep the good relationship among the people who are different in tribe, skin colour, languages and religion. Third, if he/she is living in an environment, his/her status is to be khalifah of earth who are on duty to save this earth from destruction.

2) Social-Economic Gap

Actually diversity is something natural. Some is biologically, intellectually, financially, and professionally better than others. This diversity resulted in social stratification; In one side there have been well-to-do (the haves) who live prosperously, in another side, there are the have nots who could do nothing to increase their life quality.<sup>11</sup>

However, diversity also leads to conflict due the inability to understand it as a fact and must in social life. Conflict commonly is caused by economic gap, relating to material fulfilment, but it also gradually spreads to another sectors such politic, culture and religion. The phenomenon; the haves-the have nots, social injustice is still a reality, even the power tends to walk hand in hand with wealth (riches). It means, if one has a power, he has a chance to be a rich. Also, if he is a rich, he has many chances to buy power.

The riots of Makassar in 1997 (Tionghoa ethnical violence), driving away Madura tribe by Dayak in Central Kalimantan, driving away tribe of Bugis, Buton, Makassar from Ambon, constitute some examples of conflict resulted from social-economic gap.

3) Party Fanatism

Party fanaticism can also bring out conflict among religious adherents. Party conflict which then spread over religious conflict happened in 1997, when some people idolized Development Unity Party (PPP) but Functional Party (Golkar) with its good approach to Kiyai was able to compete PPP votes. This resulted in conflict, not only between the partisans of both parties, but came to religious space.<sup>12</sup> Such this condition is more aggravated by new system of general election, that is direct general election which is being implemented through out Indonesia as realization of democracy. Such this general election (particularly local general election) is potential to bring out horizontal conflicts. It is due to disappointment of candidate or his/her partisans who were not satisfied with general election results.

C. The Role of Religion

One of religious approach to solve the problems is by actualizing moral values of religious teachings, because all religions basicly aknowlegde diversity and social pluralism. Even Islam recognizes it as sunnatullah that should be accepted by human being.<sup>13</sup> (Koentowijoyo, 1991 ; 296).

Diversity brings out competition, and the opportunity to compete in the framework of maintaining the life is open for any people. The struggle of life determines the quality of life as khalifah. However, the competition shoud not lead human being into conflicts.

There are some steps to prevent the conflicts.

1) Increasing religious understanding

There many religious adherents who could not see the theological different. They regarded those who are thologically different as kafir or misleading. This exlusive group only consider their faith as the only truth, whole other view is wrong.

For this reason, pluralism and mutlicultural education must be encouraged, in order they understand that diversity is a undeniable sunnatullah and consider a view about similarity points as the path which could relate all doctrinal provision which is brought by every prophet. It's clear that the differentiation of each religion are only ritual and practical dimension, technical-operational, not substantial-essential.

The narrow understanding of religion –as I have stated above- could lead the adherents into conflict. M. Quraish Shihab described how Islam promotes idea of tolerance and democracy. Furthermore he stated that Islam which was revealed down to human being not only to maintain its existence as a religio, but also to aknowlegde the existence of other religions and gives space (chance) to live hand in hand with another religious adherents. To strengthen his opinion, he gouted some verses such as; QS. al- An'am; 108, QS. Al-Baqarah; 256, QS. Al-Kafirun; 6 dan QS. Al-Hajj; 40 that order human being to keep peace and harmony.<sup>14</sup>

Thus, to develop the tolerance among religious adherents, pluralism and multiculturalism must be socialized and impelemented. Such this concepts teaches us to treat and place other people in "I" perspective, and treat "I" in the existence of others.

For this reason, religious leaders should implement the following steps; (1) omiting mutual suspicion and not to grow the seed of hostility, (2) not to generalize an action or words of certain religious adherent as representation or reflection of others, (3) developing positive thinking atmosphere by appreciating other faiths.

2) Interreligious Dialogue

Nowadays we need dialogue to decrease misunderstanding and hostility among the people. In Indonesia we know a shadow theory. If the real subject moves, the shadow also moves. It means that what happened in the grass root reflected the real happen in the upper class (elites), eventhough its model is different because of different education.

In certain community, religious leaders are central figure in social life. Generally, someone is regarded a leader due to his charisma, education, and comitted to moral values of religious reachings and become example for his community. Therefore we need interreligious dialogue among the leaders to reduce conflicts.

In Sidoarjo Villige, according to Imam Prayogo, togetherness of religious adherents seems to run well. It is because of;

- a. Mutual visit of religous leaders to houses of worship.
- b. Social cooperation involving religious adherents.
- c. If there is a person pass away in a community, all people must help without seeing the religion he/she adhered.
- d. Burial location should not be extremely separated.
- e. Conducting social service involving students of different religion.

The interreligious dialogue needs the inclusivity, readiness to have dialogue with any people of different ethnic and religion, honesty, as well as trust.

Such this characters were implemented in prophetic spread (dakwah). The divine mandate brought by Muhammad is just to deliver Islamic teachings not to force people to adhere Islam, because the mandate to give hidayah is just possessed by God.

D. Closing

To solve the social conflict resulted from religious misunderstanding, we need to build the theological awareness. Building this awareness of course not to change the faith/belief nor as apologetic, but it is merely to understand the function and fitrah of human being.

Therefore to enter into theological awareness, we needn't set ourselves aside -even for a moment- from the belief we hold. Religion and belief are still strictly held, while diversity and similarity must be kept. Based on this concept, sympathy and mutual appreciation will arise among religious adherents. The concept agree in disagreement should be implemented.

In this respect, M. Qasim Mathar has pioneered building a kindergarten named TK Matahari and TK Ananda that teaches children about multicultural tolerance. In the class children play together in their play groups and outside class, they are invited to visit worship houses as well as having dialogue with the religious leaders in the worship houses. From this small institution, they are expected to be growing as young generations who are able to live together with different people from any ethnics and religions. They live in love, harmony and peace. Furthermore Qasim Mathar said: "Don't speak of generation who are getting involved in conflict, please build TK school in which love and affection are grown up and appreciated. So that, someday when they become adult and enter the age of being ready to be involved in conflict, the love and affection will lead them to be peacefully living together, and hand in hand to build this nation"
