Title : Islamic Issues “The Kite Runner” Written by Khaled Hosseini.

This thesis studies about Islamic issues in the novel of Khaled Hosseini “The Kite Runner”. The aim of this thesis is to find out Islamic issues presented and how are those Islamic issues positively and negatively presented in the novel “The Kite Runner”.

Collecting data in this research counted on library data, the primary of data is derived from the text of novel and movie “The Kite Runner” by Khaled Hosseini and the second data are taken from literature texts such as books, papers, articles, and internet browsing that is related to the issues.

Such as the findings and discussion in this thesis, the researcher finds Islamic issues positively presented: friendship and adoption and negatively presented stealing in family, childhood, and violence. The researcher also concludes that in the novel the author describes life in Afghanistan, publish his novel in America, describe to America about Afghanistan. Amir and Soraya that even big and lived in America but they still in love with countries willing to build origin hospital for the victims of Afghanistan war.

There are several moral values that can be applied in our daily life, ambition in a wrong way can causes negative impact, not be easily influenced by someone’s saying although she or he is one of our close friends before thinking carefully what results we will get later, trust ourselves and afford with our own capability in reaching what we wish and we have to fulfill our ambition in positive ways.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background

Issue or theme in literature is interesting to be discussed except it can function as an entertainment, it can also give as much information about life which we are not able to pass it through because of the limited time and movement we have. Literature is created by using language as its medium, so language has an important role in literature being. Literary works are the expression of man about culture that influence the human life. We can also know that literature of knowledge is to touch thinking, feeling, and emotion.

Literature is literally “ acquaintance with letters” as in the first sense given from the latin litteratura (Teuw; 1984.22) or the term literature or sastra is used to refer to social indicator that can be seen in all people elements; We can say that literary work is a reflection of people’s life itself ” Sastra” derives from sanskrit language, which is divided into two syllables “sas” means to give directions or instruction or give a lesson ,an “Tra” means a medium. Hence, sastra means a medium to give direction or instruction as a lesson (Teeuw :1984,23).

In this case, novel is one of literature or literary work. Novel is a mirror of the society. It always shows the situation of the society at the time. Novel and social life are related one another that we can not separate the novel from the cultural background of the society where the book was written. Literary work consist not only the collected stories that were written but it also a chronological expression of the society when we are reading novel, it can give us pleasure and relaxation from our activity.

One example of great work of literature whose content is the reflection of society is The Kite Runner written by Khaled Hosseini. This novel illustrates the living of this in Afghanistan. The Kite Runner by Khaled Hosseini was published by Riverhead Books an imprint of Penguin, and The Kite Runner was said to be first novel written in English by an Afghan writer, The book appeared on many book club reading lists. The novel is set in Afghanistan from the late 1970s to 1981 and the beginning of the Soviet occupation, then in the Afghan community in Fremont, California from the 1980s to the early 2000s, and finally in contemporary Afghanistan during the Taliban regime.

The Kite Runner is the story of strained family relationships between a father and a son, and between two brothers, on how they deal with guilt and forgiveness, and how they coped the political and social transformations of Afghanistan from the 1970s to 2001. The Kite Runner was publish in 2001. The adult narrator, Amir, lives in San Francisco and is contemplating his past, thinking about a boyhood friend whom he has betrayed. The action of the story then moves back ward in time to the narrator's early life in Kabul, Afghanistan, where he is the only child of a privileged merchant. Amir's closest friend is his playmate and Servant Hassan, a poor illiterate boy who is a member of the Hazara ethnic minority. The Kite Runner, a coming-of-age novel, deals with the themes of identity, loyalty, courage, and deception. As the protagonist Amir grows to adulthood, he must come to terms with his past wrongs and adjust to a new culture after leaving Afghanistan for the United States.

The novel sets the interpersonal drama of the characters against the backdrop of the modern history of Afghanistan, sketching the political and economic toll of the instability of various regimes in Afghanistan; from the end of the monarchy to the Soviet-backed government of the 1980s to the fundamentalist Taliban government of the 1990s. The action closes soon after the fall of the Taliban and alludes to the rise of Hamid Karzai as leader of a new Afghan government in the wake of the events of September 11.20.

Therefore, it will influence the development of our generation in the future. All cultures for all over the worlds seem have the same fundamental perception on this concern. This phenomenon is caused by cultural value, and morality standard of the culture. In correlation to the development of science, people right how do not reluctantly very much anymore talk and even conduct a research on this matter. This is because people have realized how important this problem to solve particular purposes. Some example are reported from newspaper, TV, radio etc finding about culture problem, stealing because of economic, drinking alcohol or smoking due to many problems. It then continued that caused some factors. One of those factors is the low standard of morality of the society or loose of believe.

Actually such condition had been illustrated by some writers and authors of literary work like Khalled Hosseini in this” The Kite Runner”. Novel The Kite Runner is one of Khalled hosseini work, which is taking story about life of people in Afghanistan and America, where in this novel happens many conflict between the characters. ” The Kite Runner” tells about Mr,Amir’s family life where his father has bad attitude like drinking alcohol. Consequently Afghans who did drink are, out of respect because it is moeslim country and smoking cause cancer . Based on problems Khalled Hosseini take, the issue of friendshif, stealing, adoption and violence as main studies in novel “ The Kite Runner”.

The study is concentrated on Islamic issues in the novel “The Kite Runner” by Khalled hosseini . This American novel has some Islamic issues present and how those it positive or negative. It is interesting because it has power to affect human behavior, way of thinking, attitude, and their relationships with another people.

B. Problem Statement.

Based on the background, I formulated the problem statement as follow:

1. What Islamic issues are presented in the novel ?
2. How are those Islamic issues are positively or negatively presented ?

C. The Objective of the research.

Based on the research question above , the writer stated that this research aimed at finding out ;

1. Several Islamic are presented in the novel.
2. Islamic issues are positively or negatively presented.

D. Significance of research

1. This research is expected to be beneficial for developing knowledge for the writer herself in analyzing literary work. Beside that the result of the study is helpful for those who are going to know how Islamic is presented and whether those issues presented positively or negatively.
2. Informing the reader to know and more concern about behavior on attitude in making interaction with the society.

E. Scope of Research

The scope of this is restricted to describe about the Islamic are present and how those issues are present positive or negative on the novel “ The Kite Runner”. By Khalled hosseini.

F. Definition of term.

1. Islam.

The word Islam is derived from the Arabic root " Salama" which means, among other things, peace, purity, submission, and obedience (Hammuda Abdallati ;1997,11) or Islam is an Arabic word whose Literal translation means peace and submission to the will god . Islam derives from two words with the same root: (Golam. W.Chaudhuku: 1993, 10).

2. Issue

Issue is the problem.(John M. Echols : 1992,228) or an aspect of a topic that present a problem, the solution to which people disagree about (Timonthy W. Crusius : 2003, G1) .The issues I explored in this novel is the Islamic issues consisting of friendship, and war about stealing/theft in family, adoption, and violence.

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF THE RELATED LITERATURE

A. Previous Study

Relating with this thesis, some of the researchers investigated the similar research. For example: Heni handayani (2005:8) studied Issue Gender in the short story “The Jilting of Granny weather ” written by Katherine Anne Potter. He described about women in America. The discussion is old woman who lived with her son before her husband left her because he chose another woman and then returned when his wife died along with children and caring for her grandson-in-law until her death. Heni used the literary approach, applying the theories of issue gender, Title, point of view, conflict, style, plot, setting. Besides, the thesis writer used the theme to support the analysis. Through the analysis of the short story, Heni finds out that the issue women of the novel is how a woman capable of rearing their children

Yusuf (2007) in his thesis Racial Issues In Jear Toommer’s novel “Cane” . The analysis explains about aspect of racial issues that emerge in the novel and how racial issues conveyed in the novel and develop in the novel. His research used approach structuralism genetic where date analyses make method intrinsic and ekstrinsic. He finds out the literary relationship with the state of the black community are discriminated by the white skin where they are living in poverty, backwardness in all aspects of life because of discrimination.

Syahira (2008) conducted a study on the analysis of Global Warming Issue in Rolland Emerich's "The Day After Tomorrow". The analysis explains about theme in the novel. Her research used descriptive methods and data analyzed pure structuralism approach.

In her thesis, she analyzed about what was the effect of global warming issue in the movie "The Day After Tomorrow". She finds out effect of global warming issue was climate change affected extreme weather such as storm, tornado, flooding, hail and hurricane.

In analyzing Islamic issues from the novel The Kite Runner by Khaled Hosseini, the writer presents in the form of Islamic issues in the novel such as the friendship and violence. In these studies Yusuf and Heni same as that experienced by the life story of Hasan's family that she was abandoned by her mother because of his choice and went him back when she was old and caring for grandchildren, other than that there is class difference between Amir and Hassan who in describing the novel "The Kite Runner", then all three have the same title that is the problem the same issue as the author review.

B.Theorytical Approach.

The second part of this study will describe the meeting point of this article with a previous reference for the study of literature is not new research, especially the topic of literary phenomena associated with social, cultural, and politic and other contemporary issues. Though Islamic literature is a matter that still has not received all circles, many researchers have demonstrated the existence of Islamic literary style. Among them is Abdul Hadi, who examines the works of Sufi literature in Indonesia. Abdul Hadi study, but limited to the analysis of Sufi literature in Indonesia. Touch on the problematic eksploration about Islam the more distant and presumably not present in-depth study .

If Abdul hadi research focuses more attention to Sufism in literary poetry written by a poet in Indonesia in the classical era, Witclock tried to analyze the genre of Islamic literature published in the USA. Mushrooming of literary works that the characters are Muslim women and became a bestseller in the country raises many questions. This is due to their readers are totally alien to the traditions posed by the text. In his research, he stressed that such work is not only meant to build support for the women of Afghanistan so that they can be freed from the confines of fundamentalist Islam that oppress them, but more important things worth doing is looking at how to further such work is produced, promoted, marketed semaju world to readers in the USA and other developed countries such Australia and Europe. By quoting the Chandra Talpalade Mohanti, Witclock revealed that this shows the inability of third world women to represent themselves. He will forever be read and intelligibility in the developed world as a helpless that you can not maintain their own dirin. Thus, only in west circumstances they could express themselves with the help of their counterparts in the west which of course gives exemption from confond Islamic culture and their colleagues a helping hand is always waiting for the (Witclock 57). By using the term paratext and epitext, Witclock shows how the journey of a book the reader can form a mindset. Paratexts is a term that refers to how a book works affect the audience, either read it or who have not read it, just by looking at the cover, title, author status, dedication, epigraphy, introduction, and notes the book. In other words, that the book has worked and influence people around him since he displayed on bookstore shelves. While epitexts are the comments that are beyond the book as a book review, a seminar on the book.(Withlock70)

The works taken as an object of research by Witclock also has become a bestseller in Indonesia. Of course, these books have been tampered with and epiteks parateks different. This work has been translated into Indonesian, with the front cover depicts a veiled woman. This makes it much-loved by readers of Indonesian Muslim adolescents. The presence of a novel genre of Islamic women in the city of New York, of course astonishing. Pride to Islam and the reader's curiosity about Islam in America encourages readers to buy books and translations of such books satisfy their curiosity.

Study of different objects, Tami in his article "Islamic Short Stories" trying to see the image of Islamic women in the literary short story of Islam in Indonesia, which since 2000 has its own place for the reader of Muslim youth in Indonesia. Even Pena Circle Forum group has now produced some bestselling authors include Habiburrahman Azzirasi. Given a collection of short stories published by Annida, using the method of content analysis, Tami figures show that Muslim women who use Islam attributes such as the headscarf, which must be diligent in doing religious service and a circumcision, politely-spoken, was imaged as a woman who lived in squalor, misery because tyranny villains, and the willingness to accept crash. Muslim leaders are not portrayed as a figure who had a spirit that can fight to change his fate but is a figure who is very weak and unable to defend himself other than just doing prayers and patience. According to Tami, this is enough worry because it can affect the living spirit of his readers (Tami, R :2007,6).

Based on an analysis of work Witclock literature against good public who read or who have not read such a strong, research is intended to combine the findings. From these findings, there appears paralel existing negative imagery on the west by the existing imagery in Indonesia. This study aims to explain the cultural dialogue that occurred in literature, and trying to see how the dialogue took place. With nurturing, based on the questions that this study as described earlier chapter, the theory of language linkages with community behavior introduced by Foucault will be the foundation of our thinking in this study. Furthermore, linkage or dialogic literary works will be approached with postcolonialism approach developed by Homi Bhabha (Tami, R :2007,8).

C.Element – Element of the Novel :

a) Character

Character is an imagery person who acts in a story. We will know how people act and think through character, what a character does with social condition and social life, because a character is also a member of society truth fully. Beside that, it is a particular intrinsic element in developing a conflict in the story, so that he is one of the things that very important in a fiction and even determine because it is impossible if there a story without character that finally that a story line. All conflict or events in the fiction expand through the action of the figures (Sumardjo,1984:132).

Generally, character in a story has a certain characterization through his attitude, utterance, and action for this many ways can be done to understand. There are two methods of characterization: the dramatic and the analytic. In the dramatic, we form our opinion of the character from they do and say, from their environment, and from what other character think of him. In the analytic method, the author comments upon the character, explaining their motives, their appearance, and their thoughts.

According to the role, character classified into the major character and minor character. Major character are the person who dominate the story from the beginning until the end of story. They share active in making or creating the conflicts and finally finish it. Usually these major character represent the author in submitting messages or meaning life to reader; while minor characters are supporter figures, their attendance is limited to the role they bring.

Furthermore, according to the function, major character is divided into protagonist and antagonist. The protagonist character usually have the character of goodness, helpful, patient, etc, while the antagonist character usually are the enemy of the protagonist. They are usually identical with the bad things and very hateful to protagonist. Generally they are troublemaker.

Besides, according to the existence, character are divided into fictional character and non-fictional characters. A fictional character is a person whose existence originates from a fictional work or performance. These character can be animal, gods, and even inanimate objects; while a nonfictional character is a character that actually exist in the history, though his exploitation in the story may differ from his historical activities. (Subair: 2007,8).

The follow are some ways in which readers sometimes classify character (Kaufman,2007)

1. A dynamic character is one who changes significantly during the course of the story. Changes considered to qualify a character as dynamic include changes in

2. Insight or understanding changes in commitment, and changes in values change in circumstance; even physical circumstance, do not apply unless they result in some change within the character self .

A static character does not undergo significant change whether round or flat, their personalities remain essentially stable throughout the course of the story. This is commonly done with secondary characters in order to let them serve as thematic or plot elements (Subair in Kaufman: 2007,8).

b) Plot

In narrative, a plot or storyline is the rendering and ordering of the events and actions of a story, particularly towards the achievements of some particular artistic or emotional affect.

A plot is the motion structure in fiction. A plot is“ the arrangement of incidents” that each follow plausibly from the other. There is a great variety to plot forms. Some plot is designed to achieve tragic, affects, and others to achieve the effect of comedy, romance, satire, and any other genre

The author plans plot. The story moves from a beginning through a series of event to a climax or turning point, and then to a logical end. The exciting forces are those statements or happenings that excite the reader and are part of the build up the story. The exciting forces are part of rising action that leads up to a climax, point where the action is at its peak- most intense, or most dramatic- and then falls off to reveal what happens in the end.

Certainly, a story is not follow this exact order, but even when it doesn't, most of these elements of plot will be in it. A story can start at the end in short, the story may start at any point, but the other part will probably fit in it to give the story unity (Subair: 2007,9).

c) Theme

Theme of a story is any general ideas or insights the entire story reveals in literary fiction, a theme is seldom so obvious. A theme is no necessarily a moral or message; it my be what happening in a story or what the story is about. A literary fiction, sometimes describes one main idea as the purpose of the fiction that the author created. However sometimes theme in fiction is implicit in a series of incident, therefore the reader need interpretation, perception and be careful to catch what the author to convoy the reader.

From reading result the reader tries to find out the theme from story. Because theme is generally have the character of neutrally in means that the authors do not mention it directly, hence reader free to determine. It by himself from the story according to understanding of those fiction.

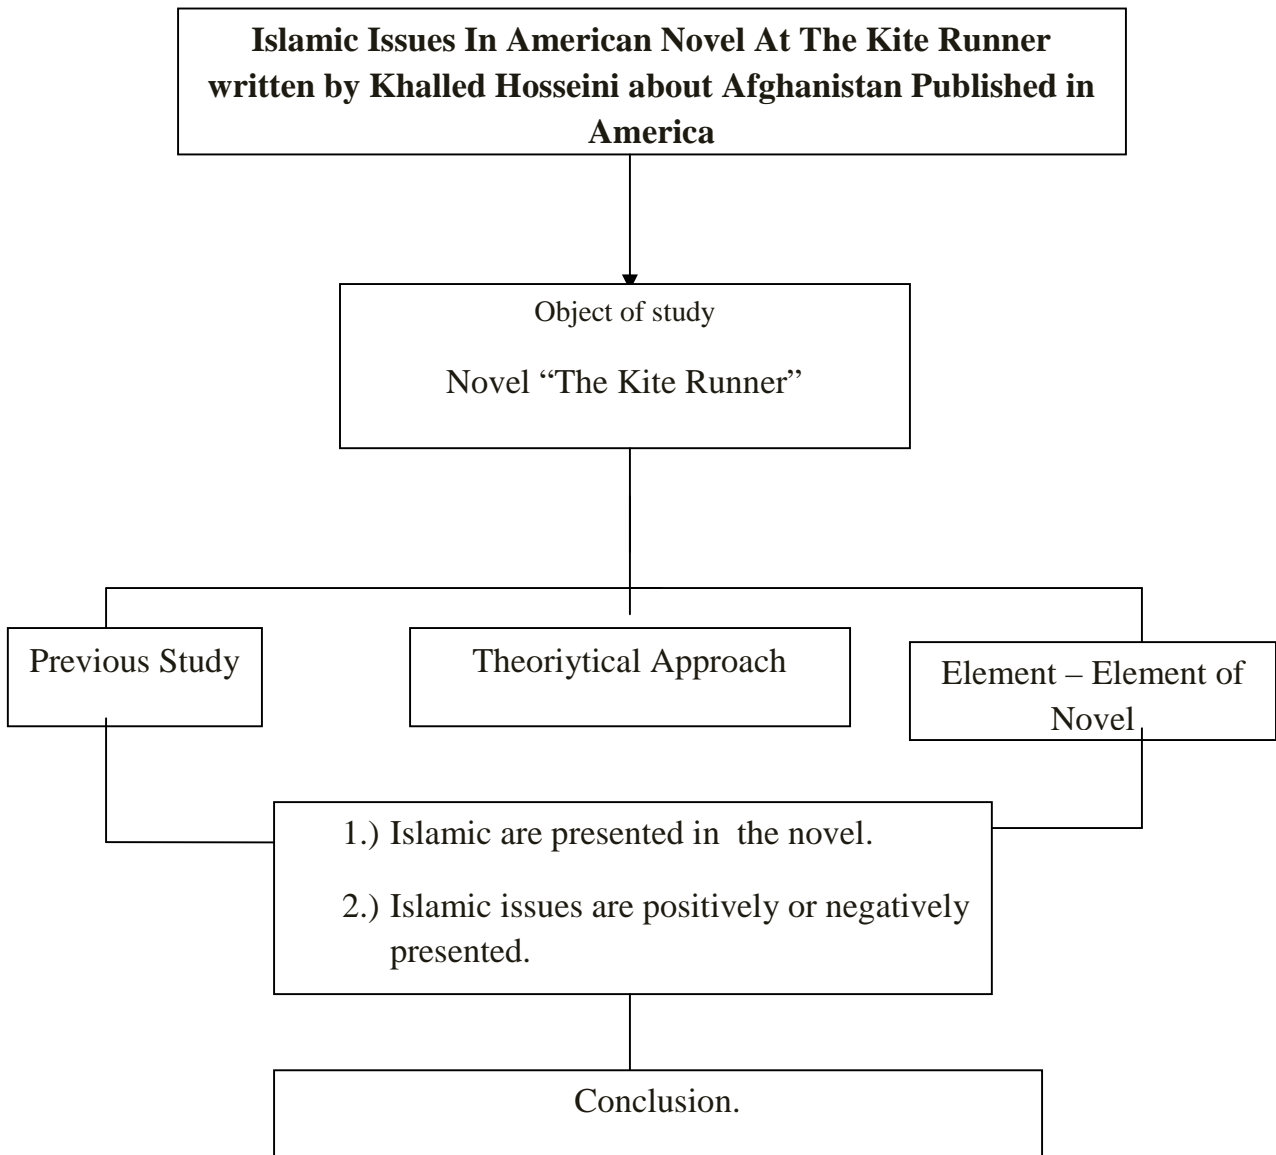

d.) Setting.

In general, setting is identified as time and place where the story take place. In literature, setting of a story is the time and location in which it take place the term is relevant for various form of literary expression , such as short stories, novels, drama, and screenplays.

The authors describes the world they know. Sights, sounds, colours, and textures are all vividly pointed in words. A writer imagines a story to be happening in a place that is rooted in his mind. The locations of a story's actions, along with the time in which it occurs, is the setting (Subair in Kaufman: 2007,10).

D.Framework Theory

CHAPTER III.

Method Of The Research.

A. Research Method

Research is a systematic process, which is conducted by reliable and qualified person to sort out a problem with the support of a certain amount of specific data as the basic to draw conclusion. Research is not only a systematic process, but using a scientific method also carries it out.

This research is included in descriptive research which involves reading, comprehending, and giving meaning in interpreting the data. The approach applied in this research is intrinsic approach, used to find out the elements of the novel.

B. Data Sources

Before describing much about method of collecting data, the writer explains the data first. Data in this research can be divided into two categories, namely:

1. The primary data is the main data as the object of the research. In this case, the primary data is the novel itself.
2. The secondary data is reference, which has something to do with the topic of the research.

C. Instrument of Data Collection

The instrument that the writer used in this thesis research was paper note and The Kite Runner movie. From this instrument, the writer found and wrote the data or subject matter about Islamic issues in the novel “The Kite Runner”.

D. Procedures of Data Collection

The procedures of data collection used by writer were:

1. The writer read the novel carefully. Through this way, the writer notes some events containing theme on that novel as the primary data.
2. The writer collected and read some related literatures beside that watched “The Kite Runner” movie to support the object that would be analyzed. This way was used to find out the secondary data in order to get complex data research.

E. Technique of Data Analysis

The data collected were analyzed by using intrinsic analysis. Intrinsic analysis is inner or from inside, and belonging to a thing by its very nature from be treated as something intrinsic, as the very essence of the thing.

F. Procedures of Data Analysis

The procedure of data analysis:

1. The writer analyzed sentence in the novel carefully and then determine that are found in the novel.
2. The writer identified the problem discussed on the study.
3. The writer observed all of the information and watched “ The Kite Runner” movie, related to the topic of the study.
4. The writer drew conclusion about the information and get systematic understanding about it.

CHAPTER IV

FINDING AND DISCUSSION

Based on the research, the writer will explain about what Islamic issues are presented in the novel like: war, childhood, friendship, and so on. After that the writer explains about how those Islamic issues positively or negatively effects in the novel.

A. Finding.

1) Issues are present in the novel “The Kite Runner” by Khalled Hosseini novel describes about :

- a).Stealing in family
- b).Friendship
- c) Childhood
- d) Violence
- e) Adoption

2) How those Islamic issues are presented positively or negatively in the novel.

- Positively Presented :

a) Friendship.

Positive present because part of this story Hasan very is responsible to Amir. He can do anything for him such as taking a kite, listening his short story, preparing breakfast for Amir's family, playing, and etc. But Amir didn't do anything and help Hasan when his friends strake to take a kite for him.

b) Adoption

Positive because Amir and Soraya adopted Sohrab as son, beside that Sohrab has problem solver because Hasan's son and they didn't have children since married 15 years later.

-Negatively Presented:

a). Stealing in family.

Negative because Amir's father was irresponsible to Hasan. He gave his son to his friends Ali is Hazara (lower class in Afghan) and then Hasan and Ali work in his home as waiter so than Hasan loose right as his son.

b) Childhood

Negatively illustrated Amir's journey. This journey start from a very peaceful hometown with a very happy family and friend. However, this novel shows after the appearance of Taliban, Amir's family and friend scatter even died.

c) Violence

Negative because the Taliban do violence to Farzana without clarifying the mistake.

B.Discussion

1. What Islamic issues are presented in the novel.

In this story it can be seen islamic issues presented in the novel, they are the part of this first religion about about friendship of Amir and Hasan where Hasan can do anything and always sacrifice for him, and second about War between Afganisthan and Taliban about War Between here and the Taliban which has the effect of which is revealing about the problem of theft of family issues, adoption and violence of the Taliban as colonizers against women, here the author of Afghanistan who published his novel about his country only wanted to express to the American people that they are very deserving because helping victims after the completion of the war so there's no issue of Islam which he demonstrated in the novel.

2. How those Islamic issues are presented positively or negatively in the novel.

-Positively Presented:

When there is a war between Taliban and Afghan Amir's family issues were completed by his father's friend Rahim Khan, because they feel guilty over this secret for 38 years. Amir Rahim decided to contact the United States and requested that he come to her by saying there are good roads, when Amir arrived he explained smua about a secret between father and son Sohrab Ali also about hasan hasan and mail a letter from which the shelf. :

Come. There is way to be good again, Rahim Khan had said on the phone just before hanging up.

(Khalled Hosseini:2003,207)

a) Friendship

Family background is prospective to the personality development of a child Hasan lives with Ali since his birth. He had never known his father has never talked about his parents.

In this story, it can be seen friendship between Amir and Hasan. Although Hasan has just a son of hazara/ people low class in Afghan but Amir is always glad to be Hasan's friend together playing and experiencing the great adventure.

He did?" said .For you a thousand times over, he'd promised. Good old Hasan.Good old reliable Hasan. He'd kept his promise and run the last kite for me.

(Khaled Hosseini:2003, 77)

Amir agha and I friends ,''Hasan said .He looked flushed.

(Khaled Hosseini:2003,80)

Part of this story is positive effect because Hasan always sacrifice for Amir without getting profit from him.Through them, it can be seen the real and hearted feel friendship. Part of the children didn't play with Hasan because it hazara but Amir does not care about that. He is exactly like to associate with Hasan because Hasan can be invented to do anything.

I had one last chance to make a decision. One final opportunity to decide who I was going to be. I could into step into that alley, stand up for Hasan- the way he'd stood up for me all those times in the past – and accept whatever would happen to me. Or I could run. In the end, I ran.

(Khaled Hosseini: 2003, 84)

I ran because I was coward. I was afraid to Assef and what he would do to me. I was afraid getting hurt. That's what I told myself believe. I actually aspired to cowardice, because the alternative. The real reason I was running, was that Assef as right : Nothing was free in this world. Maybe Hasan was the piece I had to pay, the lamb I had to slay, to win Baba. Was it to pair price? The answer floated to my conscious mind before I could thwart it: He was just a Hazara, wasn't he ?

I ran back the way I'd come. Run back to he all but deserted bazaar. I lurched to a cubicle and leaned against the padlocked swinging doors. I stood there panting, sweating, wishing thin had turned out some other way .

About fifteen minutes later, I head voices and running footballs. I crouched behind the cubicle and watched Assef and the other two sprinting by, laughing as they hurried down the deserted lane. I forced myself to wait ten more minutes. Then I walked back to the rutted track that run along the snow-filled ravine. I Squinted in the dimming light and sported.Hasan walking slowly toward me. I met him by a leafless birch tree on the edge of the ravine.

He had the blue kite in his hands; that was the first ting I saw. And I can't lie now and say my eyes didn't scan it for any rips. His chapan had mud smudges down the front and his shirt was ripped just bellow the collar. He stopped. Swayed on his feet like he was .Going to collapse . Then he steadied himself . Handed m the kite.

(Khalled Hosseini:2003,85)

This show positive and negative. Positive because Hasan botany take consequently for get the blue kite Although sacrifice himself. Amir negative because he didn't care with friend and leave him when he strike with another friends for get the kite because afraid himself hurt so he decided run.

In this Happiness, Amir does not forget Hasan. His friendship to Hasan is heart feel; Even Hasan has assumed. Amir as his brother in the days after, their adventures are started . They hunt for the treasure. Amir always read his short story and learn Hasan write and reading. Hasan always listening Amir short story because he know Amir wont become writer and take kite for him.

Based on the analysis above we can conclude pert o this story describe meaningful friendship. Good fried because he can do anything and sacrifice for Amir, so that Amir very confort play with Hasan eventhough he is Hazara/ low class people.

b). Adoption.

Family relationship is a part of a small unity from the society that consist of parents, their children, grand fathers, grand mother, uncle and aunt, etc. In their relationship not always feel happy because every person has a different ideas or though each other. Therefore, there are many problems which are always present in family life. For members of family have the difference way to manage and offer come his or her problems.

Life is a choice and process where human is born as God. Creation in this world and this life and existence are certainly full of dramatic dynamics. What a human faces and experiences while living in this world will from the character of each human. Life is challenges such as suffering, fear, anxiety, struggle for life, etc can hamper human life. However we can not deny that by facing various life challenges. We are going to have a certain attitude and act something to find solution.

“Your petition to adopt his young fellow. Give it up. That my advice to you.

“You Have death certificate ?”

“Death certificates? This is Afghan we’re talk

(Khalid Hosseini:2003,355)

Most people there don’t have birth certificates.?

(Khalid Hosseini: 2003,356)

“ It is dangerous business, making promise to kids. He signed and opened his desk drawer again. You means to pursue this?” he said , rummaging through papers.

“ I mean to pursue this.”

He produced a business card. “ Then I advice you to a get good immigration a lawyer. Omar Faizal works here in Islamabad. You can tell him I sent you

(Khalid Hosseini: 2003,357)

Positive seen in this story, Amir's good ambition, other hand, is supported because it will instrumen to self motivation of working harde For success adoption Sohrab as his son. Sohrab is problem solver of Amir's problem because he can redeem mistake at Hasan, his father's sin, and have chidren because he didn't have child since having married with Soraya 15 years. Sohrab will get civil right, parents, and justice as indirect compensation where Hasan didn't get as Amir brother during 33 years.

Ambition is a necessary requirement for struggling in this life that will produce motivation to work hard to achieve a goal. Any people get success of life because of their great ambition. However, to avoid misleading ambition it must be kept on the line of the well direction. The misleading ambition will, of course inflict a loss to upon other people or the state in the larger scale. Ambition for having a better position or self enrichment without taking care of other people suffering is not of curse supported such ambition is potential social conflict and therefore it can be called bad ambition.

Based on the analysis above we can conclude that Amir is success to adopt Sohrab as problem solver of his and fathers sin to Hasan. A good ambition, in the other hand, is supported because it will be an instrument to self motivation of working harder for success it does non inflict a loss upon other people, because it is kept on the right direction. In fact, the people is responsible on this work .

-Negatively Presented

a). Stealing in family

Social class refers to the hierarchal differentiation between individual, and groups in societies or culture in the simplest societies, the factor that can be divided and individual or groups into many classes are age, gender, and the physical health and also the spiritual charisma and religious vision. While in the complex society, economic power, occupation, education, classes ,etc. We can see that the people that have a strong power or influence in economic, religious or have intelligence are classified in the higher social class in the society. So that the rich people, politicians, general officers, teacher, religious leader are the people that always respect more than.

“Good,” Baba said, but his eyed wondered. “Now, no matter what the mullah teaches, there is only one sin, only one. And that is theft. Do you understand that?”

(Khaled Hosseini:2003,19)

“When you kill a man, you steal a life, ”Baba said.” You steal his wife’s right to a husband, rob his children of a father. When you tell lie, you steal someone’s right I did. When Baba was six, a theft walked into my grand father’s house in the middle of night. My grandfather, a respected judge, confronted him, but the thief stabbed him in the throat, killing him instantly-and robbing Baba of a father

“There is no act more wretched than stealing, Amir, ”Baba said.”

Baba said.” A man who takes what’s his to take ,be it a life or a loaf of naan....I spit on such a man. And if I ever cross paths his him, God helped him. Do you understand.

I found the idea of Baba clobbering a thief both exhilarating and terribly frightening .Yes Baba.

(Khalid Hossaini:2003,20).

This is a social problem of some human being. It is potential to kill people to do wrong way of earning a living to create criminal society. This is negative effect people will do anything to finance their daily needs and so keep alive beside that Amir’s father can not learn only theft sin with reason personal problem.

Baba came right out and asked. “Did you steal that money?

Did you steal Amir’s watch Hasan?”

Hasan’s reply was a single word, delivered in a thin, replay voice:”yes”

(Khalid Hosseini:2003,114)

Except Baba stunned me by saying, “I forgive you.” Forgive? But theft was the one unforgiveable sin the common denominator of all sins. “When you kill a man, you steal a life, ”Baba said.” You steal his wife’s right to a husband, rob his children of a father. When you tell lie, you steal someone’s right to the truth..When you cheat, you steal the right to fairness. Do you see?” Hadn’t Baba sat me on his lap and said those words to me? Then how could he just forgive Hasan? And if Baba could forgive that, then why couldn't he forgive me for not being the son he'd always wanted? Why-

(Khaled Hosseini:2003,115)

How could he have lead to meal all those years? To Hasan? He had sat me on his lap when I was little, looked me straight in the eyes, and said, There is only one sin, only one. And that is theft... When you tell lie, you steal someone's right to the truth .Hadn't he said those words to me? And now, fifteen years after I'd buried him, I was learning that had been a theft. And a theft of worst kind, because the things he'd stolen had been sacred: from me the right to know I had a brother, from Hasan his identity, and from Ali his honor.

(Khaled Hosseini:2003,244)

He did?" said .For you a thousand times over, he'd promised. Good old Hasan.Good old reliable Hasan. He'd kept his promise and run the last kite for me.

(Khaled Hosseini:2003, 77)

Amir agha and I friends ,''Hasan said .He looked flushed.

(Khaled Hosseini:2003,80)

There is way to be good again, he'd said.

A way to end the cycle.

With a little boy. An orphan. Hassan's son. Somewhere in Kabul.

(Khaled Hosseini:2003,254)

This is positive because the consequence will admonish the human if they do the wrong things. This makes them feel regret and sad because Amir's father apologizes when Hasan steals advantages of education or religion so the people can differentiate which are the good and the bad matters.

By study of religion, the consequence will always lead the human to the right ways. The consequence makes care the human of sin. This is what Amir feels when they run away when he was a child at the time Hasan took a kite for him and stole the right.

Based on the analysis above we can conclude, that stealing is not only sin and from taking something to people without permission, but stealing right from a child to know reality if he has family. We can learn from this problem differentiate which are good and the bad matter so we can be careful.

b) Childhood.

In this story, it can be seen friendship between Amir and Hasan. Although Hasan has just a son of Hazara/ people low class in Afghanistan but Amir is always glad to be Hasan's friend together playing and experiencing the great adventure. When Taliban came Amir must leave his childhood in village which influences into his life until adulthood, besides that he must move to America.

Alas the Afghanistan of youth is long dead. Kindness is gone from the land and you can not escape the killings. Always the killings. In Kabul fear is every where, in the street, in the stadium, in the market, it is part of our lives here, Amir agha. The save ages who rule of watan don't care about human decency

(Khalled Hosseini:2003,233)

Do you remember how we used to sit under the pomegranate tree there and read from the Shamamah ? The drought shave dried the hill and the tree hasn't borne fruit in years.

(Khalled Hosseini:2003,234)

I dream the lawla flowers will bloom in the streets of Kabul again and rubbab music will play in the samovar houses and kites will flay in the skies. And I dream that someday you will return to Kabul to revisit the land of our childhood . if you do, you will find and old faithful friend waiting for you.

(Khalled Hosseini:2003,235)

"I think that's it!" I said. "over there" I pointed to the a kid. If you ever get lost, Baba used to say, remember that our street is the one with the pink house at the end of it. the pink house at the end of it. The pink house with the steeply pitched roof had been in the neighborhood's only house of that color in the old days. It still was.

(Khalled Hosseini:2003,282)

The drive way extension that led from the gates to the yard, where Hasan and I took turn falling the summer we learned to ride a bike, didn't look as wide as long as I remember it. The Asphalt had split in a lightning- streak pattern, and more tangles of weed sprouted through fissures. Most of the poplar trees had been chopped down – the trees Hasan and I used to climb to shine our mirrors into neighbors' homes. The ones still standing were nearly leafless. The Wall of Ailing Corn was still there , though I saw no corn, ailing or otherwise , along that wall sloughed of all together. The lawn had turned the same brown as haze of dust hovering over the city, dotted by bald patches of dirt where nothing grew at all.

(Khalid Hosseini:2003,283)

The house itself was far from the sprawling white mansion I remembered from my childhood. It looked smaller . The roof sagged and the plaster was cracked . The window to the living room, the foyer, and the upstairs guest bath room were broken, patched up haphazardly with sheets of clear plastic or wooden boards nailed across the frames.

I found the window to my old bedroom ,second floor, third window south of the main steps to the house. I stood on tiptoes , saw nothing behind the window but shadows. Twenty-five years earlier, I had stood behind that same window thick rain dripping down the panes and my breath fogging up the glass. I had watched Hasan and Ali load their belongings into the trunk of my father's car.

(Khalid Hosseini:2003,284)

WE HARDLY BROKE A SWEAT, Hasan and I, when he hiked up the hill just north of Baba's house. We scampered about the hilltop chasing each other or sat on a sloped ridge where there was a good view the airport in the distance. We'd watch airplanes take off and land. Go running again.

(Khalid Hosseini:2003,285)

Negatively illustrated Amir's journey. This journey start from a very peaceful hometown with a very happy family and friend. However, this novel shows after the appearance of Taliban, Amir family and friend scatter even died.

c.) Violence

The violence for women is incorrect law and religion, because it is the violation of the basic rights. The violence doesn't mean the act that can be finished the problem because it can damage the other people. Whenever individuals, group or communities are faced with problem one way to solve it is by resorting to violence. The better way is to attempt to solve the problem by peaceful means, avoiding violence and confrontation. Peaceful means may take various forms. In fact it is the nature of the problem which will determine which of these peaceful methods is applicable to the given situation.

All societies, every where in the world, have rules of the way in which language used in social interaction. It is interesting to observe, however, that these rules may vary widely between society and another. Differentiation of the type of social culture can often lead, in crosscultural communication, to misunderstanding. Talking about moral, it must be related with attitude, behavior, action, which done by someone or society. People are sometimes different in measuring “ good and bad” the measure the goodness/ badness with their religion or their beliefs.

His eyes settled on the young woman wearing the black shawl. He spoke in Russian to Karim without taking his eyes of her. Karim gave a curt reply in Russian, which the soldier returned with an even curter resort. The Afghan soldier said something too, in a law reasoning voice. But the Russian soldier shouted something that made the other two flinch. I could feel Baba tightening up next to me. Karim cleared his throat, dropped his head. Said the soldier wanted a half hour with the lady in the back of the truck. The young woman pulled the shawl down over her face. Burst into tears. The toddler sitting in her husband's lap starting The husband's face had become as pale as the moon hovering Above, He told Karim to ask “ Mister Solder Sahib” to show a little mercy, may be he had a sister or a mother, may be he had wife too. The Russian listened to Karim a barked a series of words “It’s his price for letting us pass, Karim said. He couldn’t bringing himself to look the husband in the eye.

“But we’ve paid a fair price already. He is getting paid good money,” the husband said.

Karim and the Russian soldier spoke. He says.... he say

Every price has a tax.

(Khalled Hosseini:2003,125)

Negative because the policeman didn’t to their job as up

The other day, I accompanied Farzana jan to the bazaar to buy some potatoes and naan, She asked the vendor how much the potatoes cost but he did not hear, I think he had a deaf ear she asked louder and suddenly a young Talib ran over and hit her on the thighs with his wooden stick. He struck her so hard she feel down. He was screaming at her and cursing and saying the Ministry of Vice and Virtue does not allow women to speak loudly. She had a large purple bruise on her leg for days but what could I do except stand and watch my wife get beaten ? if I fought, that dog would have surely put a bullet in me, and gladly ! Then What would happen to my Sohrab? the streets are full enough already of hungry orphans and every day i thank Allah that I am alive, not because I fear death, but because my wife has a husband and my son is not an orphan.

(Khalled Hosseini: 2003,234)

negative effects because it uses violence against a woman he'd better warn as learning so she will not make the same mistake misunderstanding that he also had the problem because we are not asking to Farzana

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion.

Literary work conveys message to human being about reality of life. It also give much information such as history, social, culture, and religious including family. In this chapter, the writer can concludes what has been analyzed in the previous chapter as follow:

1. Something that most signalized in his novel is about the values of friendship. Although Hasan is hazara/ lower class people but Amir is still glad to be Hasan's friend. He does not care with Hasan status. Hasan can do anything and sacrifice for him without hope profit because of responsibility, Inhuman attitude of the Taliban can draw on the fate of the narrator Amir's, where she lost her childhood, friendship, and family
2. Simple life better than glamour life without anyharmonious. Material is one of most important thing in our life, it can not guarantee as happiness. Happiness of someone is not measured by anything including material. Therefore let us make sure ourself that every body has a problem and every problem will definitely have solution.

3. Like wise, the problems in family relationship between husband and wife, and parents and children will definitely be conflicts. Because they have difference ideas. This have effect positive and negative can be take as learning in live so that we can careful if have problem.
4. Here there is no issue ,the issue of Islam that in the show but the Author of origin Afghanistan publish his novel in America to describe the America of Afghanistan, Amir and Soraya That even big and lived in America but they still in love with countries willing to build origin hospital for the victims Afghan war.

A. Suggestion.

In the end of this research, the writer makes some suggestions from the novel

“ The Kite Runner” by Khalled Hosseini for the reader:

- 1.) Indonesian people should be careful in reading the novel, it seems to religious but no.
- 2.) Deed and behavior are always based on religion and moral values
- 3.) Money can not solve many things. Actually, love, togetherness, friendship, can solve any things even if the hardest one.
- 4.) Selfish not only bad for other people but also lead the person whom that attitude, to a great trouble.
- 5.) Faith, braveness and patient will lead us from wrong one to the right one.

It is important to help other people in all situations because we as human being must also need other people help other side, we have to remember the goodness of other people to us although it just little bit.

The writer hopes this writing can be useful for students who are concentrated is studying literary work. And will become and inspiration, a lesson, for people around the world of the importance in understanding and respecting for human right.

In addition, the writer realizes that analysis is far from the completeness, but at least she has tried to put out of all her ability to make the analysis better. Therefore, the writer will be pleased to receive some critiques from the reader if they find some lacks of the writing.

Synopsis of the novel

The narrator, Amir, recalls a day in the winter of 1975 that changes his life. On this day, he remembers hiding behind a crumbling mud wall, peering down an alley. He does not go into greater detail, but he notes that the memory haunts him. He speaks of committing suicide. He also recalls a phone call he received the summer before from his friend Rahim Khan, who requests that Amir visit him in Pakistan. After the phone call, Amir walks through San Francisco, where he now lives. He sees two kites and remembers the words Rahim Khan said before he hung up- "There is a way to be good again. Hassan is another childhood friend. He has a cleft lip, but is otherwise beautiful. Hassan is always loyal to Amir and tries unfailingly to please him. Hassan's father is Ali, who works for Amir's father. They live in a mud shack on the property. Hassan's mother left one week after he was born to live with traveling dancers. This is considered very shameful. Amir's father is well-to-do and they own an estate in an affluent neighborhood in northern Kabul. Amir calls his father Baba. Baba has many friends, but his best friend is Rahim Khan. Amir's mother died while giving birth to him. Ali's lower facial muscles are paralyzed, so he cannot show much emotion. He also has a twisted right leg, which causes him to have a strange walk. He is a Hazara and a Shi'a Muslim. Amir's family is Pashtun and Sunni Muslim. Which he receives verbal abuse by the Pashtuns for. Hassan and Amir grew up together. Amir's first word was Baba. Hassan's was Amir. Amir believes this laid the foundation for what happened in 1975.

Baba is a formidable man, both in stature and business. Amir longs to be close to him, but always fears his father is distant because his wife died giving birth to Amir. Some of Baba's businesses are an orphanage, a restaurant, and a carpet-exporting business. He is one of the richest merchants in Kabul. Baba says that theft is the one true sin. All other sins (such as murder) are variants of theft. He believes that a murderer robs a wife of a husband, a child of a father. Baba's father was murdered when Baba was a child. Amir overhears a conversation between Baba and Rahim Khan. Baba says that he doesn't understand Amir because he does not stand up for himself. Even when teased and pushed in the streets, Amir lets Hassan defend him. Baba does not respect this quality, and says that if he did not see Amir's birth, he would not believe Amir is his son. Rahim Khan says Amir just lacks a mean streak. Baba is glad Rahim Khan understands Amir and can be close to him. The next day, Amir snaps at Hassan out of jealousy. Amir says he does have a mean streak.

Baba's father was a judge who adopted an orphan and raised the boy along with his son. The orphan was Ali. Baba never refers to Ali as a friend, and Amir realizes he never refers to Hassan as a friend. Hassan and Ali are servants in Baba's home. Amir goes to school, but Hassan does not. Amir reads to Hassan. One time, Amir pretends to read, but makes up his own story. When he finishes, Hassan claps and says it is the best story he has heard. . He mentions that he would love to hear stories like the one he just shared. Amir writes his first short story that night. Amir brings the story to Baba, but he is not interested. Rahim Khan reads the story and writes Amir a note, encouraging him to write because he has a God-given talent, especially his understanding of irony. Amir wishes Rahim Khan was his father. He shares the story with Hassan, who points out a problem with the plot, Amir's first introduction to the plot hole. Amir is astounded and slightly angry, because an illiterate, uneducated boy can find something he could not. At the end of this chapter Amir says that suddenly Afghanistan changed forever.

Amir and Hassan's conversation is cut short by an explosion and gunfire. Ali hides with the boys during the attack. Amir and Hassan are stopped by Assef, the neighborhood bully. He is relentlessly cruel to Hassan because he is Hazara. Assef says Hitler was a great leader, and the new president should follow his plan to get rid of the Hazara. (Assef himself has blue eyes and blonde hair because his mother is German; he points out, however, that his mother despises Hitler.) Hassan pulls a slingshot on Assef, but Assef says he will get them later. For Hassan's twelfth birthday, Baba arranges for Hassan to have his cleft lip repaired by a plastic surgeon. After the surgery, his scar is barely noticeable.

During the icy winter months, the schools of Kabul are closed. Kites are a popular activity. It is one of the only interests that Amir shares with Baba. Kabul holds kite-fighting tournaments that are greatly anticipated. Baba takes the boys to Saifo, a shoe repairman and the city's most famous kite maker. The kite strings are coated with glue and glass so that the opponent's kite string can be cut down during the fight. Kite runners run after kites after their strings are cut, chasing them until they land. The runner gets to keep the kite, but the grand prize is the last cut kite. Hassan was the greatest kite runner.

Amir wins the annual kite fight as Baba watches. Amir wonders if Baba is proud of him or proud of Hassan. Hassan runs after the last kite Amir cut, as Amir plans to present the kite to Baba as a trophy. Amir looks for Hassan and finds him cornered in an alley by Assef and his friends. They want to take the kite and beat up Hassan. Assef tells Hassan that he is not really Amir's friend, but his servant. They start to beat Hassan as Amir crouches behind a wall, watching because he is too afraid to step in. Assef rapes Hassan as his friends hold him down. Amir runs away. He later meets Hassan and pretends he doesn't know what happened. Hassan gives Amir the kite, and Amir wonders if Hassan knows Amir saw. Amir gives the kite to Baba, who is proud of Amir.

Hassan avoids Amir and spends most of his time in bed. Ali asks Amir if he knows what happened the night of the kite fight. Amir snaps and tells Ali to do his work. Baba shows a lot of interest in Amir, even taking him to the movies. For one particular outing, Amir hopes to go with just Baba, but Baba invites three van loads of friends to go along. Amir cannot enjoy any of this because he feels guilty. Amir becomes an insomniac as a result of his guilt. Hassan attempts to be friendly with Amir again, but Amir pushes him away. Amir angers Baba by asking if he ever thought about getting new servants. Their relationship deteriorates. Amir tries to start a pomegranate fight with Hassan, but Hassan will not fight back. He takes a pomegranate and smashes it into his own head instead of hitting Amir. This shows Hassan's loyalty to Amir. Baba throws a huge thirteenth birthday party for Amir. Assef presents Amir with a gift- a biography of Hitler. Rahim Khan tells Amir that he can talk to him anytime and gives a blank book for writing.

Amir realizes that he cannot live with Hassan anymore. Amir lies and tells Baba that Hassan stole his birthday money and watch, a gift from his father. Baba talks to Ali, and then confronts Hassan with Amir. Hassan admits to stealing to protect Amir. Amir realizes that Hassan knew everything- including his hiding behind the wall instead of helping him. Baba surprises Amir by forgiving Hassan. Ali tells Baba they are leaving. Baba begs them to stay, but they leave. This is the first time Amir sees Baba cry. Baba drives Ali and Hassan to the bus station.

In March of 1981, Amir and Baba flee Kabul, taking only a few personal items. They do this in secret because spies for the Russian soldiers are everywhere. They are headed for Pakistan. At the border, they are stopped by soldiers. They say they can cross the border after they have half an hour with the young woman traveling with them. Baba protests and the young soldier pulls a gun on Baba, who won't back down. An older officer stops the younger soldier and allows them to pass. The group is supposed to change vehicles, but the second truck has been broken for weeks. Baba nearly kills the man when he realizes the man only transported them for the money. They will have to wait for the truck to be repaired, along with thirty other refugees and rats. In the basement, they meet Kamal and his father, friends from Kabul. Kamal was raped just like Hassan. Kamal does not speak anymore. All of the refugees are transported in a fuel truck to Pakistan. Kamal dies during the trip, apparently from gas fumes. Kamal's father kills himself because he feels that he just lost his last valuable aspect in life.

Baba and Amir settle in Fremont, California. Baba does not fit in and is not happy working at a gas station. He says he came to America for Amir. Amir says, "For me, America was a place to bury my memories. For Baba, a place to mourn his" Amir graduates High School in 1983 at the age of 20, after graduation Baba takes him out to dinner and then to a bar where they drink. Baba winds up drinking too much but makes a good impression on all the patrons of the bar and buys them all rounds of drinks. When they get home Baba tells Amir to drive to the end of the block, a Ford Grand Torino is sitting there, Baba said it needed work, but it ran and will be needed for Amir to go to College. Amir displeases his father when he tells him he wants to major in English in college.

Amir and Baba buy a VW bus and go to frequent garage sales. They then sell the items at a profit at the flea market. Amir meets Soraya, the daughter of Baba's old friend, General Taheri. Amir begins to court Soraya. She asks to read one of his stories. Though Baba does make many allusions to honor and pride (dissuading Amir from flirting with Soraya), ultimately, the reason Amir stops courting Soraya is because of Soraya's father who finds the two talking alone together in the market. Amir had given Soraya one of his stories, which Soraya's father promptly threw in the garbage.

Baba is diagnosed with inoperable lung cancer. Baba refuses treatment. He collapses with a seizure at the flea market. Soraya and her family visit. Days later, Baba arranges Amir's engagement to Soraya. She worries that her past- she ran away with a man and lived with him for a month- will cause Amir to not want to marry her. Amir envies her because her secret is out.

Amir and Soraya are married. She moves in with Amir and Baba because Baba is so sick. She takes responsibility for Baba's care. She reads Amir's stories to Baba. He dies one month later in his sleep. The couple settles into a routine. Amir finishes his first novel in 1988. The book is released the following year. Amir remembers Hassan's belief of his writing ability. The couple try to conceive for one year. They are unsuccessful and try in-vitro fertilization. They consider adoption, and General Taheri, her father, does not approve. They decide not to adopt.

Amir and Soraya, have a Cocker Spaniel, named Aflatoon, which means Plato in Farsi, they said, "that if you looked hard enough into the dog's black eye's that you'd swear he was thinking wise thoughts." Soraya, has been teaching at the same school for six years. Amir tells Soraya that he has to go to Pakistan to visit Rahim

Khan, who is very sick. Amir, believes that there is an un-spoken secret between Rahim Khan and himself. This is foreshadowing the fact that Rahim Khan knows all about Hassan, and how he is Amir's brother and will soon tell him. Rahim Khan, has also always known about the circumstances surrounding Hassan, being raped, and what Amir did in order to get Hassan and Ali out of his life. Amir finally decides to go to Pakistan and visit Rahim Khan.

Amir returns to Pakistan. Amir sees an ill Rahim Khan, who tells Amir about the unbearable life of Afghans under Taliban rule. Rahim Khan was happy at first when the Taliban defeated the Russian soldiers because he thought life in Kabul would improve. Most people felt this way because they thought the fighting would stop. Rahim Khan tells Amir that Hassan lived with him in Baba's house in Kabul after he left. He says he wants to tell Amir about Hassan.

Rahim Khan found Hassan in 1986. Hassan was married and his wife was expecting a baby. Ali had been killed by a land mine. Hassan asked many questions about Amir and wanted to know if Khan would read a letter from Amir. He wept when told about Baba's death. Hassan and his wife decide to move with Rahim Khan, but will only live in the hut and work as servants so as not to offend Amir. Hassan's daughter was stillborn. Hassan's mother returns to see him, disfigured from a recent knife attack. They nurse her back to health. Hassan's wife gave birth to a son named Sohrab.

Hassan's mother died four years later. Hassan taught his son to be a kite runner. The Taliban banned kite fighting shortly after taking power. Taliban fighters massacred the Hazaras in Mazar-i-Sharif.

Amir asks where Hassan can be found. Rahim Khan hands him a picture of Hassan and his son and a letter. In the letter, Hassan tells him about living under Taliban rule and his family. Hassan clearly wishes to see his friend Amir. A month after Rahim Khan left for Pakistan, Taliban officers came to take the house. Hassan refused to leave. He and his wife were shot dead. Rahim Khan asks Amir to go to Kabul and bring 10 year old Sohrab to him. He also tells Amir that Ali was sterile. Hassan was also Baba's son. Hassan never knew.

Amir feels betrayed and angry. He feels his father is a thief because he stole his brother and dishonored Ali. He realizes that he, like his father, betrayed the one person who would have done anything for him. He thinks about the good life Hassan could have had in America but due to his actions he did not. Amir decides to go to Kabul.

Amir enters Afghanistan with the help of Farid, a man who has contempt for Amir because he was born with privilege. Farid dislikes Amir at first because he believes that the only reason Amir is returning to Afghanistan is so he can sell off property, and ultimately make money. Farid takes Amir to Wahid's house. There, Amir is served a dinner, which he offers to share with Wahid's children. Amir notices that the children are staring at his watch. During dinner, Amir reveals to Wahid and his family that he has returned to Afghanistan in order to rescue his half brother's son. This is surprising, because Amir is very reluctant to reveal his father's lack of pride and honor. Later on, he overhears Wahid and his wife arguing that they had to give food to Amir since he was a guest, even though they barely had any food for themselves. Farid thinks better of him when he learns why he is going to Kabul. Farid and Amir leave the house, and Amir gives his watch to one of the children. However, Amir realizes the kids weren't staring at his watch at all, they were staring at his food. At the very end of the chapter, Amir puts money under his mattress for the children to find and buy food with. He also realized it had been 26 years since he had put money under someone's bed; the first time, however, was for a terrible purpose. This reveals how much Amir has grown and changed as a man.

Amir enters Kabul and is shocked by the destruction and begging children. Amir and Farid locate the orphanage where Sohrab has been living. Amir convinces the director to help them find Sohrab by referring to his skills with the slingshot. When the director lets Amir and Farid in, he regretfully informs Amir that a Taliban Official had come to the orphanage and bought Sohrab. Farid is furious about this, and accuses the director of selling the children to make a profit. He then begins to strangle the director until Amir intervenes. The director informs Farid and Amir that he has no choice but to sell some of the children. He says that if he refused, the Taliban would take as many children as they want instead. He adds that he had spent his life savings on the orphanage, and instead of escaping to Pakistan like many others did, he chose to stay and run the orphanage. The director then instructs Amir and Farid to go to Ghazi stadium, and look for the Talib official with the black sunglasses, this man will know where Sohrab is.

Amir and Farid visit Amir's childhood home, and they find his neighborhood is now home to the rich Taliban. The next day, they go to Ghazi Stadium to find the official who bought Sohrab. The stadium is filled with people watching soccer. During halftime, a man and a woman are stoned to death for adultery on the field by a man in white and wearing "John Lennon sunglasses," the Taliban official. Amir and Farid arrange for a three o'clock appointment with the official. Amir goes in alone to see the official, who lives in a palatial home. He is verbally abused and threatened by the official, who instructs guards to bring Sohrab to the room. He looks just like Hassan. Sohrab is dressed almost like a court jester, wearing make-up, and forced to dance whenever music is played.

The official asks Amir where "babalu" is, in reference to Ali. He removes his glasses, and Amir realizes the official is actually Assef. Assef says he can have Sohrab, but first he has to earn him. Assef tells his guards not to come in the room, no matter what they hear. He and Amir have unsettled business. Only one of them will come out alive. If it is Amir, then the guards will have to let Amir and Sohrab go.

Assef beats Amir badly, breaking his nose and teeth. Amir starts laughing. He believes it is funny how just now that he is being beaten up he finally feels comfort. His laughing angers Assef more. The fight ends when Sohrab points his slingshot at Assef, who lunges at Sohrab. Sohrab's shot takes out Assef's eye. This fulfills the taunt of Hassan of calling him a "One Eyed Assef". Sohrab helps Amir out of the house. Farid drives them away.

Amir fades in and out of consciousness. He wakes up two days later in a hospital with a broken jaw, punctured lung, ruptured spleen, and other injuries. Rahim Khan has left town, leaving a letter for Amir. He tells Amir that he should forgive himself for what happened to Hassan and he should also forgive Baba someday. Baba was torn between two sons and took out his frustration on Amir. Rahim Khan also leaves his money in a safe deposit box for Amir.

Amir has to be moved soon because the Taliban are looking for him. Amir bonds slowly with Sohrab over cards. The people Amir planned to leave Sohrab with were made up by Rahim Khan. Amir takes him to Islamabad.

Amir wakes up one night and Sohrab is gone. He finds him by the mosque. Sohrab says he is beginning to forget what his parents look like. Sohrab is ashamed of what Assef did to him. Amir offers to take him to live with him in America. Amir calls his wife and tells her about Hassan, what happened in Kabul, and his desire to adopt Sohrab.

A man at the American Embassy in Islamabad says adopting Sohrab is impossible, due to the fact that Amir would need death certificates of his parents (Hassan and Farzana), when most people in Afghanistan hardly had birth certificates.

Also, he would need to prove that Sohrab is really his half nephew, which was nearly impossible as well. However, he still gives them the name of an immigration lawyer. Amir meets with the lawyer who says Sohrab may have to wait in an orphanage. He is willing to help. Soraya arranges for a humanitarian visa to get Sohrab into the U.S. Later, Amir tells Sohrab that he would need to go to an orphanage again. Terrified, Sohrab becomes very upset. Later that night, Sohrab was taking a bath; Amir enters to talk with Sohrab, but finds that he has slit his wrists with a razorblade. It was said that Amir was still screaming after the ambulance arrived.

Sohrab tries to commit suicide rather than be put in an orphanage. He survives, but he tells Amir he wishes that he had died. Sohrab does not speak for a year after that. Amir and Sohrab go home to America. Sohrab remains silent. At a party thrown by the American Afghan community, Amir buys Sohrab a kite. The two of them kite fight together and win. Just as he and Hassan had done years earlier. Amir is Sohrab's kite runner, and for the first time Sohrab smiles for Amir.

Biography of Author.

Khaled Hosseini was born on March 4, 1965 in Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan as the oldest of five children. His father worked for the Afghan Foreign Ministry as a diplomat, and his mother was a high school teacher of Farsi and history. When he was five years old, his family moved from Kabul to Tehran, Iran. They returned to Kabul in the historic year of 1973, when Afghanistan became a republic. In 1976, his family followed his father to Paris. After the PDPA (the People's Democratic Party of Afghanistan) seized control of the government in 1978 and the Soviets occupied Afghanistan shortly thereafter, the Hosseini family decided to seek political asylum in the United States instead of returning to Kabul. They moved to San Jose, California, where Hosseini graduated from high school. He attended Santa Clara University and earned a degree in biology.

After college, Hosseini decided to become a physician. He attended the University of California-San Diego's School of Medicine, where he completed his M.D. in 1993. He served his medical residency at the well-respected Cedars-Sinai hospital of Los Angeles and became an internist. Hosseini started writing The Kite Runner in 2001 while he was a practicing physician.

Hosseini published The Kite Runner in 2003 to critical acclaim. Parts of the novel are based on Hosseini's childhood in the Kabul neighborhood of Wazir Akbar Khan. While some events in the story echo those in this life, the novel is fictional. By May 2007, it had been published in thirty-eight countries but not Afghanistan.

In 2003, while The Kite Runner was gaining a vast following, Hosseini returned to Afghanistan for the first time in twenty-seven years. He was disturbed to discover just how terrible the situation there had become, even though he had already written a very graphic fictional account of it. Hosseini has stated that a combination of luck and material privilege saved him and his family from suffering under the Soviets and the Taliban, much like his protagonist, Amir. He told Time Magazine that he struggled with his freedom: "I felt ashamed, like I should have suffered more." Hosseini felt estranged from the devastation in Afghanistan, but his separation from his homeland and his "Western sensibility" combined in his fiction to bring America's, and the world's, attention to the faces of Afghanistan.

Hosseini published his second novel, A Thousand Splendid Suns, in May 2007. Unlike The Kite Runner, which centers around relationships between men, A Thousand Splendid Suns focuses on those between women. In the months since its release, the novel has garnered a plethora of positive reviews.

Hosseini's devotion to Afghanistan can be seen not only in his writing but also in his activism. He has been a goodwill envoy to the United Nations Refugee Agency, UNHCR, since 2006, and his personal website contains links to many aid organizations that are helping Afghanistan. Interviewers describe Hosseini as a smart, handsome man with a calming air, and Time Magazine called him "almost certainly the most famous Afghan in the world." Khaled Hosseini lives with his wife and two children in Northern California
